District Medical Society And A.M.A. Held Guilty; 18 Physicians Cleared

Each Organization Faces $5,000 Fine; Jury Out 10 Hours In Antitrust Case

By Gerald G. Gross.
Post Staff Writer

The American Medical Association and its local affiliate, the District Medical Society, were found guilty last night on the criminal charge of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Holding the 18 individual defendants not guilty but deciding that the two professional societies broke Federal law by combating Group Health Association, the jury returned its verdict after 10 hours deliberation.

The A. M. A. and D. M. S. thus are liable to a fine not to exceed $5,000 each. William E. Leahy, chief of defense counsel, had no statement to make after the jury's verdict was pronounced at 11:36 p. m.

Whether he will ask a new trial or otherwise take steps toward reversal of the two convictions is problematical. In any event, no motion will be made by defense counsel nor sentence pronounced by Justice James M. Proctor before early next week.

Fishbein Issues Statement

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, and one of the 18 acquitted defendants, handed reporters the following statement after Justice Proctor adjourned court:

"Regardless of the verdict, the A. M. A. will continue to do its utmost for the prevention and treatment of disease and improvement of the public health."

Viewed as a "sentimental verdict," freeing Dr. Fishbein, three other A. M. A. officials and 14 Washington physicians of criminal stigma but branding the two century-old societies as lawbreakers, the jury's finding was solemnly received by the defendants.

"I am glad all the personal defendants were freed," is all that John E. Laskey, former U. S. attorney and a member of defense counsel, would say.

Dr. Francis X. McGovern, one of the Washington defendants, expressed surprise at the split verdict. Others withheld comment.

Wives, Daughters Present

Gathered in the District Court room—Criminal No. 2—to be in on the climax of a unique trial which began two months ago today were not only 17 of the 18 personal defendants but the wives and daughters of many as well.

Only accused physician missing was Dr. A. C. Christie, Washington radiologist, who is seriously ill at his home. The Government's case against Dr. Christie's associate and codefendant, Dr. Thomas A. Groover, was closed by his death last year.

Maximum penalty to which the individual defendants would have been liable, if convicted, is $5,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both.

The verdict came dramatically when plans were completed to lock up the ten-man two-woman jury for the night. Six rooms had been engaged for them at the Continental Hotel and a bus was on its way to the courthouse to transport them.

At 10:10 p. m., notified by a deputy marshal that arrangements were being made for their transfer to the hotel, the jurors sent out word that they thought they could reach a verdict by 10:30.

Some had already sent out messages to their homes asking for night clothes and toothbrushes.

State Dept. Objects To Nazis' Arrest Of American Clerk

The German and Italian protests against the taking into protective custody of their vessels in consequence of sabotage committed on them in American ports by their officers and crews have been rejected in sharp and sarcastic notes by Secretary of State Hull as without legal basis.

The diplomatic communications, which were delivered Thursday night to Dr. Hans Thomsen, the German Charge d'Affaires, and Prince Colonna, the Italian Ambassador, contained a stern rebuke for violations of domestic law "at a time when the vessels were enjoying the hospitality and protection" of American ports.

The State Department announced also that it was making representations to the German foreign office regarding the arrest of Stewart Herman, of Harrisburg, Pa., a temporary clerk employed in the American Embassy in Berlin. The arrest, it said, apparently took place without prior notification or explanation to the embassy.

Herman, John Paul Dickson, a part-time employe of the Chicago Tribune; Arthur E. Dunning, head of the American Chamber of Commerce in Berlin, and other Americans were taken into custody by the German police this week, but were subsequently released. There were suggestions in Berlin reports that the arrests may have been a form of reprisal for the taking of two German ships into protective custody in American ports.

Diplomatic courtesy, it was ex-

Roosevelt Allots Billion More in Aid

Yugoslavia to Get Arms, He Says; Plane Output Sets Record

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday mobilized more billions of lend-lease dollars for aid to Britain and her allies.

A new record in aircraft production, word that neutrality rules may soon be relaxed to help Britain win the Battle of the Balkans, and strong official action to bolster Yugoslavia featured a whirlwind day of new steps to aid enemies of the Axis.

Leading developments were:

1. President Roosevelt released $1,000,000,000 more of the war aid fund for Britain and her allies, half of it to go for 212 new ships and 50 to 60 new shipways, the other half to pay for further transfers of war supplies now on hand.

2. He disclosed that release of an additional $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 for war equipment orders is currently being prepared.

3. The Office of Production Management announced airplane production in the United States touched a record high in March with the delivery of 1,216 airplanes. The Army, Navy and the British received 1,074 of the planes. The January deliveries were 1,036; February, 972.

4. President Roosevelt indicated that, if the Red Sea area remains free of fighting, he may ease Britain's shipping problem by a change in American neutrality rules that would permit United States vessels to sail around the tip of Africa to unloading points near the southern end of the Suez Canal, whence the British could

Victims Recovering

Extra Police Guard Vicinity Of Two Home Bludgeonings

Extra details of policemen last night patrolled the Meridian Park section, guarding against a reappearance of a marauder who entered two apartments and battered a man and woman as they slept.

In each case the unidentified assailant left behind his bludgeon—cobblestones weighing between 5 and 6 pounds each.

First victim was John S. Long, 31, of 1321 Belmont Street Northwest, a filling station attendant, who was slugged about 2:30 a. m. while he slept beside his wife in their first-floor apartment.

Less than an hour later, two blocks away, at 2311 Fifteenth Street Northwest, Mrs. Evelyn Kneeland, 32, was beaten on the head with a stone at 3:25 a. m. as she slept beside her 2-year-old son, Alan. A second son, Robert, 5, was sleeping in the same room.

Both victims were recovering last night. Long was confined to Emergency Hospital, where X-rays disclosed his skull was not fractured, as was feared originally. Mrs. Kneeland was treated at Garfield Hospital for two deep lacerations of the scalp and allowed to go home.

Two homicide squad detectives, Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty and Aubrey M. Tolson, were dispatched to the scenes of the attacks to ascer-

Full Mobilization Ordered by King; Army Takes Over All Railroads

THE ZERO HOUR appeared imminent in the Balkans as Yugoslavia hastened general mobilization, closed her border against Hungary, massed troops facing the German hosts pouring down from the north.

TURKEY, GREECE and the Yugoslavs reportedly are considering a mutual assistance alliance if Germany attacks the Serbs.

Ready to Fight

By the Associated Press

Belgrade (Saturday), April 5. Predictions that the "zero hour" in Yugoslavia's crisis with Germany had arrived were voiced early today as the cabinet ended an extraordinary 4½-hour session and thousands of troops rushed to the frontiers.

It was estimated 1,500,000 men had been called to the army by a royal decree disclosed late last night.

The nation's ministers, from the tough General-Premier Dusan Simovic down, wore grave expressions as they left the meeting, described as unprecedented.

Many refused to return home, staying instead at their offices beside telephones which they apparently expected to bring them grave news at any moment.

"Any Hour Now"

Informed observers based their fears that war may come "at any hour now" on the numerous developments of the last 12 hours, including King Peter's proclamation of full mobilization, and the ministers refusal to discuss what prompted the night session.

No communique was issued as the meeting ended at 2:30 a. m. (8:30 p. m. Friday, E. S. T.), but a semi-official explanation said "the critical foreign question" had been discussed.

The closed Hungarian border seemed likely to be the explosion point as reports piled up of troop movements and concentrations on both sides of that frontier.

Every rail facility in the kingdom was being used to expedite the mobilization.

The government, within a few hours after taking over the country's railroad system, announced private individual travel would be allowed only by special police permit.

The royal proclamation mobiliz-

Senators Off 'Disporting'

Spring fever seeped into the Senate chamber yesterday as Majority Leader Barkley invited his colleagues "to disport themselves as they see fit" until April 15.

Senators wasted no time in taking up Barkley on his offer. A score left town shortly after yesterday's two-hour Senate session and more were expected to pull out today. The House began its Easter vacation Monday.

The mood of the upper chamber was summed up by Senator Russell. "I'm going to get down to Georgia," he said, "and smell that fresh dirt."

Technically, the Senate adjourned only until Monday, when it will meet long enough to adjourn until Thursday, when it will meet long enough to adjourn until the following Monday, April 14.

Even on April 14, "there will be no important business taken up," Barkley promised the Senate.

The 14th," he added indulgently, "is the day after Easter."

The 14th, by a coincidence, is also the day the Washington club and the New York Yankees open the baseball season.

Ford Shuts Down All Factories; 118,000 Idle; C. I. O. Threatens U. S. Steel Walkout Tuesday

Parley Reaches Impasse; Strike Would Affect 250,000 Workers

By the Associated Press

Negotiations for a new wage contract between the United States Steel Corporation and its C. I. O. employes have reached "an absolute deadlock," it was learned from an informed source last night, and the union leaders are preparing for a strike next Tuesday midnight.

A strike in "Big Steel," if effective enough to halt operations in the corporation's subsidiaries, would involve approximately 250,000 steel workers.

Negotiations which have been underway since March 20 between C. I. O.'s Steel Workers Organizing Committee and company representatives have failed, it was said, to produce an agreement on wages, paid vacations, dues collections and exclusive bargaining recognition for the union. The two sides, it was said, were far apart on all four points.

The old contract between the S. W. O. C. and "Big Steel" expired April 1 after Philip Murray, head of both C. I. O. and S. W. O. C., had served a formal 20-day notice of the union's desire to negotiate changes in the agreement.

Demand 10 Cents Hour Increase

The C. I. O. organization was reported to have asked the company for a 10-cents-an-hour wage increase, and "Big Steel" is reported to have made a counter proposal to increase the wage 2½ cents an hour.

Since April 1 the negotiators have been continuing their conferences under an agreement extending the life of the old contract to midnight April 8, with changes to be retroactive to April 1.

One hundred leaders of S. W. O. C. unions at "Big Steel" plants have been summoned to a meeting at Pittsburgh today to hear a report from Murray on status of the negotiations.

S. W. O. C. negotiators and corporation representatives conferred for six hours at Pittsburgh yesterday and adjourned their meeting until Monday. They issued no comment.

Closed Shop Denied

First intimation of a break between the union and corporation came on Wednesday, when it was understood "Big Steel" turned down union proposals that a closed shop and union dues check-off be granted.

If C. I. O. calls a strike at U. S. Steel next Tuesday midnight, it will mark the first disruption in relations between the two organizations since 1936, when "Big Steel" entered into a contract with John L. Lewis.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co. in Pittsburgh, with approximately 120,000 employes, would be the largest of "Big Steel's" subsidiaries which might be affected by a walkout.

Army Parades Might Today

America's greatest peace-time Army since the end of the World War will parade its strength across the country today.

Selective service trainees in camps, forts and cantonments from coast to coast will join the "regulars" in an Army Day celebration unrivaled in years.

In Washington, plans have been made for the biggest parade in Army Day history. In addition, individual programs will be held by scores of civic, veteran and patriotic organizations in all sections of the city.

The parade, to include units from every nearby Army reservation, will move from the Capitol Plaza at exactly 1:45 p. m., it was announced. It will wind its way along flag-decked Constitution Avenue and pass reviewing stands between Fourteenth and Seventeenth Streets, to disband just beyond Seventeenth Street.

Although the parade will be the day's highlight, the annual banquet at the Mayflower Hotel is expected to draw a large attendance from the ranks of both military and civilian life.

Assistant Secretary of War Patterson will be the banquet speaker, with Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, com-

Roosevelt Warns U. S. May Act If Allis Strike Continues

Walkout a Very Bad Situation, He Says, But Asks Fair Chance for Mediation Board

Read Walter Lippmann on "The Industrial Stoppages," Page 9.

President Roosevelt served a warning yesterday of Federal action to open the strikebound Allis-Chalmers plant unless work is resumed soon, as spokesmen for labor and management at the Milwaukee plant hastened to Washington to lay their cases before the National Defense Mediation Board today.

The ten-week-old strike that has tied up $45,000,000 in defense orders presents a very bad situation, the President said, and one that would require action.

He said the Allis-Chalmers tie-up was the only really serious work stoppage in the Nation, and admonished that he would wait a little while for a settlement—but not much longer.

Mr. Roosevelt left the case for the present to the Mediation Board, saying it would not be proper for him to prejudge the dispute.

Reflecting more optimism about other strikes, the President said he hoped the C. I. O. coal miners would be back at work by Monday and asked that the public wait a day or two before deciding whether the strike at the Ford Motor Co's. Rouge plant was serious.

When a reporter asked if there were Communist activity in connection with the Allis-Chalmers strike, the President replied yes, there was, but he quickly added that the same statement would apply to a great many individuals in the United States and not to labor as a whole.

A panel of the Mediation Board, headed by Chairman Clarence A. Dykstra, is scheduled to begin hearings on the Allis-Chalmers strike at 10 o'clock this morning.

The President said he was asking the press for time to work out the Allis-Chalmers situation, indicating as he did on Tuesday that he wished to give the Mediation Board a fair chance to effect a settlement.

Some Miners Will Go Back Next Week

Steelman Announces Progress in Tie-up Of Bituminous Fields

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Some of the bituminous coal mines in the Appalachian area will reopen next week, it was announced early today by Dr. John R. Steelman, Federal conciliator.

The operators "as a whole," however, have rejected the Government's proposal to permit miners to return to work under an agreement that any wage increases arrived at would be made retroactive, the Associated Press reported from New York.

Congressional leaders yesterday arranged for an Army plane to fly the newly approved extension of the Bituminous Coal Act to Texas for Speaker Rayburn's signature, in the apparent hope of facilitating settlement of the soft coal strike.

The Senate yesterday rapidly approved the House bill, which would continue the law fixing minimum coal prices for two more years.

Speaker Rayburn, who had left Washington for the Easter recess before Senate passage of the measure, will reach his home in Bonham, Tex., this morning. After he has signed the bill, it will be flown back to the Capital for the President's signature, and will probably become law tomorrow.

Conciliator Reports Progress

After all-day negotiations, Dr. Steelman had announced earlier that "further progress" had been made toward reaching a wage agreement that would put some 400,000 striking miners back to work.

Last night southern Appalachian operators announced that union negotiators had refused an offer of an approximate 11 per cent wage increase. Their announcement followed by only a few hours a comment by Steelman that "further

House Strike Inquiry May Summon Lewis

Secretary Perkins May Open Testimony Instead of Dykstra

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, may be called as a witness at the House Military Affairs Committee's inquiry into the progress of the defense program, Chairman May said yesterday.

Representative May added that Secretary Perkins might open the testimony Monday, instead of National Mediation Board Director Clarence A. Dykstra, who will not be in town.

The president of the Allis-Chalmers Co., Max Babb, and the head of the striking union, Harold Christoffel, will also probably be called during the week, May declared.

He described as "remote" the chances for favorable action by his committee on the Vinson bill amending the selective service law to permit the Government to take over plants shut down by labor stoppages. The bill had been referred to the Military Affairs group.

Meanwhile, Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, influential member of the Appropriations Committee, declared that he was "deeply concerned" over current production tie-ups. He added that "something has to be worked out to get the materials manufactured."

It appeared yesterday that some Congressional action on the strike situation might be expected soon after the Easter recess, if delays in production continue. One Administration member drily commented that "the boys will be coming back from their vacation with fire in their eyes if the strikes are still on."

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, said: "If I were the President and the State governments continued to refuse to function, I would crush this insurrection if it took every soldier in the Army to do it."

Besieged Ford Workers Hold 'Auto Races' in Rouge Plant

By the United Press

Detroit, April 4.—One of the most delicate problems facing Conciliator James F. Dewey in the Ford strike here has been how more than 1,500 workmen, mostly Negroes, who have been confined inside the River Rouge works since Tuesday night with no work to do could be removed peacefully through picket lines.

This situation was explosive all through the day and despite Dewey's optimism appeared a difficult problem for the State police, the company and the union.

Nonunion workmen who came out of the plant late this afternoon as part of a group of 200 said the Negroes were forging 6-foot steel knives in the foundry and racing completed automobiles around the mammoth reservation.

A 50-year-old watchman said:

"They'll never get all the Negroes out of the foundry. They are making steel knives, some of them 6 feet long, from steel in the foundry.

"All they are getting to eat is bread and water and a little meat."

For amusement, he said, they were carousing around in new cars. He said two Negroes jumped in new machines and sped through the gates.

On the Labor Front

C. I. O. HEADS are preparing for a gigantic strike Tuesday night at plants of the United States Steel Corporation and subsidiary companies, employing 250,000 workers.

THE FORD MOTOR Company closed all of its 36 plants through the country because the strike at the Rouge River plant created a shortage of parts, and a Ford attorney was flying here to charge "Communist activities" in the strike.

HOPING TO SPEED a settlement of the soft coal tie-up, Capitol Hill leaders arranged to fly the newly voted extension of the Bituminous Coal Act to Texas for Speaker Bankhead's signature.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT served warning of Federal action to open the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers plant, as the Mediation Board planned to open its hearing into the bitter dispute today.

CHAIRMAN MAY said John L. Lewis may be called as a witness at the House Military Affairs Committee investigation into lags in the defense program.

Idle List Grows

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 4.—Virtually every wheel in Henry Ford's gigantic manufacturing mechanism in America, all governed by a single cog here in the world's motorcar capital, stopped turning tonight.

The paralysis gripping the great River Rouge plant, strike-bound by the C. I. O.'s United Auto Workers for three days, seized 36 manufacturing and assembly sites elsewhere in the Nation, and there was no hope for an early peace.

A statement from an official representative of the Ford Motor Co. said regarding the 36 branch shutdowns:

"At the same time the company notified its suppliers in all parts of the Nation to stop further shipments on outstanding orders. This probably will affect indirectly thousands of additional workers all over the United States."

The total idle from plant shutdowns, including Rouge, was placed at 118,000. How many other thousands were affected the company could not say.

Dewey Undiscouraged

Stubbornly refusing to show any discouragement, however, Federal Mediator James F. Dewey paused in his desperate efforts toward a settlement to say:

"We're going to settle this strike. I don't know what day it will be, but we'll settle it."

Meanwhile, Ford Attorney I. A. Capizzi flew to Washington to confer with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, ostensibly in regard to the Ford Co.'s $155,000,000 in defense orders.

Capizzi took with him, the company said, evidence of "activities of Communists" in the Rouge strike. There was no further word of his plans.

Besides these 34, the Lincoln and Highland Park plants, two major units in metropolitan Detroit, also were closed. A wheel plant in Hamilton, Ohio, and seven small Michigan plants outside Detroit were "affected."

(Capizzi, arriving in Washington last night, said his only business here involved arguments today be-

Over Our Shoulder

a preview of the Sunday Post

Sandburg the Poet

Carl Sandburg's fame as biographer and historian has recently overshadowed his status as poet, yet it was as a poet that America first met him. Sandburg came into national prominence in 1914 when his poem "Chicago" won a magazine prize. In 1919 and 1921 he shared the prize award of the Poetry Society of America. In 1928 he was the Phi Beta Kappa poet at Harvard. Sandburg books of poetry include "Corn Huskers" (1918), "Smoke and Steel" (1920), "Slabs of the Sun-Burnt West" (1922), "Early Moon" (1930) and "The People, Yes" (1936). "Fog," "Grass" and "Nocturne in a Deserted Brickyard" are some of his most frequently quoted poems. "The American Songbag" (1927) is his compilation of songs and ballads.

The very titles of Sandburg's poems show a healthy and earthy interest in the immediate world around us, an interest which will be reflected in the weekly column of comment which he will contribute to the Sunday Post, starting this Sunday.

Swords and Senoritas

It all started when Senorita Maria dressed herself in ragged clothing to attend the fiesta in disguise. And before the affair was over, the Senorita had been insulted, Don Estaban de la Zamora was in exile, the peons of Spanish California had been stirred into revolt, and Senor Devil-May-Care showed two young hotheads what real swordplay and real courage were lik. If you like the clash of steel, the rustle of silk, the whisper of conspiracy in your fiction, you'll like "Senor Devil-May-Care." Like all Sunday Post novels, it's complete in one issue, printed in a separate, 16-page tabloid section, illustrated in colors.

First War Book

War books seem to go through three cycles. First comes the book depicting the war as an adventure—example, "Over the Top." Next the revulsion—"All Quiet On the Western Front." Finally—years later—the romantic novel in which the war serves as a backdrop to the personal dramatics of the hero and heroine—like the Civil War in "Gone With the Wind."

First of the crop of books about Hitler's War is "Squadrons Up!" by War Correspondent Noel Monks. It falls into the "Over the Top" category—gives the inside story of what a fighting organization is like to the men who compose it. In this case the book takes on added interest and excitement because that fighting organization is the Royal Air Force.

"Squadrons Up!" tells what the R. A. F. flier's life is like in the air and on the ground, gives eye-witness accounts of aerial battles fought at odds as high as 60 to 1, explains R. A. F. strategy, quotes from actual flight log books, names the heroes of the R. A. F. The author knows—he lived with these boys.

"Squadrons Up!" will be serialized in the Sunday Post in five installments, starting tomorrow.

mander of the District National Guard, as toastmaster.

The parade will be led by Maj. Gen. Walter S. Grant, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, acting as grand marshal. He will be escorted by a Cavalry detachment from Fort Myer.

Brig. Gen. John N. Greely, commanding general of the Washington Provisional Brigade, will head the first division. This division will include regular service units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, with both the Army and Navy bands.

The second division will be led by Gen. Cox and will include Washington units of the Organized Reserve Corps; R. O. T. C. Battalion and band of Georgetown Univerty; "The Pershing Rifles," R. O. T. C. unit from the University of Maryland, and brigades of Howard University and high school cadets.

Col. Oswald H. Saunders, commanding the Arlington Cantonment, will ride ahead of the third division. This division will consist of various war veteran, civic and patriotic groups—the largest in the line of march with more than 75 units.

Tickets for the public stand will be available before parade time at headquarters of the Military Order of the World War, 1700 I Street Northwest, and at the American Automobile Association.

The first event of the day will be a 9:30 a. m. broadcast over WJSV by Maj. Willett J. Baird, commandant of the Third Corps Area, and two officers of the Disabled American War Veterans of the World War—Joel D. Thacker, commander of the District of Columbia section, and Millard W. Rice, national service director.

At 11:30 a. m., Walker H. Colston, senior national executive committeeman for the District and permanent honorary president of the District Chapter, Rainbow Division Veterans, will officiate at brief ceremonies at the Rainbow Division Memorial in Potomac Park.

At the night banquet, Charles P. Mailloux, of Albany, N. Y., will receive the Pershing Medal for distinguished attainment.

Earlier, the C. I. O. union had moved to hale Henry and Edsel Ford into Federal court and charged that its members passed into the plant as maintenance men were "roughly searched and beaten."

Ray Roush, superintendent of the Rouge plant, accused strikers of "deliberate breakage of tool and die parts vital in aircraft production." He said the damage reached $100,000. The union denied this and, in turn, issued a statement saying the company was "completely insincere" in declaring it wished to help national defense.

Governor Sees Progress

Meanwhile, Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner said progress was being made in strike settlement efforts. The situation gives "encouragement" for a settlement, he said.

Van Wagoner said:

In a formal statement, the union threatened to withdraw its maintenance workers unless they "are protected and all nanoyances ended."

The union charged that each member entering the main gate today was taken by a company service man to "a heavily armed crowd of about 50 men," who searched them, ripped off union buttons and punched the protestors. Later, the union claimed, "roving crowds of thugs, armed with iron bars and other weapons, were cruising through the buildings, beating, molesting and threatening" the maintenance men.

Charges "Fascist Affiliation"

In obtaining subpenas for the Fords and Harry H. Bennett, company personnel director, Attorney Ernest Goodman for the union said he intended "to show the affiliation between the Ford company and Fascist governments." He demanded the Fords' presence in the union's efforts to dismiss a Federal court order restraining the U. A. W.-C. I. O. from interfering with Ford employes entering or leaving the plant.

Buell Doelle, company attorney, retorted that "the Ford company has virtually turned over its entire resources to the service of the Government, and will continue to do so. As to Nazi connections, it need only be pointed out that the Ford properties abroad have virtually been confiscated."

Millions of dollars loss in production and wages have attended the three-day strike, with more penalties to come unless a settlement is reached.

Some 150,000 Ford workers were authoritatively believed affected by the strike. The sprawling 1,100-acre River Rouge plant employs 85,000 hourly rated workers and many thousands of others. Thirty-four domestic branches of the company have 40,000 on their pay rolls. Several of these had shut down or were approaching that stage as supplies normally received from the Rouge plant dwindled.

Wage Loss Put at $3,200,000

The company, which has claimed that damage to its business will run into a million dollars each day of the shutdown, said today the wage loss for a five-day week at the Rouge plant was $3,200,000.

A decline in passenger car and truck production from 124,165 units last week to 116,255 this week was attributed largely to the Ford shutdown. Ward's Reports, Inc., said this was only a fraction of the effect, and that lacking a settlement of the strike a more substantial reduction would develop next week.

Dewey, emerging from a new meeting with union men and preparing to sit down at a table with company representatives, said "substantial progress is being made."

He said Ford executives assured him no back-to-work movement would be countenanced while mediation efforts continue.

Efforts to remove 1,500 Negro production men from the Rouge plant, where they have been since the prestrike work-stoppage of Tuesday night, failed tonight. Dewey had considered this the "first problem" in the way of actual settlement.

crowded press conference believed that his threat of Federal action implied a warning that the Federal Government might take over the Allis-Chalmers plant.

When President Roosevelt was asked, however, if that was his intention, he declined to answer, saying the question was too iffy.

The Selective Service law contains a clause allowing the President to take over factories that "refuse" to cooperate in national defense.

Asked About Vinson Bills

The entire discussion of the pregnant labor question was prompted when a questioner asked the President to comment on two bills introduced by Chairman Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, who was among the White House callers Thursday.

One measure would authorize the Government to commandeer and operate strike-bound plants, the other would require that a union give 30 days notice before going on strike. Mr. Roosevelt said he had not read the bills.

Secretary of War Stimson said Thursday that the War Department was prepared to take over and operate the Allis-Chalmers plant, if need be, but he made it clear he was not threatening to do so.

The Allis-Chalmers dispute is in its eleventh week.

Fights and Tear Gas

The United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.), in their quest for wage adjustments and what they have termed union security, have experienced bloodshed and tear gas attacks by police and have been involved in physical combat with A. F. L. workers seeking to pass through the picket lines. The outbursts of violence at the plant early this week caused Wisconsin Gov. Julius P. Heil to order that attempts to repone the plant be temporarily abandoned.

The United States Conciliation Service first tried to adjust the differences and when it made no progress the Office of Production Management tried its hand. A formula for settlement was worked out February 15 and the union accepted it March 1 but the company demurred.

The tie-up persisted until Navy Secretary Knox and Defense Production Director Knudsen ten days ago issued telegraphed orders that the plant be reopened.

The company tried to comply with these orders, but the union voted not to return to work unless the February 15 formula were accepted by the company. When the union attempted to enforce this vote at the plant, where A. F. of L. workers were reporting for duty, violence ensued and the plant was ordered closed by Heil.

The Labor Department certified the dispute to the Mediation Board Thursday.

Gas Mask Work Halted

Copyright by New York Times

Jersey City, N. J., April 4.—Work on 1,500,000 gas mask containers was halted this afternoon when 693 employes of the Continental Can Co. struck at the company's Jersey City plant in protest against the company's refusal to direct 11 men to remove alleged company-union buttons from their overalls. The company charged that the walkout violated no-walkout and no-lockout provisions of its contract with the General Tin, Wax and Container Workers Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

Rubber Workers Strike

Huntington, Ind., April 4 (INS).—The Schacht Rubber Manufacturing Co. plant which has been making gas mask parts on a 24-hour a day schedule was forced to halt production today by a strike of the C. I. O. United Rubber Workers. The union demanded pay raises of 15 cents an hour for men and 8 cents an hour for women, in addition to vacations with pay. The plant employs 250 persons.

Magnesium Stoppage

Cleveland, April 4 (U.P.).—Employes of the American Magnesium Co., manufacturers of aircraft parts, tonight forced a "total stoppage" of work in the plant to enforce demands for wage increases.

The stoppage began as a "slowdown" early today when about 1,000 workers began to "stand around" to protest alleged delays in settling wage grievances.

progress" toward a settlement was being made.

"Both parties are still anxious to settle by a negotiated agreement rather than some temporary solution," Steelman said. "The possibilities of such an agreement are still with us."

Earlier in the day, Steelman had said it was "imperative" that the mines be reopened by Monday; while in Washington, President Roosevelt, referring to the coal dispute for the second time this week, declared that he hoped Monday would see recommencement of work.

The extension of the Bituminous Coal Act for two years from its present expiration date, April 26, took hardly an hour of the Senate's time yesterday. The only change the bill makes in the extisting setup is that it establishes consumers' counsel (which represents the public in price-fixing hearings) as an independent governmental agency.

Barkley Sees Assurance

The bill "should assure the coal operators at least two more years of stability as a basis for agreement between miners and operators," said Majority Leader Barkley.

Through the Coal Division of the Interior Department, the act provides for fixing of minimum prices at the mine on the basis of "weighted average cost" of production in different areas.

Senators Ball (Republican), of Minnesota, and Capper (Republican), of Kansas, had sponsored an amendment to give wholesale cooperatives the same mine price as other coal wholesalers. Declaring that he feared adoption of the amendment might jeopardize the bill because it would then have to go back to the House for approval, Senator La Follette "reluctantly" withdrew the proposal.

$7 Daily Wage Sought

Representative Boland (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, sponsor of the measure in the House, said speedy enactment would have "every bearing on the strike situation." Asserting that "both sides are interested in continuance of the law," he declared that its passage "may have some effect in getting them together."

Representative Boland said he would be unable to take the bill to Texas for the Speaker's signature, but House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler said, "I'll do it if I don't get somebody else to."

In the New York negotiations, the soft-coal miners, who have not worked since April 1, when their contract expired, are seeking a flat $7-a-day wage, and elimination of the North-South differential. Present wages are $6 in the North and $5.60 in the South.

Meanwhile, anticipating negotiations that will open next week for a new anthracite contract, representatives of three Pennsylvania districts decided to demand a $1-a-day increase, but, in the interests of national defense, to refrain from asking a decrease in the present 35-hour week.

Roosevelt Releases Billion More in Aid

transship supplies to the Balkans.

5. The President said he is studying what military supplies can be shipped to Yugoslavia, an announcement that Secretary of State Hull seconded by complimenting the new Serb-Croat cabinet of Yugoslavia.

6. Interest in the convoy question was quickened when the President told a press conference he could not answer categorically the question whether the new 212-ship program would relieve the "pressure for convoys."

A crowded press conference heard the President deliver his progress report on spending of the $7,000,000,000 aid fund.

Yesterday's allocations brought the total sum earmarked to $2,080,000,000 for weapons and food for Britain, Greece and other Axis enemies.

When the $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 now under study is parceled out the total expenditure out of the fund will be $3,580,000,000 to $4,080,000,000.

Half of yesterday's billion-dollar earmarking is to go for food and existing Army and Navy supplies which will be transferred to Britain and her allies, the President said.

The other half carries funds for building the 212 new ships, the 50 to 60 new ways and a small sum for repair of damaged merchant ships.

The new lot of cargo ships will swell the emergency ship construction program to 412 vessels. The Maritime Commission already has placed orders for an earlier group of 200 standardized "ugly duckling" cargo carriers. The new group will be partly of the same simple "pointed box" design and partly of regulation type. Construction will be done in new and existing seaboard yards.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the first of the new ships would be ready about January 1.

Ships May Enter Red Sea

The money he allocated for repair of damaged cargo ships would not be used to recondition the German and Italian ships seized by the Government last weekend, the President stated.

Though reporters could not draw from the President a flat declaration of the convoy question, great importance was attached to his statement that the neutrality restrictions barring American vessels from the Red Sea might be lifted, in view of British success in routing Italian forces in that area.

The Red Sea was placed in the war zone by Presidential proclamation and can be removed by proclamation.

American ships have not been able to enter the Red Sea since Italy entered the war ten months ago. Officials said that permission for United States ships to enter that region would relieve pressure on Britain's limited supply of merchant tonnage. United States vessels have been making trips to South Africa, but have not been rounding the Cape of Good Hope for ports on the Red Sea and near the Suez Canal.

Military observers said that if United States vessels could once again unload at the southern end of Suez, Britain could build a much stronger supply lifeline to her forces in North Africa and in the Balkans.

Yugoslavia Specifically Included

Yugoslavia was specifically included in the lend-lease aid program by the President yesterday.

He conferred Thursday with Constantin Fotitch, the Yugoslav minister. Their conversation dealt with aid to Yugoslavia, the President said, yesterday, adding that the question of what supplies could be spared was now under study.

Aid to China was linked by the President with the report he is receiving from his emissary to China, Lauchlin Currie, who returned from the Far East recently. The President said he had read a two-volume report rendered by Currie. They discussed the report at a luncheon conference yesterday.

The President said, in answer to a question that there was no basis for reports that Great Britain and the United States were holding military staff talks preparatory to convoying ships across the Atlantic. The United States just has military observers in Britain, the President explained.

Secretary Hull's praise for the Yugoslav cabinet, enlarged Thursday to include Vladimir Macek, the Croat leader, as vice premier, greeted the new regime there as gratifying to all Americans.

He hailed it as an evidence of unity in Yugoslavia, an instance of the cooperation of all the peoples of the Balkan nation for their own protection.

Hull also took care to point out that the action of the Treasury in freezing more than $50,000,000 of Yugoslav credits here would not be allowed to work to the harm of Yugoslavia.

U. S. Sarcastically Rejects Axis Protest on Ship Seizures

Close to Breaking Point

The notes rejecting the ship-seizure protests were made public yesterday and were regarded by observers as bringing relations between the United States and the Axis powers closer to the breaking point.

Although drafted on similar lines, the note to Dr. Thomsen was harsher in tone than the one sent to Prince Colonna. This was notwithstanding the fact that only one of the two German vessels in American ports, the tanker Pauline Friedrich, at Boston, was badly damaged, whereas 25 of the 27 Italian ships taken into custody were damaged.

Meanwhile the direct charge was made by President Roosevelt at his press conference yesterday that Admiral Alberto Lais, the Italian naval attache, had ordered the sabotage to be committed on the Italian vessels.

A great deal of sabotage was undertaken on the order of the Italian naval attache, Mr. Roosevelt said. It was an illegal thing, he added, and, therefore, an improper thing for a foreign representative in the United States to do.

Expected to Leave Soon

The immediate departure of Admiral Lais from this country as no longer persona grata was demanded Thursday by the President in a note from Secretary Hull. The attache is planning to leave by the earliest available ship.

Secretary Hull again indicated at his press conference yesterday that no definite evidence had been found directly connecting the German embassy with the sabotage program. Asked in this connection whether a demand would be made for Vice Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden, the German naval attache, to leave the country, Hull replied that he had not heard such a question discussed.

Secretary Hull told Dr. Thomsen bluntly, after referring to the damage done to the Pauline Friederich, that "it is difficult to see how your government could expect this government to be oblivious to the situation presented."

And in his sharpest vein he declared his surprise at the "extreme assertions and demands" of the charge d'affaires.

"You even go so far," he said, "as to request that these vessels be restored to the 'unlimited authority of the captains' and that the members of the crews be placed at liberty immediately' and allowed 'to return to and stay on board their ships,' etc."

A Felony Under Law

Dr. Thomsen, the note added, seems "wholly to disregard the plain provisions of our statutes which make it a felony for the master or any other person in charge or command of a vessel, foreign or domestic or for any member of the crew or other person within the territorial waters of the United States," to commit the sabotage that prompted the American action.

Similarly, Mr. Hull, in his reply to Prince Colonna, said the ambassador "must have overlooked the gravity of the situation when in his communication of March 31 he registered a protest against the action on the part of the Federal authorities with respect to 'Italian properties and nationals.'"

"These concerted and widespread acts of destruction on the part of the officers and crews in violation of specific provisions of the statutory laws of the United States, and at a time when the vessels were enjoying the hospitality and protection of our ports," he added, "cannot be viewed with equanimity."

Might Ask Forfeiture

Indications continued that the United States might move in the courts for forfeiture of the vessels if convictions are obtained against the seamen now under criminal prosecutions on charges of sabotage. However, Secretary Hull in his notes left open the question of the ultimate disposition of the vessels.

"This matter," he said, "is now receiving the attention of the appropriate authorities of the government and will be determined in the light of the law and pertinent factors."

An official of the Maritime Commission remarked, "We will hold the ships for 30 days or so and then resurvey the situation to determine what can be done with them."

Italian Crew Faces Criminal Proceedings

Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge tonight authorized criminal proceedings against crew personnel of the $10,000,000 Italian liner Conti Biancamano, in Cristobal, Canal Zone.

Authorization by Berge, head of the Justice Department criminal division, to Federal authorities in the Canal Zone was an indication that officials have found definite proof of sabotage aboard the Italian luxury liner.

Mexico Holds Two Officers

Tampico, Mexico, April 4 (AP).—Capt. Lolio Fazzi and Chief Engineer Domingo Oneto, officers of the 2,005-ton Italian tanker Atlas, were arraigned in criminal court here today on charges of scuttling their ship and endangering the port's navigation.

They were released on a total bail of 7,000 pesos (about $1,400) posted by the Italian consulate.

The 500-odd crewmen from the ten Italian and two German ships occupied by Mexican marines here and in Vera Cruz last Tuesday to prevent sabotage were at liberty in custody of their consuls.

Four Captains Arrested

Norfolk, Va., April 4 (AP).—Four captains of Italian freighters seized in Hampton Roads Sunday were arrested today on warrants issued by United States Commissioner Harry A. Brinkley and were placed in the Norfolk City jail after failure to post bond of $20,000 each.

The warrants charged that each captain "tampered with the motive power or instrumentalities of the ship with intent to injure or endanger the safety of said vessel or her cargo."

British Take 3,000 Italians Near Massaua

Five Fascist Destroyers Sunk; Axis Troops Advance in Libya

By International News Service

Cairo, April 4.—Capture of more than 3,000 Italian troops by British forces advancing on Massava and sinking of five Fascist destroyers that fled that menaced Eritrean Red Sea port were announced tonight, while Royal Air Force planes struck in Libya's Bengasi area to impede the push of German-Italian mechanized forces.

The latest batch of Italian prisoners was rounded up in the vicinity of Asmara, the British-captured Eritrean capital but "many more" Fascist deserters were surrendering to the British, a middle east command communique said.

The British drive from Asmara to Massava, surrender of which has already been formally demanded, was admittedly "temporarily delayed" by "extensive demolitions" wrought by the retreating Italians along the railroad and highwey leading east to the Red Sea.

Another British offshoot column advanced south from Asmara on the road to the northern Abyssinian highway terminus of Dessye. In Abyssinia, the communique said the "advance in all sectors is proceeding satisfactorily."

After evacuating the east Libyan naval port of Bengazi the British were concentrating "advanced elements" north and east of that city, it was announced as an official military spokesman hinted the first great Anglo-German battle is in the making. He declared:

"We will allow the enemy to continue to penetrate eastward until he reaches a point where we are satisfied we can give battle with the assurance of success."

Axis Claims Victory

[The Associated Press carried from Rome a Stefani, Italian news agency, dispatch from north Africa that the German-Italian units had captured Mersa Brega, Libya, after a sharp artillery duel in which British batteries were silenced.

[Recapture of Mersa Brega immediately preceded British evacuation of the more important seaport of Bengasi.

[Detailing the battle, Stefani said advancing Italian and German armored car units, supported by antitank batteries and artillery, ran into heavy British artillery fire about 4 miles from Mersa Brega.

[A lively artillery duel followed before the British guns were silenced, Stefani continued, then the German-Italian advance resumed despite counter-attacks by British mechanized units.

[Considerable quantities of ar materials were declared to have been captured at Mersa Brega.]

Virtual elimination of Italy's Red Sea fleet was disclosed after British imperial troops closing in sent an officer bearing a white flag into Massaua to demand its surrender. The British pointed out it was necessary to prevent scuttling of Italian ships and destruction of Massaua's port facilities in order to feed the civilian population of Asmara.

Italian Destroyers Scuttled

While the British awaited a reply from the Massaua garrison's Italian commander, news reached Cairo that the crews of the 1,526-ton Fascist destroyers Pantera and Tigre scuttled their vessels in the Red Sea off Saudi Arabia after taking the ships out of Massaua.

Three other Italian destroyers—the 1,526-ton Leone and the 1,058-ton Daniele Manin and Nazario Saure—already had been bombed and sunk by naval planes of the British Red Sea fleet, bringing to five, with a total tonnage of nearly 7,000, the number of Fascist destroyers lost since last Tuesday. Of the 900 men and officers aboard the destroyers, most were picked up and taken prisoners by the British.

R. A. F. planes pounded the advancing Axis columns to cover the withdrawal of British imperial forces north of Bengasi to strategic defensible areas in the Jebel Akhdar Mountains, shielding Derna, where a stand may be made against the new Axis Libyan offensive led by German panzer corps contingents.

Panzer Divisions Roll

It was learned that approximately two German panzer divisions, equipped with a large number of heavy tanks, were pushing up the east coast of the Gulf of Sidra in the Bengasi zone. Gen. Wavell evidently was disposing motorized detachments of his Army of the Nile in positions some miles north of Bengasi, where the first large-scale pitched battle between British and German forces since last spring's Flanders campaign may soon break out.

Authorities in Cairo voiced confidence in Wavall's ability to withstand whatever shock the Germans are preparing.

London Agrees With Gen. Wavell

By the Associated Press

London, April 4.—Openly unhappy about the Army of the Nile's withdrawal from Bengasi, informed British justified it today as part of a plan of elastic defense against the German armored divisions in Libya which probably will entail further British retreat across the Libyan hump.

The sudden Axis recoil against the new masters of Cirenaica is regarded widely as the start of a vast pincer movement, long delayed, aimed eventually at Suez from the west with the other prong menacing Yugoslavia and Greece.

After his brilliant string of victories along the northern African coast, Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of the imperial armies of the Middle East, had to decide whether to go on to Tripoli or to dig in at Cirenaica and send troops to strengthen other fronts.

Then came the Germans, understood now to total at least two armored divisions or some 20,000 men; ferried to Libya, Spanish reports relate, from Italy in the liners Rex, Conte Di Savoia and in other ships, after having been withdrawn from the French-Spanish border.

Since January 1 the admiralty has announced the sinking of 109,000 tons of enemy shipping by British submarines in the Mediterranean and observers say it is reasonable to assume that some of these ships carried German troops.

U. S. Betrayed By 'Judases,' Wheeler Says

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, April 4.—United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, asserted tonight that "in the midst of the Lenten season" the American people are "being betrayed into the arms of their enemies, the warlords, by modern Judases."

"Today, the betrayal," he said, "tomorrow, the crucifixion."

In a speech prepared for a downtown rally sponsored by the America First Committee—the first, he said, of a series intended to offset "Wall Street propaganda" in support of war—the Montana isolationist leader observed that "whoever wins the present conflict, there will be serious political, economic and social dislocations.

"Inflation will be followed by deflation. Opportunities will be fewer. Here lies the danger of Fascism in America."

Recalling the Congressional fight against the "lease-lend" bill, Wheeler said "there is nothing in it that authorizes the President to declare war or send convoys.

The American people have been "drugged" by the phrase, "short of war," Wheeler continued. "Only one final step remains—the people must be convinced that convoys is a move toward peace."

The time has come to "turn from foreign wars to American problems, to strengthen our own democracy," he said.

"There are still 6,000,000 unemployed, farm tenancy is still a social and economic problem and agriculture is still burdened with debt. Our senior citizens still lack security, slums continue to breed disease and crime. Hospitals, schools and homes must be built.

16 Survivors in Hospital Tell How Plane Crashed in Florida

Doctor Attended Other Injured, Nurse Relates

'Terrific Storm' Forced Landing, Captain Declares

By Mrs. Margaret Allen
As Told to United Press

Fort Pierce, Fla., April 4.—It was my first plane trip, and, speaking of peacock feathers, I had on a new hat and dress. I left my hat floating around in the Everglades and tore the hem on my dress.

I was sitting next to Harry Post. We were on our way to Durham, N. C., to bring Bill Tyre, a friend of ours, down to Miami Beach. Bill has had pneumonia, and he was coming down to visit the Posts and recuperate. I was going to nurse him.

They buckled my safety belt at Miami and I didn't take it off until after we hit. Anyhow, when it started to rain, I looked at Mr. Post and said, "I don't want to look out the window. I would rather look at you."

Five minutes after we got in the rain we began to spin around. Baggage and parcels flew all over the place. You couldn't see out the windows. The clouds were black, solid black. I couldn't see a thing.

I never dreamed we were crashing. The first I knew water was coming in the plane and I thought to myself, we're in the ocean. I didn't know we had crashed until then. I untied my safety belt when the water started coming in, and thought to myself, goodby to everything and everybody.

Two people climbed out of a broken window out on the wing. They thought we were in the ocean, too. Then I noticed the water was dirty and said to myself, it's the Everglades.

I suppose I'm the first woman who ever was glad to be sitting in muddy water.

I looked over at Mr. Post and couldn't see him. He was covered up with bags and parcels and I don't know what. Some man helped me uncover him. He popped up like a jack-in-the-box and said, "Hello."

There was no panic at all, except for the two who rushed out on the wing. I don't know exactly what we did. I was in great pain and I've never been so uncomfortable in my life.

I ruined my new dress, and left my hat in the Everglades. Mrs. George Crile, who was injured painfully, had a little hat with flowers and a veil on it. She fished it out of the water, and hung it up to dry.

When they came to get her out she wouldn't leave without her hat. "I can't go out with my head bare," she said.

Dr. Crile was semidelirious towards the end of our wait. When they came to get him he said, "I am Dr. George Crile, and I want a warm bath."

I was in such pain and I was worrying about the poor injured men. They were semidelirious during the night. And I could do nothing. I couldn't get up to help them.

Pilot Praised

Uniformly his passengers praised the way in which he handled the ship through the turbulent winds and set her down in the marshlands 10 miles west of here at about 9 a. m. yesterday.

Lying in bed at Fort Pierce with a broken leg, H. E. Post, of Miami, said the storm and resulting accident proved "one of the most terrifying experiences one could imagine."

"The weather was fine when we left West Palm Beach," he said, "but shortly afterward we hit the storm. Lightning began cracking all around us. It was black as pitch and the pilot was making every effort to go through.

"Suddenly, the plane seemed to hit something and we rocketed straight up. The motors seemed to go faster, then die. Then they caught up again. We dropped straight down. Capt. O'Brien did a beautiful job in landing so perfectly in impossible conditions."

Dr. George W. Crile, Cleveland surgeon, and Mrs. Crile, who escaped with injuries not considered serious, joined others in praising O'Brien's work in the emergency.

They also related how Dr. Daniel P. Quiring, Crile's aide at the Cleveland clinic, and Mrs. James M. Cox, jr., of Atlanta, daughter-in-law of the former Democratic Presidential nominee, ministered to more seriously injured passengers during the long waiting.

Congress Probe Begun

These and other details were picked up by Government representatives who pushed a two-sided investigation.

Three Civil Aeronautics Board men—Frank E. Caldwell, R. W. Crisp and James N. Peyton—questioned the passengers and crew. They scheduled a trip to the scene of the landing, but postponed a formal hearing, possibly for several days.

Representatives Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Kleberg (Democrat), of Texas, who just finished an investigation of the disastrous crash near Atlanta, February 27, arrived by plane to conduct a Congressional inquiry, but worked in executive session.

Turks, Greeks And Yugoslavs Seek Alliance

By the Associated Press

Istanbul, April 4.—Turkey, Yugoslavia and Greece, with Britain's blessing, are considering a mutual assistance alliance in a joint gamble to stop Germany if she starts a Balkan war, it was widely reported here tonight.

These reports were not confirmed, but they were accompanied by the calling of more Turks to arms and other defense measures which led observers to believe that war is closer than ever to this nation standing guard over the Dardanelles.

If these three small countries join in a Balkan front for mutual protection, observers pointed out, Germany would face war on three fronts in Bulgaria if she started a drive in either direction.

In this connection, it was reported that Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary now in Athens, is preparing to make a second trip to Turkey.

Officials said they knew of this report, but admitted British and Turkish staff talks in progress at Ankara will explore thoroughly all angles of Turkey's defense problem and may last for two weeks.

Turkey's new defense measures included the calling up of all men of the army classes of 1906 and 1907 who previously had been excused from training. They are to report April 8.

Antiparachute and air raid exercises were being conducted in villages all along the Bosporus and Dardanelles.

German Embassy Clerk Called Up By Draft Board

Philadelphia, April 4 (AP).—A clerk of the German Embassy in Washington has been called for military training under the Selective Service Act, George W. Allison, chief clerk of a Philadelphia draft board, disclosed today.

He is Dr. Hans Carl Heinz Sennhenn, 28, whose wife is the daughter of the late E. Pusey Passmore, onetime prominent Philadelphia financier.

Mrs. Sennhenn said she had forwarded the induction notice to Dr. Sennhenn in Washington. She said she thought he wanted to be deferred. The notice directed him to report here Thursday.

"Unless something turns up in the meantime," Allison added, "Dr. Sennhenn is going into the Army just like the rest of the boys called up."

Bristol Again Bombed After R. A. F. Forays

By the United Press

London (Saturday), April 5.—Western England was attacked by German raiders in bright moonlight last night and early today for the second consecutive night after a day in which R. A. F. fighters carried their offensive to the German-occupied sections of France and Belgium.

The Bristol port and industrial area bore the brunt of the Nazi attack and the United Press correspondent there reported that at least three of the raiders had been shot down in flames.

Large formations of invaders dropped hundreds of incendiaries on a west coast town. At least one raider was known to have been shot down.

London had an uneventful alarm during the evening after a quiet day in which single raiders machine-gunned places in northeast Scotland and northeast England. Two were reported shot down.

Nazi Battleships Attacked

The air ministry announced that R. A. F. bombers attacked the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau in the Harbor of Brest Thursday night and dumped high explosives in the port area.

Fighters in northern France and Belgium swept low over an airdrome from which German planes have been starting raids against the British Isles, the air ministry said, and fired machine gun bullets into buildings and runways. One R. A. F. fighter was missing.

Determined to prevent the 26,000-ton warship raiders from resuming their attacks on Atlantic convoys, R. A. F. bombers Thursday night made their second attack in five nights on Brest. High explosives fell on the dry dock where one of the ships is reported resting, the ministry said. Several fires were started.

While the R. A. F. concentrated its efforts on Brest, the German raiders resumed mass attacks during the night, dumping thousands of high explosives and incendiaries over a 150-mile-wide area in southwest England, around Bristol.

Casualty Lists Small

As the wreckage was cleared, casualty lists were shown to be small, considering the extent and intensity of the four-hour attack. Large numbers of fires were started, but not one was burning by the time the raid ended, the air ministry said.

The R. A. F. also made small-scale attacks on oil storage tanks at Rotterdam and the docks at Ostend Thursday, the ministry said.

Four planes failed to return from the Thursday night raids, the ministry reported. Two German planes were destroyed in the attack on southwest England and British planes at Brest shot down a Messerschmitt 110.

During the night of increased activity Thursday, London had its first after-dark alarm in two weeks. Another followed a short time later, but raiders failed to inflict damage on the central parts of the city either time.

Iraq's Army, Pro-British, Stages Coup

London, Saturday, April 5 (U.P.).—A military coup d'etat has overthrown the government of Iraq and set up a new regime pledged to a policy of nonbelligerency and support of Iraq's 1930 alliance with Britain, press dispatches said today.

The army coup was carried out Thursday, deposing the regent, Prince Abdul Illah, on "grounds of treason" and forcing him to flee to Basrah near the Persian Gulf, it was said.

The new "government of national defense" set up in Baghdad is headed by former Premier Rashid Ali Al-Gailani who, two months ago, stepped aside when Gen. Taha Al Hashimi, who had served under him as defense minister, became premier.

(Italian dispatches, giving an entirely different version of the Iraq coup, said a "pro-British" government had been overthrown and that Gen. Taha Al Hashimi had been eliminated as premier after anti-British demonstrations because of "continuous British meddling in the internal and foreign policies" of the nation of 4,500,000 population and 143,000 square miles of territory rich in oil.)

Premier Rashid Ali Al-Gailani was said to have announced the new regime would maintain the former government's policies, including nonbelligerency, observance of international engagements and the Anglo-Iraq alliance.

Texas Antistrike Law Signed by Governor

Austin, Tex., April 4 (AP).—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel signed into law today a bill making it a penitentiary offense to use violence or threats of violence in strikes or in preventing anyone from engaging in a lawful vocation. The measure became effective upon signing.

Nazis to Free 40,000 French Prisoners

By the United Press

Berlin, April 4.—Germany and unoccupied France today signed an agreement for the exchange of food surpluses and German authorities in Paris simultaneously agreed to release 40,000 French prisoners of war, the official German news agency announced.

(French dispatches from Vichy two weeks ago revealed that the food barter agreement with Germany, disclosure of which upset French hopes of receiving American wheat through the British blockade, had been concluded last October.)

The DNB in a Paris dispatch said that 40,000 of the estimated 1,600,000 to 2,000,000 French prisoners will be released as quickly as possible "in order to relieve the noticeable scarcity of skilled workers in occupied France."

Cabinet Discusses Coolness of U. S.

Vichy, April 4 (U.P.).—The French cabinet tonight was understood to have discussed reports from Washington that the United States' attitude toward helping feed the "hungerbelt" has cooled considerably in recent days.

An official spokesman said the Vichy government had as yet taken no decision regarding naval convoys for French ships to bring them through the British blockade.

However, he added, a "symbolic" convoying of food ships with a single destroyer will continue temporarily as it has for the past four months.

The drop in American enthusiasm was attributed to reports that four French ships which clashed with British warships off Algeria last Sunday were carrying material destined for Germany—which the French disputed—and publication of reports of the Franco-German barter agreement.

The cabinet was told that without American wheat delivered through the blockade a bread famine by June or July was inevitable.

Defense Needs Save Toolmaker From Jail

New Haven, Conn., April 4 (AP).—A toolmaker who pleaded guilty to an attempted assault upon a young woman escaped a jail term today because the Superior Court accepted the prosecutor's plea that the man's skill was essential to national defense.

Judge John A. Cornell sentenced William Sullivan, 40, to a year in jail, but suspended execution upon recommendation of State's Attorney Abraham S. Ullman.

Johnson Urges U.S. to Increase Mobile Force

Special Dispatch to The Post

Detroit, April 4.—The United States, while centering its activities on production of defense materials, has given too little thought to development of a "striking force," Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War, declared here today.

In an "Army Day" address to the Council of National Defense of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Johnson commended in general the progress made in the defense production program, but pictured the possibility of Britain losing the Battle of the Atlantic, then added:

"If power in the Atlantic passed to the Axis and they decided to make a dive at South America, their take-off points would probably be the African ports—Casablanca, which is just south of Gibraltar, and Dakar, which is on the shoulder of Africa nearest to Brazil.

"We might have to give assistance so that the African colonies and particularly the region around Dakar likewise could be held and so that they could be prevented from becoming bases of operations against us."

Denying any intent to suggest what the policy of the Government should be toward Africa and the Atlantic Islands but insisting that he knows "what the military requirements are," Johnson continued:

"Now we have not yet recognized that if we are to do this job, there must be in existence a mobile striking force capable of meeting and matching any counterforce which might wish to attack. The point I am making today is that we have not given enough though as yet to the development of that striking force.

"What we have done—and have done on the whole fairly well—is to accumulate material which that striking force may need. We have also created a general defense area in the United States and Canada, and we are making progress in extending this throughout the continent. This is defense; and it is properly handled by the General Staff and tby the Chief of Staff under the present organization. But we have not as yet worked up the mobile force which is also needed if we are to take care of our commitment to defend the united land from Greenland to Argentina."

Iowan Gets 40 Years In Slaying of Wife

Cresco, Iowa, April 4 (AP).—Charles A. Long, 42, convicted of killing his 25-year-old wife with a butcher knife last January 2, in an argument over a $3.50 dress bill, today was sentenced to 40 years in the State penitentiary.

He was found guilty of second-degree murder.

Texts of U. S. Notes on Axis Ship Protests

The texts of the United States notes rejecting the German and Italian protests against seizure of 30 merchant vessels and their crews in American waters follows:

The note from Secretary Hull to Hans Thomsen, Charge d'Affaires of Germany:

I am in receipt of your two notes dated March 31 and April 1, 1941, respectively, regarding the taking of possession and control of the German tanker Pauline Friedrich in the Port of Boston and the motorship Arauca at Port Everglades and the removal therefrom of the officers and crews.

I note your allegation that there is no legal basis in international law for the action taken and that it constitutes a violation of the existing treaty of friendship, commerce and consular rights, signed by our two governments December 8, 1923. You even go so far as to request that these vessels be restored to the "unlimited authority of the captains" and that the members of the crews be placed at "liberty immediately" and allowed "to return to and stay on board their ships," etc.

I am surprised at these extreme assertions and demands. In the first place, you do not state upon what principle of international law or upon what provision of the treaty between our two countries you rely, and, in the second place, you seem wholly to disregard the plain provisions of our statutes which make it a felony for the master or any other person in charge or command of a vessel, foreign or domestic, or for any member of the crew or other person, within the territorial waters of the United States, willfully to cause or permit the destruction or injury of such a vessel or to tamper with its motive power or instrumentalities of navigation; and which authorize the authorities of this Government to take possession and control of any vessel and and remove therefrom the officers and crew when such action is deemed to be necessary to protect the vessel from damage or injury or to prevent damage or injury to any harbor or waters of the United States.

Cites International Law

I know of no principle of international law which permits the masters or crews of vessels of a country which have sought refuge in or entered the ports of another country to commit acts of destruction in disregard of local law and of the hospitality which they have been permitted to enjoy; nor is there any provision in the treaty between our two countries which lends even color of support to any such argument. It would indeed be unthinkable that any civilized nation would become a party to a treaty containing any such provision or that it would subscribe to any so-called principle of international law which would permit foreign vessels to be brought to its harbors and roadsteads and there willfully damaged and wrecked in violation of law and to the detriment of navigation and even the safety of its harbors without restraint or hindrance by the local sovereign.

On one of the vessels here in question the auxiliary machinery was smashed and the main propelling machinery was deliberately wrecked; and if the scuttling and burning of ships in other harbors of this continent may be regarded as indicative of what might be expected in our ports, it is difficult to see how your government could expect this government to be oblivious to the situation presented.

An inquiry is being made concerning other features of your complaint and I shall communicate with you regarding them at a later date.

Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.

CORDELL HULL.

The note from Hull to Don Ascanio dei Principi Colonna, Italian Ambassador:

The Secretary of State presents his compliments to His Excellency the Royal Italian Ambassador and has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of his two communications dated March 31 and April 1, 1941, concerning the taking of possession and control of certain Italian merchant vessels lying in ports of the United States and the removal therefrom of the officers and crews.

The law of the United States makes it a felony for the master or any person in charge or command of a vessel within the territorial waters of the United States, or for any member of the crew or other person, willfully to cause or permit the destruction or injury of such vessel or to tamper with its motive power or instrumentalities of navigation. It also authorizes the authorities of the Government of the United States to take possession and control of any vessel and to remove therefrom the officers and crews when such action is deemed to be necessary to protect the vessel from damage or injury or to prevent damage or injury to any harbor or waters of the United States.

25 of 27 Need Repairs

Of the 27 Italian vessels in ports of continental United States, 25 of them were so badly damaged that extensive repairs in shipyards will be necessary to render possible their navigation. These concerted and widespread acts of destruction on the part of officers and crews in violation of specific provisions of the statutory laws of the United States, and at a time when the vessels were enjoying the hospitality and protection of our ports cannot be viewed with equanimity. The Italian Ambassador must have overlooked the gravity of the situation when, in his communication of March 31, he registered a protest against the action on the part of the Federal authorities with respect to "Italian properties and nationals."

With respect to the Ambassador's specific inquiry as to the views and intentions of the Government of the United States regarding the ships and their crews, the Ambassador is informed that this matter is now receiving the attention of the appropriate authorities of the Government and will be determined in the light of the law and the pertinent facts.

The Secretary of State will communicate with the Ambassador concerning the other questions raised by him as soon as advices thereon shall have been received from the authorities directly concerned.

Doctor Held For Beating Wife to Death

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

MRS. ELIZABETH MAYO, 32, testified yesterday in Bathe, Me., that she had received "love notes" from Dr. Merrill E. Joss, held for slaying his doctor-wife

By the Associated Press

Bath, Me., April 4.—Municipal Judge Gardiner Deering found probable cause today for holding Dr. Merrill E. Joss, 31, for the June term of superior court on a charge of wife-murder.

There was not testimony offered in behalf of the 31-year-old physician accused of savagely beating to death his 36-year-old wife, Dr. Luverne Harris Joss, a Jackson, Ala., native, in their home at nearby Richmond on March 27.

The State rested on the testimony of three witnesses, one of them characterized by the prosecution as the "woman in the case"—pretty Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman Mayo, 32, who told of having received a "love note" from Dr. Joss a few hours before the slaying.

New 25-Ton Tank Rolls At Aberdeen

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Correspondent

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., April 4.—The most formidable weapon yet produced for the Army's new mechanized might—a 25-ton tank carrying a heavy field gun—was unveiled here today.

Members of the British purchasing mission, munitions makers and the press attended the first public demonstration of the "medium" tank, M-3, the new mobile fort which Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, chief of Army ordnance, told the visitors was the "most powerfully armed and swiftest of its class in existence."

Besides a 75-millimeter gun—shorter barreled version of the Army's present basic field artillery weapon—the new tank carries a 37-millimeter cannon and four machine guns. Rapid-fire demonstration of all guns were given by the charging vehicle against a radio-controlled tank used as a target.

John D. Biggers, production manager of OPM, who was present, said that the Chrysler Corporation's new tank plant will be turning out the vehicles at the rate of 14 a day, on a three-shift basis, before the end of the year and in lesser numbers by summer. Counterparts of the pilot model shown here could be produced now, he said, but for diversion of machine tools needed for warplane and machine-gun production for Britain.

The Army also disclosed a new model light tank, which weighs 13½ tons and carries a 37-millimeter cannon and five machine guns. Manufactured by the American Car & Foundry Co., Berwick, Pa., it has heavier armor plate than the light tank now in general use.

A new 155-millimeter gun, containing a 27-foot-long barrel which fires a shell 12 miles, was likewise put on view, together with a 105-millimeter howitzer and half-tracked armored scout vehicle. Production is getting under way on all of the weapons, Army officials said.

The new 25-ton tank, seven tons heavier than its predecessor, makes "upward of 25 miles an hour," it was officially explained, and can keep up a steady rain of its heavy firepower. Its biggest gun is practically fired in the lap of the gunner by periscope sight, a secret device which permits remarkable accuracy. Normally a crew of five, with elaborate fire-control arrangements, are required for such a field gun.

A crew of seven operates the tank, two for the big gun, one for the cannon, a driver, radio operator machine gunner and commander. The 75 is mounted on the right side of the vehicle about eye level in a movable mount, while the 37 and two machine guns are in a revolving cast-steel turret, which is offset to the left and is surmounted by an observation "cupola."

Army Ordnance officials said that the American Locomotive Co. and Baldwin Locomotive Co. were also about to go into production with the new tank. The pilot model exhibited, however, was built by the Rock Island Arsenal.

Army's Newest Tank

Night Marauder Sought by Police

tain whether details in the cases were similar.

It was generally agreed by investigators last night that Friday morning's two crimes have no connection with the unsolved slaying of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz, 25, who was attacked and strangled March 8 at 1901 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

Long had recovered sufficiently late yesterday to tell police of his attack. He said he was aroused from sleep by the screams of his wife, Mrs. Ruth B. Long, 30, in time to see a man bending over her. He said he made a lunge toward the intruder but the man escaped through a window.

Saw "Shadow Figure"

Long said he did not know he had been struck until he saw blood streaming from his head and the bloody rock on the bed.

Mrs. Long, however, said she awoke to see a "shadow figure" by the bedroom window, but before she could scream, the man told her to "keep quiet or I'll shoot you."

She said the man approached her side of the bed, sat down and began stroking her face, chin and throat "with a very soft and cold hand."

Mrs. Long said she expected her husband to awaken for she did not know he had been injured. When she screamed, Mr. Long roused from semiconsciousness and lunged at his assailant who fled, she stated.

It was discovered that the intruder entered through the bedroom window, about 2 feet from the ground. He moved several potted plants and raised a Venetian blind, it was said.

The apartment was not ransacked and investigation showed that nothing had been taken.

Purse Stolen

Mrs. Kneeland, a Census Bureau employe, said she awoke to find her head and pillow covered with blood and a large rock near her head. She said she screamed but saw no one.

Her shouts aroused Lillian Earle, a colored maid, who was asleep on a daybed in a hallway between the bedroom and the living room of the two-room apartment.

The maid said when she jumped from her bed she saw a shadow disappear out a living-room window.

Mrs. Kneeland's purse, containing her pay envelope with $25 and $9 besides, were taken from the arm of a sofa in the living room.

Police said the intruder entered through a window in the parlor and walked past the sleeping maid to reach Mrs. Kneeland's bedroom. He escaped the same way, it was said.

The woman's apartment faces Fifteenth Street and iron bars protect the bedroom windows. The Long apartment, however, overlooks an areaway which runs from Belmont Street to an alley behind the building.

Police believe both attacks were the work of a madman, reasoning that had the intruder been bent on robbery alone he would not have hampered his movements by carrying the heavy stones.

British Ships Go Into Mediterranean

La Linea, Spain, April 4 (U.P.).—A British naval force, of a cruiser, four destroyers, three aircraft carriers and a large troopship loaded with Colonial and "Free French" forces, sailed from Gibraltar into the Mediterranean late today, the Spanish Mencheta Agency reported.

Plane Pact Approved By Mexican Senate

Mexico City, April 4 (AP).—The Mexican Senate approved today an agreement between Mexico and the United States providing reciprocal transit of the military planes of both countries.

The agreement permits United States Army and Navy planes to fly the length of Mexico, utilizing Mexican air fields en route for refueling and repair. Mexican planes now may use United States air fields.

We're 'Fellow Citizens' To the Australians

Sydney, April 4 (AP).—Australia removed today restrictions on movements of United States and Greek citizens in Australia.

Previously under the war regulations all non-British subjects were required to obtain special permits to move outside the metropolitan area. Americans and Greeks now will be treated as "fellow citizens."

Premarital Health Test Voted in Delaware

Dover, Del., April 4 (AP).—A bill requiring pre-marital physical examinations in Delaware was approved unanimously today by the State Senate and sent to the House for action. Other adjacent States already have such marriage regulations.

Goat Gets Drunk On Moonshine Dug Up by Policeman

Birmingham, Ala., April 4 (AP).—Patrolman H. L. Thompson is fully convinced goats are a nuisance.

He was digging in a backyard for a cache of moonshine liquor when the goat spied him. The animal charged from the rear, landing with full force.

Thompson pushed him away and went on digging to get out 6 quarts of moonshine. He poured most of it out and the goat lapped up enough to get on a fine jag.

The goat's owner called police and complained that the animal had a hangover and Thompson had to explain to his fellow officers.

Serbs Mobilized, Bridges Mined

ing the "entire military might of the kingdom of Yugoslavia" was issued April 1, but it was made public for the first time in Saturday's morning newspapers.

It reads:

"I, Peter II, by the grace of God and the wish of the people, King of Yugoslavia, on suggestion of the minister of war and navy and in accordance with the decision of the council of ministers . . . order the entire military might of the Kingdom of Yugoslavia to be put in a state of readiness beginning April 1."

Military experts said this was tantamount to complete mobilization. During the last four days it has been apparent that in every city, town and hamlet in the entire country every available man is being called to the colors.

[From Budapest, Hungary, it was reported that the Yugoslav-Hungarian frontier had been closed, and that bridges and roads at the border had been mined by the Yugoslavs. Budapest newspapers published stories that a motorized Yugoslav division across the frontier from Mohacs was "ready for attack."]

The Yugoslav army took over the entire railway system tonight, even ejecting civilian passengers from trains already made up as it sped to meet the threat of war with Germany.

Belgrade thrilled to a rumor, not officially confirmed, that a German military plane had been seen flying over the city at 6,000 feet.

A message received here early today said Hungarian towns near the Yugoslav frontier had been blacked out on orders from Budapest.

Belgrade had two short practice blackouts during the night, and a special decree forbade anyone to leave the city without a police permit.

Communists distributed leaflets on the streets demanding that the government make a mutual assistance pact with Russia after "tearing to bits the treacherous agreement whereby this country joined the tripartite pact," signed by the former regime."

The Reichswehr, massed already on the Yugoslavian borders of Rumania and Bulgaria, appeared in mechanized force at a new point: On the Hungarian-Yugoslavian frontier at Szeged, about 100 miles due north of Belgrade.

Travelers from Hungary said a full motorized division with tanks, trucks, light field artillery and hundreds of motorcycles mounted with machine guns paraded through Budapest yesterday, then moved directly down the Szeged road.

Other German concentrations are on the Rumanian border, about 50 miles east of this capital; still others line the Bulgar frontier to the south.

Terror Tactics

At Zagreb, authorities announced tonight that "paid foreign agents" had been trying to terrify residents of the Croatian capital into flight to congest highways.

(Reports from France in the days of her defeat told of similar tactics by Fifth Columnists to hamper military movements.)

The police announcement said that agents in officers' uniforms had been going from home to home, warning householders that Comitaji (Serb guerrilla) forces were descending on the city.

Bulgaria ordered all her nationals to return home immediately, but it appeared they would have to go by automobile unless the Yugoslav government supplies a special Bulgarian legation train.

Railroad officials said it was possible that one train a day on each line might be permitted tomorrow for hospital cases and other emergency civilian travel.

The defense preparations halted the movement of rail freight through Yugoslavia to Italy and Germany which, reliable sources said, includes some Rumanian oil. One informant said oil tank cars lined the Rumanian side of the Yugoslav frontier for several miles tonight.

Much Bulgarian, Rumanian and even Hungarian goods normally is shipped through Yugoslavia, especially for Italy.

Tonight, however, every train was a troop train. Passengers sitting in a train in the Belgrade station waiting to depart were unceremoniously put out onto the platform.

Italians Woo Macek

Most Germans, including the diplomatic mission, and many Italians already have departed.

Italian diplomats remaining here said they still held some hopes of acting as peacemakers, their latest attempt being to ask the Croat leader, Vice Premier Vladimir Macek, to go to Rome to listen to the ideas of Premier Mussolini.

Church to Hear Wheaton Glee Club Friday

Now on an Eastern tour, the Wheaton College Women's Glee Club, of Wheaton, Ill., will sing on Good Friday at 7:45 p. m. at Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A Streets Northeast.

Palm Sunday will be the last opportunity to hear Evangelist Bronen Davies Clifford. His closing messages tomorrow will be "The Will of God" and "What the Black Deacon Preached."

First. There will be morning services tomorrow at 9:45 and at 11 a. m. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden will preach on "Worthy to Receive Honor and Blessing." At the first service, Ruth Reumann Hall, contralto, will sing "Ride On, Ride On, In Majesty," by Scott, and the youth choir will sing "In Joseph's Lovely Garden," by Dickinson. At the second service the senior choir, directed by Harwood Hall, will sing "Jerusalem," by Parker, and "The Palms," by Faure. At the 8 o'clock evening service the senior choir will give the sacred cantata, "The Crucifixion," by Stainer. Charles Stebbins, tenor, minister of music at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will be the guest soloist. Other solo selections will be taken by Herbert Denler, barytone.

Calvary. Dr. W. S. Abernethy will preach tomorrow morning on the subject, "He Is Gentle." The children's story sermon topic will be "Trash." "When Jesus Wept" will be the subject of the evening sermon. Dr. Abernethy will be assisted at the latter service by Mary Haslacker and Harry Zichterman.

East Washington Heights. "Humiliation and Exultation" will be the sermon theme of the Rev. Glenn B. Faucett at the 11 a. m. Palm Sunday Communion service.

North Washington. The Rev. Henry J. Smith will speak on "God's Personal Call" at the morning service tomorrow.

Chevy Chase. A Palm Sunday message will be given at the morning service on "What Means Palm Sunday?" The Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, will preach. The chorus choir under the direction of Howard Moore will sing, "Jerusalem," by Parker. Mr. Moore will render a solo, "The Palms," by Faure.

Takoma Park. The Rev. William E. La Rue will deliver a Palm Sunday sermon at the morning service and the senior choir will render two Palm Sunday anthems. This will mark the close of the pre-Easter services.

The annual solemn service will be held on Good Friday at 7:45 p. m. Baptism will be administered to several candidates. Communion will be observed. The Rev. Mr. La Rue will speak on "The Seven Words From the Cross." The senior choir will sing selections from "The Crucifixion," by Stainer.

Dr. McCartney To Conduct 2 Special Services

Two special services will commemorate Palm Sunday at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning. Dr. Albert J. McCartney will speak on "The Twelve Golden Spoons," at the first service at 9:30 and receive members of the Easter communicants' class into the church. The three church choirs will take part.

At the 11 o'clock service Dr. McCartney's sermon will be "Jesus Christ, the Victor." The quartet and chancel choir, under the direction of Theodore Schaefer, minister of music, will present a special program of music. The Covenant Fellowship will meet at 6 o'clock for a social and supper hour.

Pilgrims'. The Rev. Andrew R. Bird will preach at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "The Seeking Savior," and at 7:45 p. m. will give a third sermon in the series entitled "Encouragements to Trust God," speaking on "The Seeking Spirit."

Metropolitan. There will be special music in keeping with Palm Sunday tomorrow. Dr. J. L. Fendrich, jr., will speak at the 11 o'clock service on "The Shadow of the Cross." For the service he has chosen the subject, "The All Providing Power."

Chevy Chase. "The Central Figure" will be the subject of Dr. J. A. Hollister's sermon at the 11 a. m. worship service tomorrow. The adult choir will sing "Jerusalem," by Parker, and "List the Cherubic Host," by Gaul. "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Knapp, will be sung by Charles E. Stebbins, tenor, director of the choir, and Louise Bernheimer Ehrman will play "The Palms," by Faure, on the violoncello.

The adult choir will sing Stainer's "Crucifixion" at the 5 o'clock vesper service, under Stebbins' direction, with Kenneth W. Frisbie at the organ.

Conference to Meet

The Baptist Ministers Conference of Washington and vicinity will meet on Monday at 11 a. m. at Calvary Baptist Church. The speaker of the day will be Representative J. Edgar Chenoweth, of Colorado.

College Girls to Sing Here Good Friday

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., who will sing on Good Friday evening at Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A Streets Northeast

Palm Sunday Services Tomorrow Will Begin Holy Week Observance Here

By Robert Tate Allan.
The Post Church Editor

Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem over a palm-strewn path almost 2,000 years ago will be dramatized here tomorrow when Palm Sunday launches Christianity's most sacred celebration—Holy Week.

Many churches again will hold additional services to accommodate the throng of worshipers who will hear the traditional "Palms" and other anthems, cantatas and hymns in floral-decorated houses of worship.

Masses, with distribution and blessing of palms, will highlight Catholic services. Many Protestant bodies will have Holy Communion, confirmations, baptisms, receptions of new members, pageants and plays.

Meanwhile, Washington is anticipating its most significant city-wide Good Friday observance in years, as many business firms have responded to the appeals by civic and religious leaders for a three-hour recess for employes who wish to attend services.

Among the high spots of the Catholic Palm Sunday services will be the presentation of Dvorak's "Stabat Mater," at 8:30 p. m., at St. Matthew's Cathedral by the choir, augmented by 12 additional singers. Dr. Malton Boyce is director. He selected the "Stabat Mater," it is said, because it is especially adapted for Holy Week and was written for Palm Sunday use.

The principal Palm Sunday mass at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception will be at 11 o'clock, instead of 8, as heretofore, it was announced yesterday by Catholic University officials.

Dr. William J. Lallou will speak tomorrow at 4 p. m. in McMahon Hall at Catholic University on "The Liturgical Drama of Holy Week." Dr. Lallou is associate professor of sacred liturgy on the university faculty. The lecture is open to the public.

At Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, on American University campus, the children's sanctuary choir will make its debut in new red and white vestments, singing "The Palms."

Dr. Brooks to Preach Palm Sunday Sermon

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Universalist National Memorial Church, Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister, will preach a Palm Sunday sermon on "The Most Important Thing In Living Our Life." The choir will sing "Palm Branches," by Faure, and "Surely He Hath Borne Our Grief," by Handel. At 10 a. m. the church school will hold its Palm Sunday service.

At 4:30 p. m. Jessie Masters, director, and the National Capital Choir will present "Olivet to Calvary," by Maunder. The Young People's Christian Union meets at 7 for Fellowship and at 8 o'clock Mr. Gregory Moyer will conduct a worship service and speak to the group on "Palm Sunday and the Last Week in Jesus' Life."

The Church of Two Worlds

"Meeting Our Gethsemanes" will be the subject of the Rev. H. Gordon Burroughs at the Palm Sunday service tomorrow evening at the Hotel Continental. The midweek service will be held on Wednesday evening.

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This noted woman hymn writer never sat down deliberately to write a hymn. She waited till her inspiration came, and then wherever she was jotted down her thoughts. Though she was never physically strong, she was gifted and beautiful, and every hymn is full of her great spiritual strength and loveliness.

Third Christian Church Pastor Will Return

The Rev. C. N. Williams, of Third Christian Church, will return to his pulpit tomorrow. He has been in Florida the past three months, due to the ill health of Mrs. Williams. The subject of his sermon will be "Whom Do We Try to Please?"

Ninth Street. "The Church of the Future" will be the subject of the sermon by the ad interim pastor, Lowell C McPherson, at the 11 o'clock worship and communion service tomorrow.

National City. Dr. Raphael H. Miller will preach a Palm Sunday sermon tomorrow on "Ride On, O King Eternal." The chorus choir will sing "Lo, a Great Multitude," by Norris, and Mrs. Pauline Holcomb and Mrs. Emily R. Tooley will sing the duet by Scott, "Ride On, Ride On." Mrs. J. Horace Smithey, at the organ, will play the "Prelude" from Sonata in F minor, by Rheinberger; chorale prelude, "Sing, My Tongue," by Edmunson, and "The Palms," by Faure.

Columbia Heights. Dr. James A. Crain, of Indianapolis, will continue his special series of sermons. His topics for Palm Sunday will be, morning, "The Validity of the Christian Program," and evening, "The Meaning of Faith."

Park View. "Receiving the King" will be the subject of the Rev. J. Lloyd Black at 11 a. m. At 8 p. m. an Easter pageant, "Trumpets at Dawn," will be presented by members of the church school, assisted by the church choir.

Lutherans to Link Confirmation With Palm Sunday Services

Confirmation, traditionally linked with Palm Sunday by Lutherans, will highlight many services of that denomination here tomorrow.

Takoma. "Confirmation Memories" will be the title of the sermon which the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer will present at tomorrow's Palm Sunday confirmation service.

Christ. The rite of confirmation will be observed at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow. It will be performed by the Rev. J. Fredric Wenchel. His address will be on "The Lord Is My Shepherd." The annual roll call service will be held in the evening at 7 o'clock. The pastor will speak on "The Value of a Definite Choice." Maunder's cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," will be sung by the choir assisted by Edwin Steffe, barytone of the Washington Cathedral choir, and George Anderson, tenor of St. Margaret's Church choir, and will be under the direction of John B. Wilson, A. A. G. O., organist and choirmaster.

St. Mark's. A feature of the Palm Sunday service will be the confirmation of a class of young people.

St. Stephen's. The pastor's first confirmation class will be received into church membership tomorrow. Thirty-six young boys and girls are in the class, the largest to be received in one year.

Augustana. Palm Sunday will be observed tomorrow. At the service at 11 a. m., Dr. A. O. Hjelm will preach on "A Memorial to Christ" and the church choir will render "The Palms," by Faure; Christiansen's "Beautiful Saviour" and "Ride On in Majesty," by Scott.

Reformation. The congregation announces Palm Sunday services tomorrow at 8:30, 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., with services each noon from 12 to 12:20 of Holy Week and each evening at 8.

At the 8 o'clock service tomorrow evening Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, the pastor, will speak on "God and a Man's Yesterdays." At the close of the service the Holy Communion will be administered.

St. Paul's. A class of young people will be confirmed tomorrow morning by Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, and adults will be received into the fellowship of the congregation. The theme of the sermon will be "Talking Stones." The choir will sing "Ride On! Ride On, in Majesty," by Scott, and "Jerusalem," by Parker.

Luther Place Memorial. Two identical morning services, at 9 and 11 o'clock, will mark Palm Sunday's festivities. Palm will be distributed to all worshipers, and Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, pastor, will preach on "The Cross Was His Own." The choir will sing "Hosanna! Blessed Is He," by Merryatt, and "The Palms," by Faure.

Georgetown. "Christ Comes to Washington," will be the subject on Palm Sunday, 11 a. m., in Georgetown Lutheran Church, the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor.

Emory Church To Dedicate New Furniture

Dedication of the new pulpit furniture and opening of the church after complete redecorating will be features of the Palm Sunday services tomorrow at Emory Methodist Church.

The pulpit furniture is of solid Honduras mahogany and consists of the usual eight pieces and two hymn-boards. It is a gift from J. Edward Fowler as a memorial to the late Mrs. Fowler, who was a leader in the activities of her church and in the District for a generation.

At the morning services Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman will assist the Rev. Horace E. Cromer, pastor. Holy Week services will be held each evening next week.

Foundry. Two identical Palm Sunday morning services will be held at 9:45 and 11 a. m. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, the pastor, will have for his sermon subject, "Christ Comes Into the Capital." The anthems to be sung at the morning services are "The Day He Rode As King," by Booth, and "Palm Branches," by Faure. Solo parts will be sung by Nancy Thielson Fisher, soprano, of New York City.

At 8 p. m., the oratorio, by Dubois, "The Seven Last Words," will be rendered by the augmented chorus choir with Mrs. Fisher, Holmes Ambrose and Justin Lawrie as soloists.

Mount Vernon. Dr. John W. Rustin will preach at double services tomorrow in celebration of Palm Sunday, at 9 and 11 a. m. His subject will be "Can We Understand the Cross?" The services will be identical. The children who have completed instruction given by Dr. Rustin will be received into membership, and infants will be baptized at the 11 o'clock service. The choir will sing Deane Shure's anthem, "Triumphal Entry," from "The Atonement."

The Rev. Wilber H. Wilson will preach on the topic "The Parting of the Way," at the service of the junior church, in the chapel, at 11 o'clock.

Lincoln Road. The Rev. W. D. Keene will preach at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow on "Making Christ King."

Lewis Memorial. The congregation will observe Palm Sunday with special music and sermons. The Rev. H. R. Deal will use as his morning subject "Praise and Practice in the Victory March."

Douglas. The Rev. William F. Wright, assisted by his son, the Rev. Harold Wright, will conduct services tomorrow. At the morning service the sermon topic will be "The Triumphant Entry." New members will be received along with those to be baptized. The vested choir will sing "The Palms," by Faure, and "Ride On, Ride On," by Scott.

Trinity. At the 11 a. m. service Miss Emma Louise Thompson, organist-director, will give as prelude Rogers' "Allegro." Faure's "The Palms" will be sung by the senior choir. The sermon theme will be "Palms and Proclamations."

Congress Street. Maunder's cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," will be presented by the choir tomorrow at 8 p. m.

The Rev. Dorsey K. Sturgis will continue the Lenten series of sermons on "Christian Certainties in a Changing World" at the 11 a. m. service when he will preach on "Divine Passion."

Metropolitan. At 11 a. m. tomorrow the Children's Sanctuary Choir, in their new red and white vestments, will make their first appearance, chanting one of the responses and singing the festival anthem, "The Palms."

Hamline. "The Pageant-Parable" will be the subject of the Palm Sunday sermon by Dr. H. W. Burgan tomorrow at 11 a. m. At 8 p. m. a worship service and symposium, sponsored by the Hamline young people, will be held. The topic will be "Youth Looks at Holy Week."

Wesley. The Rev. J. Luther Neff will preach at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow on "The Christian Triumph." The choir, under the direction of Marie Little, organist and director, will sing "Ride On, Ride On, in Majesty," by Scott, and "Jerusalem," by Parker. "The Palms," by Faure, will be sung by John Murtaugh.

Waugh. Palm Sunday will be observed with appropriate sermons, and music by the choir.

Petworth. Dr. Chesteen Smith will be the guest preacher at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow. His subject will be "The Triumphal Entry." "Lift High the Triumph Song Today" will be the processional for the three choirs of 85 voices.

Francis Asbury. Dr. Robin Gould will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "He Came Unto His Own" and at 8 p. m. on "The Birthright of the Godly."

At 5:45 p. m. Sunday the monthly tea-sup will be held at the church. Circle No. 6 of the W. S. C. S. and the Belle Bennett Circle will prepare the food. The young people will be hosts.

There will be Holy Week services daily, Monday through Friday, at 8 p. m.

First. The evangelistic services being conducted by Glenn W. Wagner and the Laymen's Evangelistic Association will close tomorrow.

Union. Dr. John R. Edwards will preach at 11 a. m. tomorrow, bringing a Palm Sunday message. His sermon topic is "Plaudits That Hold." The choir will sing Faure's anthem, "Palm Branches," and Mrs. Helen Turley, guest soloist, will sing the offertory.

McKendree. The Rev. Samuel E. Rose will preach on "His Way of Greatness" at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Rhode Island Avenue. Dr. E. A. Sexsmith will have as the theme for the Palm Sunday sermon tomorrow morning "The Challenge of the King." The special music will include "The Palms," by Faure, sung by the choir with Frank Connolly as the soloist.

Eldbrooke. Dr. Walter M. Michael will preach at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow on "Keeping Palm Sunday Triumphant." The sacrament of baptism will be administered to a number of infants at this service.

Salter Waits For U. S. to Ask About Convoys

Sir Arthur Salter, who has come to Washington as a trouble shooter in connection with Great Britain's shipping needs, said last night that he was prepared to give Britain's views on the question of American convoys.

"But this is such an important matter of American foreign policy," he said, "that I would not raise the question. If the American Government raises it, I am prepared to give our views to the American Government."

Sir Arthur, who is undersecrtary of the British shipping ministry, said that Britain could "outwear" Nazi Germany provided that she could drew on America and the dominions for supplies. The key to that, he said, was shipping.

"The Battle of the Atlantic is now engaged," he said. "It is a grave and serious battle."

Bombers Vs. U-Boats

He said that, while German U-boats have been bagging most of the British and allied ships, the German bombers were becoming more and more a menace. This rivalry, he said, was likely to increase during the summer months, with the bombers continuing to "creep up" on the submarines' score.

Sir Arthur said that Britain right now could use all the ships that the United States could spare. Looking to the future, he said he hoped the shipbuilding program in this country would be "greater than the figure heretofore published." Told about President Roosevelt's announcement earlier about a new order for 212 ships, the British visitor said he had not taken that into account in making his statement.

Sir Arthur said that the Germans had so far sunk in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 tons of shipping.

That, he said, left Britain about 25,000,000 tons. This, he was careful to point out, included ships owned by Britain, Allied ships and ships acquired by capture or charter.

Travel by Devious Routes

The situation, he emphasized, could not be appreciated unless many factors were kept in mind. It should be remembered, he said, that in peacetime a third of Britain's imports were carried in foreign ships.

Today, he said, many merchant ships are being used by the royal navy, some as armed cruisers. Many others, he said, are engaged in carrying troops and supplies to the Middle East and other points. Not only did they have to travel long distances, he said, but they had to travel by "devious routes" and also in slow-moving convoys.

Britain's problem is further complicated, he said, by the fact that the Germans have cut off her supplies from the continent and from Norway and Denmark, sources which were available to her in the World War

Quotes World War Figures

He said that, on the basis of sinkings since last summer, Germany is now destroying about 5,000,000 tons of shipping a year. Therefore, he said, Britain, with the help of the United States, had to turn out ships fast enough to replace these losses.

The two countries could do it, he said, if they ever reached the production capacity achieved in the World War. Then Britain was turning out 1,500,000 tons a year, and the United States (by 1919) 4,000,000 tons a year.

Sir Arthur said that Britain had not yet achieved the World War capacity. He said her output was somewhere around 1,000,000 tons a year. American production is said to be about the same, but with prospects of going up sharply in the future.

Goldfish, Kept Alive on Bicarb, Burps His Last

Kansas City, April 4 (AP).—Nutzy, the temperamental goldfish that was bathed in bicarbonate of soda to stay alive, has passed on to clearer waters.

Several months ago, Nutzy appeared ready to kick up his fins. His owner, Miss Mary Graham Minor, tried many remedies—but Nutzy remained pale.

As a last resort, bicarbonate of soda was dropped in his bowl. Color returned to Nutzy's gills.

But he suffered a relapse. Six times his owner spiked the water with bicarb. He weakly rallied with each dose. When Miss Minor was called from the room yesterday, Nutzy died.

It must have been something he ate.

Welfare Workers Robbed of $7,000

Tacoma, April 4 (AP).—Two welfare workers, Joe Lee and Gene Ryan, emerging from a downtown bank with $7,000 in cash for relief recipients, were forced at gunpoint into an automobile today, taken to Titlow Beach, robbed and then released by their bandit kidnappers.

Home Guards

States that have failed to provide themselves with constabularies since the mobilization of the National Guard are virtually inviting trouble. Congress passed an act last October to authorize and facilitate the creation of home guards for the maintenance of local order under emergency conditions. Yet Secretary Stimson lists only nine States that have requisitioned arms and ammunition from the Army for newly organized home guards. No reports have been received at the War Department from 14 other States known to have taken some step toward setting up such local protective forces.

Actually many States appear to have done nothing to replace their National Guard units. If disorders beyond the control of police break out within their borders, their chief executives will thus be as helpless as was Gov. Heil of Wisconsin this week in dealing with strike disorders. Secretary Stimson referred to Gov. Heil's request for Federal aid in meeting the situation as a "piteous appeal." Obviously State Governors should be in a position to maintain order within their respective jurisdictions without relying upon or waiting for Federal intervention. But Wisconsin, though authorizing a home guard, finds it not yet ready for service. State officials would do well to remember that constabularies on order are of little use in quelling riots and that after disturbances have broken out, it is very late to begin considering the establishment of a new agency to keep the peace.

Power To Commandeer

Secretary Stimson's warning that the patience of the Government should not be mistaken for weakness plainly suggests that the War Department may be preparing to commandeer strike-bound plants in which defense equipment is awaiting completion. When private operation of such plants breaks down, there is no alternative to Government operation for the period of the emergency. During World War I, President Wilson took over a number of factories and set their machinery in motion under military control. If the necessity arises, public opinion will not only support but will also demand similar action by President Roosevelt. And the President's comments at his press conference yesterday indicates that he will act vigorously when and if the powers of persuasion fail.

Authorities differ as to whether plants may be taken over under the present law because of labor stoppages. The Selective Service Act gives the President ample power to deal with employers who refuse to cooperate in the defense program. Their plants may be seized if they refuse to give preference to Government orders or to produce equipment sought by the Army and Navy at reasonable prices. But the law is silent as to what action should be taken when an employer who is willing to manufacture the required weapons or supplies finds his factory closed by a strike. Perhaps the existing law could be construed as covering any failure of a defense plant to operate expeditiously, yet the uncertainty surrounding this point may be one reason why no strike-bound plant has yet been taken over.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee recently introduced a bill to resolve this doubt in favor of the Government. He rightly points out that interference with the defense program is just as detrimental to our national security when caused by employes as when caused by industrial managements. His bill would authorize the President to commandeer plants whenever investigators should find that "an existing or threatened failure of production" might delay or impede the rearmament effort. In the interest of clarifying a power that the Administration may find it necessary to use, enactment of the Vinson amendment is, in our opinion, desirable.

It is true, of course, that labor problems are not automatically solved by the seizure of private manufacturing plants. Expert management must be provided as well as labor. By taking over a plant the Government merely substitutes itself for the private employer. It then faces the necessity of dealing with the employes in some way, and if it should yield to unreasonable demands the precedent might encourage others to strike to obtain the same benefits. For that reason the power to commandeer private factories for the period of the emergency will doubtless be used with great restraint. Nevertheless, our national safety requires the existence of such power, and no doubt should be left as to the availability of that power to end protracted labor disputes.

Hitting Back

The people in the bombed towns of Britain are demanding that the R. A. F. give Germany the same medicine that the Nazis are meting out to the British. So it looks as if the offensive may come back completely into its own in British calculations. The army and navy led the way in the Battle of the Nile. Gen. Wavell (who was in command of all the fighting services in the Mediterranean) was the first Briton in this war to prove the truth of Nelson's dictum that "the boldest measures are the safest." And the brothers Cunningham, Admiral Sir Andrew and Gen. Alan, are showing themselves in the same tradition. The entire Mediterranean epic, indeed, has been a grand demonstration that attack is the best defense. After the May 10 blitzkrieg the British rushed virtually all their remaining artillery to Egypt in preparation for such an offensive. This step, as colossal a risk as can ever have been taken in war, stripped defenses at home which had already been reduced by the wholesale capture of British material in France. At the time even the loss of Egypt was mentally envisaged in London. So triumphantly has the risk been justified, however, that the British flag seems fast becoming undisputed throughout the Mediterranean, and Mussolini's Roman empire is falling into ruin. Moreover, the boldness and audacity with which the British have kept a territorial lodgment in the Balkans—Nazi Germany's solar plexus—have been the goad to what may at any time become a flaming revolt against the Nazis from the Adriatic to the Black Sea, thereby insuring a Balkan front for a grand finale in the reduction of Hitlerism.

The extension to the air of the doctrine of the offensive has become possible now that Britain can count upon America for her reserves. It is urged by the newspapers as well as the people. J. L. Garvin, for instance, writes in the London Observer, "Hitler still has far too much freedom to keep us guessing, but he no longer has the monopoly of the initiative nor anything like it." If the British seize the initiative in the air, they will be aided by the new bomb announced in London as having been perfected, a weapon with which R. A. F. destructive power should be immensely improved. Air power so equipped will test whether the Germans can "take it" equally with the British. In Germany there is more chance that bombing will reduce civilian morale, since the Germans have so frequently been promised immunity from reprisals, and, indeed, have a Hitler pledge of final victory this year. Air power will also be in a position to strike at the roots of the Nazi bid for sea power. These roots lie in the factories and dockyards which are turning out a submarine a day and which are said to have been virtually untouched by British raids so far. In sum, the new offensive in the air may be far more significant than Britain's inability to perfect defense measures against the Nazi raiders of the sea.

The authority in Britain who more than anybody else was responsible for the defense complex was Capt. Liddell Hart. "On the whole," he said, "in a modern war of peoples a new truth is becoming apparent, and that is that defense is the best attack." Sometimes this preoccupation has been called the Maginot Line complex. At any rate, it proved disastrous in the case of France, and in Britain obscured the vision of many leading strategists—that is, till the Germans cleared it. For a time thereafter Capt. Liddell Hart was in the doghouse. So chagrined did he feel that he felt called upon to explain himself. His point, he said, was that in modern war one had to be 3 to 1 ahead if an offensive were to have any hope of success. But the problem is how to measure the equation. One can compare armies as to numerical strength, but hardly in terms of material and certainly not in terms of spirit. On Liddell Hart's showing the Greeks should have stayed in Greece instead of taking the war into Albania and seeking to throw the Italians into the Adriatic with material limited virtually to rocks and rifles. Moreover, the doctrine of the defensive sacrifices one of war's most potent weapons—namely, surprise. Capt. Liddell Hart never figured this element in his equation. The Germans, however, made effective use of it, and, indeed, are now doing with their navy exactly what the British are demanding from their air force—namely, throwing it all into the fray.

Cooperative Neighbors

The agreement providing for the reciprocal use of airports, which was signed by Mexico and the United States this week, is a further step forward in the direction of an integrated system of hemisphere defense. It is the necessary companion piece to the agreement reached by this Nation with Canada. The United States is thus flanked north and south by neighbors who are voluntarily committed to join with us in common efforts to keep invaders from this continent.

Together with our bases agreement with Great Britain and the measures being taken to strengthen the defenses of the Panama Canal, the Mexican-American pact brings the objective of New World security closer to realization. It has, in addition, a more special meaning. Several issues have clouded relations between the two countries during recent years. The most important of these is the unsettled problem of the oil properties expropriated by Mexico without adequate compensation to the American owners. There is now a very real possibility that this question and others which have troubled the good relations between the two countries will speedily be settled.

Taxes And The Public

A current Gallup poll indicates that a majority of Americans are in favor of a general sales tax to help defray the cost of national defense. The vote reveals a surprisingly sudden change of sentiment. As recently as last January 54 per cent of those expressing an opinion were opposed to the sales tax, whereas today 54 per cent of those voting are for it. Especially arresting is the fact that in the income group earning $20 a week or less 48 per cent voted in the affirmative. This evidence that public opinion is no longer overwhelmingly hostile to any form of general sales taxation removes one of the strongest political objections to legislative action.

There is no denying the fact that under normal conditions the economic objections to this kind of levy outweigh the advantages. A general sales tax is a comparatively sure and prolific source of revenue; nevertheless, it is regressive. Such a levy of necessity bears most heavily upon people of limited means. Furthermore, it cuts down mass purchasing power, and thus retards recovery in periods of industrial depression and underemployment. This latter argument, however, doesn't retain its validity in these emergency times. We are fast approaching the day when, under the stimulus of defense spending, employable workers will have found jobs. And, with full employment attained, and with wage earners' purchasing power greatly increased in consequence, it is going to be necessary to restrict the buying of nonessentials in order to meet the heavy demands of the defense program for limited supplies of raw materials and productive facilities. Thus the valid objections to levying general sales taxes in normal times become arguments in favor of such taxes in times of emergency when all economic classes have to be called upon to make sacrifices.

Count Teleki

There is something Oriental about the suicide of the Hungarian Premier, Count Teleki, that might almost be interpreted as a form of racial atavism. The Magyars have for many centuries been thoroughly assimilated into the west European culture, but they were, as their language and the very name of their nation still imply, of relatively recent Mongolian origin. Though we do not know the full circumstances surrounding his death, it is obvious that Count Teleki killed himself not for personal but for political reasons—for the highest reasons of state. In other words, it was an official action in his official capacity. It has already been interpreted as a deliberate admission to the Hungarian people that his policy of gradual appeasement, skillful and honest as it was, is responsible for the present unhappy condition of his country. It can also be interpreted as an official diplomatic notification to the Germans that he considered that Hungarian participation in the presumably impending attack on the Yugoslav nation, with whom his government so recently entered into a treaty of perpetual friendship, would be an act of national dishonor.

By no Western standard, even the strict, chivalric standard of the Hungarian nobleman, can Teleki's honor be called into question. He had been guided throughout by the most unselfish motives, and it is known that his concept of what would best preserve the peace and independence of his country often ran strongly counter to his personal sympathies concerning the war. His errors, however serious, were committed in the purest of good faith. He had done his best to avert the catastrophe, and more than their best it is said even angels cannot do. His final gesture was much like that of the Oriental who believes that faith can be lost through fate as well as forfeited by an act of will. It was Oriental, too, in this suggestion that national honor can be restored by an act of individual sacrifice. It recalls those mandarins of the Celestial Kingdom who strangled themselves on a hint of the Emperor's displeasure, the Japanese general who slew himself because of a minor tactical mistake, and the Tokyo policeman who atoned with his blood for having inadvertently made the Son of Heaven 20 minutes late for an official function.

Letter Of Appreciation

Would that we were poets so that we could more eloquently express ourselves! Nevertheless, may we praise the Good Samaritans with whom we have recently come in contact, and at the same time thank all of our many benefactors?

On one of the bitterly cold nights of February, we had a disastrous fire at our home, in which all of our material possessions were completely destroyed. Thank God all of us escaped unharmed! However, the situation was rather grave, as we had no shelter, no clothing and little cash to provide for our six children, the oldest of whom is eight. That night, through the kindness of our relatives and neighbors, we were comfortably and adequately clothed and sheltered.

The next day an account of the fire appeared in all the Washington newspapers, and we began to learn first-hand how many truly generous and kind-hearted people there are. Relatives and friends offered food, clothing and shelter for us and our childen. Collections were taken up by churches of different denominations and various organizations in the community. People whom we knew and many whom we did not know sent us food, clothing, furniture, money, all sorts of household goods and even toys for the children. The unsolicited kindness, goodness and generosity of our fellow citizens was inspiring to us.

We are truly grateful and appreciative to all who have helped us in any way, both those who are known to us and whom we have previously thanked and those unknown to us whom we now wish to thank.

May we also commend the valiant volunteer firemen who strove so desperately to save our home.

Jan Valtin

I read with interest and bewilderment the article in Sunday's Post dealing with deportation proceedings against Jan Valtin, author of "Out of the Night."

It is indeed a pity and a shortsighted opinion that this man is to be treated in much the same fashion as Harry Bridges and Princess Hohenlohe. The desirability of keeping these latter two in this country is somewhat questionable. The case of Jan Valtin, however, is altogether different and calls for separate and special treatment.

After all, we are dealing with Valtin the man as of today and today alone. True, he has made mistakes in the past, but who of us has been above erring? Today Valtin is a man who is fighting communism and doing an excellent job of it. Today Valtin is revealing Nazilsm in its cruelest and truest form. Today Valtin's book is doing more to strengthen the bulwark of democracy than any single document or utterance or bit of propaganda.

Therefore let us deal with Mr. Valtin intelligently and broadmindedly. Let us be quick to realize the good this man is now doing. Why should he be judged on an evil committed in 1926 when his 1941 performance is so highly commendable.

In the history of the United States we have never yet deported a man to a country where the gallows awaited him. We Americans are not built that way. As Americans, then, let us judge Mr. Valtin in the light of truth, justice and humaneness. There is no law that compels us to show appreciation of a deed well done; but the great moral law, the unwritten law of a freedom-loving people bids us be generous with Jan Valtin.

Theory On Strikes

Are the impassioned Representatives who preach the electric chair for the Bethlehem strikers proposing that remedy for the wrong culprits? The fault is not with the strikers, with the NLRB, nor with the Administration. It is not even, strictly speaking, with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The strikers are demanding law observance; the NLRB decided the law according to its lights under its administrative powers as soon as the question was presented; the Administration has used what small influence it has to secure agreement between the parties, while Bethlehem is merely exercising the well-known merican right to take advantage of all technicalities.

The true fault lies with the Supreme Court of the United States. That august body is a coordinate branch of the Government, and unlike its sister branches, has failed to act with proper energy and anticipation in a time of tremendous emergency.

For almost two years the court has had before it the appeal of Bethlehem from the ruling of NLRB—a ruling charged with the blight of overzeal and bias. A prompt decision of the court of last resort could have prevented the suspicion of nullification through dallying court proceedings by Bethlehem, which is the declared cause of the strike. That the unions with customary resourcefulness might have found some other pretext for the strike is not here at issue.

Perhaps the real trouble lies deeper and is caused by the failure of the founding fathers to sharply limit the time over which the court may mull on a decision, as the President is limited in the time for approving or vetoing a law. The effect of present practice is to make impossible an understanding as to when a law actually has become a law. Does it come into being when Congress decrees it, when the President approves it or when a court declares it valid? Or, is it, at this point, only in an experimental stage to be disregarded as the law until the Supreme Court has allowed it to ferment and finally placed upon it its divided approval?

It is the hiatus caused by the last theory, adopted to its present purposes by Bethlehem, which bred the trouble now exciting some Congressmen to mortal violence against a possibly innocent victim. However, even if the blame can be placed on the court for its failure to act with unaccustomed diligence, the application of such extreme measures to it will hardly meet with popular approval.

Congressmen who make such sanguinary proposals probably belong to that side which prefers our bloodshedding shall be done at home rather than on foreign lands.

On Smoking

The letter of Mr. J. A. Marcus on "Lunch-Hour Smoking" was of interest to me, as probably many others. One may go into the lunch room of the South Building of the Agriculture Department and see crowds of men and girls puffing away at their cigarettes. After lunch, when tables are cleared, one may see girls and young men seated upon the edge of the tables smoking at any hour of the afternoon. One might think they had nothing to do but smoke. Cigarettes are sold at all Government cafeterias, so far as I know. These pretty girls you see "enjoying" their cigarettes in later years will begin to reap what they are sowing. The Government evidently does not care very much for the health of its employes. CAREFUL OBSERVER.

For Bus Routes On Memorial Bridge

Last Monday the staggered hours for Government workers went into effect. This change was forced upon the Government by the great increase in congestion on the streets of Washington during the morning and evening rush hours. But there are still traffic jams on the Virginia bridges and their approaches. Rush hour traffic to Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax is increasing and will continue rapidly to increase. The need for a new bridge or tunnel is urgent. However, the building of a new bridge or tunnel under the most favorable circumstances will require several years. In the meantime it would appear to be only the most elemental common sense to make the most efficient and best use of the bridge facilities we now have.

If you will station yourself on the Arlington Memorial Bridge during the morning and evening rush hours, within a few minutes you can count hundreds of cars swishing by containing one or two passengers. Those people are occupying at least 10 to 20 times the traffic space occupied by others riding to work in busses over the Fourteenth Street and Key Bridges. Under a ruling of the National Park Service people going to work in busses are excluded from the Arlington Memorial Bridge. If you can afford to come to work in your own private car, whether you drive it yourself or your chauffeur drives it for you, you are permitted to use the beautiful bridge and to enjoy the esthetic values of its approaches. Every morning you can take new joy in the classic lines of the Lincoln Memorial and the glimpsed reflections of the Washington Monument in the Reflecting Pool. Evenings you can glide easily home over the bridge and out the Lee Boulevard.

But if you can only afford to ride in a bus, you must be content to use the more plebeian Fourteenth Street or Key Bridges and to crowd slowly and painfully along Columbia Pike, Route No. 1, and Fourteenth Street or through Georgetown.

The very people we should be most anxious to help in the defense emergency are the ones most discriminated against by this order. Many in the Army, Navy, and Munitions Buildings could save up to half an hour every day if busses were permitted to cross Memorial Bridge. The need for such a route will be even greater when the new Navy Building in Arlington is completed.

Provision for such a bus route should be guarded by regulations to speed up traffic. No bus stops should be permitted between Fort Myer Drive and Constitution Avenue. Bus stops should be constructed on Lee Boulevard and busses should be required to pull off the road for taking on and discharging passengers. With these safeguards the majority would be benefited and passenger traffic would be distributed naturally between the bridges and the best and most efficent use would be made of the bridge facilities we now have.

CARLETON K. LEWIS.

Good Morning

"Good morning," in its real sense as the abbreviated form of "May God give you a good morning," has a solemn friendliness about it almost too intimate for casual use. I can hardly think, however, of any other word so frequently mumbled, and with such deep preoccupation or sleepy disregard for its meaning.

In the course of an average forenoon, you may, perhaps, exchange "good mornings" with 40 persons; in the six working days of a week, to say nothing of Sunday, the total would reach 240, which multiplied by 52 weeks in a year would yield 12,480. If you want to carry the exercise further and indulge in some staggering statistics, you can step the computation up a decade at a time, or any way you like, to cover a whole life span. Then if you still feel fit you can chart your exhaustive findings on a qualitative basis, push your "specs" down on the end of your nose and "view with alarm" or "point with pride," whichever you feel is more appropriate.

The first "good mornings" of the day sleepily exchanged among members of the family are scarcely more than mutual acknowledgments of existence, diluted with the breakfast grapefruit and coffee. One may safely assume that in the immediate family circle each consciously or unconsciously wishes God may give all the others a good morning, but there is little in the perfunctory greeting to confirm this comforting assumption. While its absence might have an unpleasant negative quality, its mumbled and mangled utterance also lacks positiveness; it just skims a thin surface of a deep meaning to convey some such neutral observation as "Well, here we are" or "Oh, dear, another day."

The singing of the birds on a spring morning is, I suppose, an expression of biological urge rather than any thoughtful design to say "Good morning," prettily to all the world. Nevertheless, there is in the sweet spontaneous chorus a positive assurance of good will often lacking in the human voice.

I well remember the pledge of undying friendship that Yum-Yum, my dear departed Maltese cat, used to renew daily in her special good morning "M-i-a-o-w." It had an anxious note of supplication that the fates deal kindly with me throughout the day. Of course, in the innermost recesses of her subconscious she may have been actuated by a canny realization that I was her source of liver and shrimps, but I like to think she wished me well for my own sake. Anyway, she certainly sounded convincing.

Dogs, too, express their "good mornings" with a genuine depth of affectionate regard, though their manner is more lighthearted and exuberant than that of cats. They act on the assumption that the beneficence of the day has already been guaranteed, that it only remains for them to acknowledge, and impart, their joyous interpretation of it to the world around them.

Then, if you've ever gone really bucolic, you have had a dream-shattering acquaintance with the lusty, ill-timed "good morning" of the rooster. This is but a strident caricature of the literal meaning of good morning. It expresses an overweening pride in volume of noise, ignoring cadence and all elements of kindly regard for other creatures.

The cows and horses and all the other farm animals have their own particular ways of extending their greetings in the mornings. They are very close to nature, and so far as they communicate with humans, it is for the most part in terms of obtaining their daily rations. But we must not linger too long in the barnyard; there remain yet for our critical analyses many types of more intricate human expressions of "good morning."

The tepid exchanges among members of the family having been uttered, and breakfast finished, you shout a general goodby from the front door and start for the bus. The neighbor next door is poking about in the yard, looking for evidences of spring. This is a sort of activity that promotes friendliness and lends a warmth of genuine good will to the customary greeting. The heartiness of her "good morning" has in it a comforting quality of invocation. You are convinced that she wishes God may give you a good morning. It is well to cherish this one; its quality is much better than that of some you will receive a little later.

Farther down the street you meet the newsboy on his rounds. He delivers his "good morning" in much the same way that he delivers his papers, just sort of hurls it cheerily in your general direction with a manner of taking all things in stride.

On the bus you may garner a few random and very imperfect specimens of "good morning." Here in competition with newspaper headlines and countless small distractions it is clipped to a minimum. Pious good wishes, if any, for your well being are often subdued by the extreme brevity of "'Morning."

If you arrive at the office a little early you can collect more, and a wider variety of "good mornings" than if you shave by on the last fraction of a minute. In the first place, there are fewer people around and you are more in evidence—a candidate for greetings. Then, too, with a comfortable margin of time the people who are around are more expansive. Throw your receptive mood into high gear and you can collect some gems. You almost have a feeling that the first leisurely greetings are wrapped in cellophane and tied with gay ribbons; there is a comforting certainty that they convey a sincere wish for your well being. Gradually, as the margin of time narrows, the quality declines. The hubbub of racing the deadline is punctuated in a descending scale by "good morning." "'Morning." "—'ning." "Hi." "—'lo." bat of an eyelash, and complete, utter disregard.

The Industrial Stoppages

IN THE SOFT COAL industry there is an old, well-established system of collective bargaining. Yet production has been stopped.

LIPPMANN

In the Ford plant there is an old, strongly-established system of non-unionism. Yet production has been stopped. At the Allis-Chalmers plant there are in operation the machinery of the Wagner Act plus many State and Federal agencies for conciliation. Yet production has been stopped.

It is evident, I submit, that there is no single principle of industrial relations which as such can be relied upon to insure uninterrupted production in the defense industries. We see in the case of Mr. John L. Lewis that full-blown collective bargaining does not guarantee uninterrupted production and in the case of Mr. Henry Ford that full-blown individualism does not guarantee it, and in the case of Allis-Chalmers that the combined pre-New Deal, New Deal, and post-New Deal laws, boards, and executive committees do not guarantee uninterrupted production. We see all the known varieties of normal industrial relations and none of them works.

A workable policy can be arrived at, it seems to me, only if we start thinking from this actual and demonstrated fact. It is in the highest degree important that public opinion, in order that there be light and not merely heat, take account of the objective fact that not one system of industrial relations but all systems at once are in certain cases failing to work.

IF WE HAD A stoppage only in the thoroughly unionized soft coal industry, where collective bargaining is unchallenged in principle and has long been practiced, we could look for the underlying cause of the trouble in collective bargaining. If there were a stoppage only in the Ford plant, we could look for it in the refusal to recognize independent unions for purposes of collective bargaining. If we had to think only of the stoppage at Allis-Chalmers, we could look for the cause of trouble in some defect of the Wagner Act or the machinery of adjustment. But, taking the facts as they are, it is evident that we shall not mend matters unless we find and deal with a cause which is common to all three of these very different disturbances

In fact, we shall surely make matters much worse if, forgetting that in some places all the systems are working badly, we fix our attention on any one of them alone, and go about cracking down by words and by laws—on the unions if we are thinking only of Mr. Lewis, or on non-conforming employers if we are thinking only of Mr. Ford, or on the machinery of adjustments if we are thinking about the New Deal or anti-New Deal. For while in these instances all the systems are working badly, there are many more industries where all of them are working quite well. We have uninterrupted production with collective bargaining in many plants, with the open shop in many plants, with the Wagner Act and the conciliation machinery in many plants. Thus, if our one and only concern is to achieve uninterrupted production, we shall deceive ourselves if we think that any one policy or any one piece of machinery is as such and in itself either the cause of the trouble or the cure for the trouble.

WE MUST LOOK not at labor policy as such or the machinery of adjustment as such but at the state of mind of men and of communities, and we shall conclude, I believe, that where there is trouble, there is no full conviction that the national emergency is real, no urgent belief that nothing matters but the progress of national defense. Any policy can be made to work among men who believe that the security and independence of the Nation are at stake: they will lay aside everything else as soldiers lay everything else aside, they will compromise and adjust their difficulties because they feel themselves enlisted in the common cause.

But where this conviction does not exist, where men do not believe the Nation is in jeopardy, where they are disposed to think that the defense effort is hysterical warmongering, there is neither the spiritual incentive or a good reason for subordinating all their other views and interests to the Nation's needs. The only ground on which it can be held that employees and employers and Government officials must at all costs, no matter how but somehow, keep production going is that they are called into the service of their country in a time of great emergency. If they do not think that there is such an emergency, they will cling to their rights and dwell on their grievances and hug their prejudices. They will behave as they are accustomed to behave in normal times. They will not rise above the ordinary habits of ordinary times.

WHENEVER men are in this state of mind, they will not make the sacrifices which are required for uninterrupted production. Mr Lewis is used to bargaining with the coal operators while the mines are closed down. He continues now to do what he has always done. Mr. Ford is used to running his plant without collective bargaining. He continues to conduct his business as usual. Yet what is being asked of all employers and all employees, of managers and labor leaders, is that they do something very unusual. They are not being offered a "solution" of the problem of industrial relations. There is not time for that. They are being asked to act as if the problem were solved, to proceed on the belief that all of them, and not only most of them, the minority among them as well as the majority of them, must put the maintenance of uninterrupted production above every other consideration.

The minority will not do that unless they are convinced that uninterrupted production really does and really must come ahead of every other consideration. And they will not be convinced that it does and must come ahead until either there is a tidal wave of patriotic feeling, or until disaster and danger are so close and so obvious that everyone is aware of them. These disputes which plague us today reflect the fact that a substantial minority among business men, workers and politicians are either openly opposed to, or at least are unconvinced about, the Nation's policy. It is inevitable that this division of opinion, kept open by sincere and reputable men and women, should stultify in some considerable measure the effort to put the national defense above everything else. If three doctors tell a man to give up drinking, and one doctor tells him that they are excited teetotallers, he will be strongly tempted now and then, when the craving is strong, to take a drink.

IT WILL, therefore, be difficult to eliminate industrial disputes until there is in the country an overwhelming unanimity of conviction, not merely that strikes must stop, but that the Nation must be defended. That unanimity has not yet developed, and until it does, many will not see why they should sacrifice a private interest or a private preconception, why they should change their normal habits of conducting business as usual.

But when that unanimity does exist,—either because the people find leaders who inspire them or, failing that, because they are faced with imminent disaster,—when public sentiment is wholehearted and single-minded, these troubles will subside. Men who are in a state of mind to get on with the national defense will find ways of making any theoretical policy or any piece of machinery work. But in so far as they are not in this state of mind, any policy and any piece of machinery will be made unworkable because there will be men who are not much concerned to make it work.

Inter-American Bar Association

IN APPRAISING the concrete results of the recent Havana Conference of the Inter-American Bar Association, first place should be given to the intangible, spiritual values arising from friendships created between individual members of the bar of different countries. The keynote of the conference may be said to have been struck by the president of the American Bar Association, Mr. Jacob M. Lashly, in the closing words of his address on March 25. Referring to the contacts made and friendships formed, he said that "these attractions are not confined to any particular bar association, or to any country, or to any language. Cooperation and friendship, like love and loyalty, are the same in any country and in any tongue."

THE CONFERENCE performed a useful public service by following up the work of the last Pan-American Conference at Lima in 1938. At the latter, two resolutions had been adopted on commercial aviation: One, recommending the ratification of the 1928 convention by those governments which have not yet done so; and another, that consideration be given to the conclusions of the Inter-American Technical Aviation Conference of 1937. The Inter-American Bar Conference directed the president of the association to urge the American governments to constitute immediately the national commission on aviation recommended by the 1937 conference, and that these commissions collaborate with the national societies called "Inter-American Squadrons."

The conference also directed that the Pan American Union be requested to constitute, as soon as possible, the "Permanent Pan-American Aeronautical Commission."

In the field of Inter-American copyright protection, the conference went on record as supporting the modifications of the Buenos Aires Convention of Augusut 10, 1910, suggested at the Lima Conference of 1938, and urged the ratification of the convention of 1910 by all the countries which had not yet done so.

The Bustamante Code of Private International Law, which was embodied in a convention signed by the representatives of the American Republics at the Sixth Conference at Havana in 1928, has not yet been ratified by all the signatories. The Inter-American Bar Association recommended that the remaining countries be urged by their national bar associations to ratify this convention as soon as possible. This action was in line with the fundamental purpose of the association to obtain uniformity in law and procedure among the countries of this hemisphere.

A FURTHER step in the same direction is the study of comparative law. The Eighth American Scientific Congress, held in May of last year, adopted a resolution recommending the translation into Spanish of the Restatment of the Conflict of Laws adopted by the American Law Institute. This restatement constitutes what is in effect a code of private international law for the United States. Translation into Spanish would render possible a comparison with the Bustamante code and a study of the two codes by Latin-American lawyers and jurists, with a view to their harmonization or unification.

The Inter-American Bar Conference, accordingly, supported the resolution of the scientific congress, and recommended further that the translation be accompanied by notes and commentaries. To these should be added an analytical and historical introduction regarding the concepts, principles, and juridical institutions of the Latin-American and Anglo-American countries.

Dr. William Draper Lewis, director of the American Law Institute, in his address to the conference on March 25, discussed the subject of the translation of the institute's restatements into Spanish and Portuguese. The resolution respecting the translation of the Restatement on the Conflict of Laws grew out of the round-table discussion on comparative civil and commercial law which followed his address. It may be anticipated that Mr. Lewis will have something further to say on the subject when he makes his annual report to the meeting of the institute in Washington on May 6. For the development of Inter-American cultural and commerical relations, perhaps nothing is more important than making known to the other republics of America the principles of the common law prevailing in the United States, and making known to the lawyers and businessmen of the United States the principles of the civil law prevailing in the republics to the south.

IT IS significant of the importance attached to this, the first conference of representatives of bar associations of the Americas, that so important an authority in the field of public international law as Dr. Antonio S. de Bustamante, of Cuba, attended and addressed it. Other officers and members of the American Institute of International Law, which has done so much for the codification of public international law and the development of international arbitration, contributed by their presence and papers to the initiation of this new effort in the field of private law. These included Dr. James Brown Scott, president of this institute and of the American Society of International Law for many years; Mr. Luis Anderson, of Costa Rica; Hon. Ricardo J. Alfaro, of Panama; Hon. Dantes Bellegarde, of Haiti; Hon. Alberto Ulloa, of Peru, and Hon. Cosme de la Torriente, of Cuba.

The conference, in the preparation of its agenda, in the round-table discussions and in the resolutions and declarations adopted, carefully refrained from attempting to enter the field of public international law already covered by the work of various Pan-American conferences and the Pan American Union. Its purpose was not to duplicate, but rather supplement the efforts already being made by the governments of the various republics or by other international organizations, such as the American Institute of International Law. It entered upon an entirely new field—that of comparative law and private international law in so far as related to the Western Hemisphere. Its initial accomplishments in this field deserve careful study, and augur well for the future development of a uniform body of law in fields where such is desirable and practicable.

'Bridge Of Ships'

By Mark Sullivan

The Problem Of The Submarines

THEY ARE TALKING about convoys, urgently. And they are getting up another slogan—actually, revival of a world-war slogan, "Bridge of Ships." Both these developments arise from the same cause—the sinkings of merchant vessels by Axis submarines. The sinkings just now are very large. The situation they now create should be understood.

SULLIVAN

The figures are technical, difficult to be understood by anyone not a shipping man. There are figures about British ships, and about neutral ships; figures about ships sunk since the war began, and about new construction in the same period; about ships acquired by Britain from neutrals and from the enemy, and about shipbuilding capacity by British yards and American yards. But dismiss the figures, the adding and subtracting. Come at once to the net. It is a red ink net.

Axis submarines are now sinking merchant ships much faster than new ships are being built by Britain and America combined. During March, the pace of sinkings was about twice the pace of new construction. That is the stark and somber fact.

And sinkings are not the whole story. Many ships not completely sunk by a submarine are damaged, and repairing takes time, more time than during peace. Repair of ships, and new construction in British yards, is retarded by bombings from German planes. Moreover, under war conditions, the service given by a ship is greatly reduced. Ships move more slowly, and go by circuitous routes to avoid submarines. When ships travel in convoy, the speed of every ship is reduced to the speed of the slowest. And ships are obliged to make longer journeys to do the same service—before the war, Britain could get food by an overnight trip, from Holland, or Denmark; today, the same supplies must be brought from the United States or Canada or South America.

ALSO, destruction of ships by Axis submarines is more easy in this war than in the Great War. In the Great War the range of vision of a submarine depended upon a mere periscope, projected a few feet above the surface. But in this war, the eyes of a submarine are a mile up in the air. In this war, Axis submarines and planes cooperate. The planes hover over sea lanes like eagles, sight the ships, and communicate the location to submarines. And the submarines hunt in packs. This increase in submarine effectiveness is perhaps the most portentious development of the war at this time—at the moment more decisive than tanks or planes.

But skip the explaining why. Get to the conclusion. The conclusion, as given this column by an accurate-minded authority is that, at this moment, the Axis submarines are winning the war. England, in a submarine noose, is being stranged—prevented from getting enough food, enough gasoline, enough armament from America; hampered in sending armament and soldiers to northern Africa and Greece. In short Britain, in spite of favorable developments in other fields, is being defeated. This is as of the present time. England still has large stores of food and other supplies; and her shipping situation, while critical, would not become fatal for some months. But—if the present disparity, the present superiority of sinkings over new construction is not overcome, Britain will lose the war.

HOW OVERCOME it? There are two ways. The two, if carefully compared, will yield a conclusion which will presently emerge, and which America must look in the face. The two ways are: One, build more ships than the submarines can sink; second, stop the submarines from sinking the ships.

America is taking the first way. We have started a huge shipbuilding program, the "bridge of ships." But we cannot possibly build enough ships until a year or so from now. And time is the decisive factor. Besides, as we build more ships, so does Germany build more submarines.

Moreover—and this is what America must look in the face—even if we could produce enough ships next week, producing new ships is not, alone, the best way. Building more ships is like pouring the ships down a sink-hole. It is like sending more soldiers into a battle-line, but letting them be killed off. Here, as often, the best defense is offense. In this case offense means attack those submarines.

Attacking submarines is for a navy to do, primarily for the British navy. But the British navy is doing as much as it can—and as much as it can is not enough.

THAT RAISES America's problem. As it is commonly put, shall American naval vessels, destroyers, be used as convoys? Convoying means not merely protecting merchant ships, but also hunting down the submarines that threaten the ships.

That our naval vessels should be used as convoys is almost a settled conclusion, a settled necessity. The real problem is, whether to turn American destroyers over to the British, to be manned by British crews—that is, "lease-lend" American destroyers, as we can under the new law. Or, send out our destroyers as American vessels, as a part of our Navy, manned by our regular Navy men, carrying the American flag, to convoy ships carrying supplies from America to Britain and the other nations we are helping.

This choice is now under urgent discussion within our Government. The question has several collateral angles which there is not space here to discuss.

Martin Plans To Decentralize Control Of Republican Party

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Republican National Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., has abandoned proposals for a single "executive director" of the party in Washington and will decentralize G. O. P. control through assistants in the field.

Staking much on a come-back in the 1942 Congressional elections, the recently reelected national chairman is studying plans for a ground-up overhaul in organization methods to place the party in a striking position a year and a half hence.

Two or three "assistants" will be named, with the West heavily represented, to operate from the field into the actual voting precincts, strengthening national party contacts with local leaders, it was learned last night.

To Use Present Aides

Martin himself will run Washington national headquarters through present staff aides, it was indicated. Despite House Minority Leadership duties, he has found he can do this through a direct telephone connection with his Capitol office and frequent visits to headquarters.

Seeks Young, Vigorous Talent

From a wide field of candidates for the post of "assistant," Chairman Martin has yet made no selection and is expected to delay the actual choice until he has canvassed the field.

Friends say he is seeking young, vigorous party talent "who will get out and work for the vote."

Most prominently mentioned when Martin was planning a "director" to take over the headquarters work were Arch N. Bobbitt, of Indiana; Kenneth Wherry, of Nebraska, and former Representative Frank Horton, of Wyoming.

The party's finance committee chairmanship, resigned recently by Ernest T. Weir, will be left vacant for the time being, or until the committee embarks on a new fund-raising campaign.

To Name Committees

As a prelude to the most general Republican reorganization since the Willkie nomination, Martin over the holidays will consider appointments to a half a dozen special committees to study and recommend program and organizing reforms.

Committees to be appointed from national committee ranks will cover party clubs, the big city vote, the rural and farm vote, the women's vote, the colored vote and coordination of organization activities.

Martin, who was "drafted" in a party harmony effort to weld all factions behind his leadership, believes the next election will be won in the precincts and is shaping reorganization plans accordingly.

Designation of assistants in the field, in lieu of a top man in Washington, is expected to be the first of a series of new party moves to cultivate the votes "where they grow."

Pope to Broadcast Easter Benediction

Vatican City, April 4 (AP).—The Vatican news service announced today that Pope Pius XII would broadcast a benediction to the world at 1 p. m. Rome time (6 a. m. E. S. T.) Easter Day, April 13.

The radio benediction will replace the usual blessing, "Urbi et Orbi," given from the balcony of St. Peter's following the papal mass, which will not be held this year.

The pontiff plans to celebrate the Easter mass in his private chapel.

Wanted: More Children

By Dr. George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

The Family Ideal

Princeton, N. J., April 4.—Few questions hold greater long-range importance for the American people than one which forthcoming United States census reports will shortly dramatize—What's happening to the American birth-rate?

Halbert L. Dunn, chief statistician of the division of vital statistics, Bureau of the Census, has estimated:

"If the present birth and death rates continue, the population of the United States will fail to maintain its numbers by about 4 per cent per generation."

Too many families are having only two children these days, it appears—a practice which population men regard as coming close to race suicide. And too many families which once might have had four or five children are now having three.

But if you explore the wishes of the ordinary men and women of the United States two striking facts emerge:

1. Most American couples would like to have larger families. Whereas population students estimate that more than 60 per cent of United States families are now either childless or have one or two children, fully two-thirds (68 per cent) of those interviewed in the instiute survey said the "ideal" family was one with three children or more. Few desire more than five, however.

2. If Americans aren't having more children at present, the chief reasons are economic—not a waning in the desire for larger families per se.

The Institute's question, put to men and women in every part of the country and every station in life, asked:

"What do you consider is the ideal size of family—a husband and wife and how many children?"

Only one person in a hundred thought one child was ideal.

And only 32 per cent said they would be entirely satisfied to have less than three.

Here is the way the public's answers break down:

| Number of Children Wanted | % Naming This Number |
|---|---|
| 1 Child | 1% |
| 2 Children | 31 |
| 3 Children | 27 |
| 4 Children | 27 |
| 5 Children | 6 |
| 6 children or More | 8 |

"What do you think are the main reasons why couples do not have more children?" the Institute asked.

The public's diagnosis, made without reference to lists or suggestions, is as follows:

| Chief Reason Named | % Naming Reason |
|---|---|
| 1. Cost of living—not enough money | 57% |
| 2. More children interfere with parents' fredom | 20 |
| 3. Uncertainty of the future—especially economic uncertainty | 5 |
| 4. Parents' health | 2 |
| 5. Dislike of children | 1 |
| 6. Too many children already | 1 |
| 7. All other answers | 3 |
| 8. No answer to the question | 11 |

Interestingly enough, lack of money was more often mentioned by persons in moderate or average circumstances, than by the very poor or by those on relief.

Other conclusions from the Institute survey which will give population experts something to think about are:

1. There is strikingly little difference between the poor and other groups as to what constitutes the "ideal" family. Among families earning $1,000 a year or less—close to the bottom of the U. S. income scale—69 per cent favored three children or more. Among families above this level 67 per cent wanted three or more.

2. Women tended to place the "ideal" slightly higher than men. For instance, 32 women in every hundred said they'd like to have four children, as compared with 23 per cent of the men who said this.

3. Farm families placed the ideal considerably higher than city families, as might be expected in view of every American tradition. Seventy-seven per cent of the farmers in the survey wanted three children or more. The comparable ideal was named by 64 per cent in cities of 10,000 and over, by 62 per cent in smaller cities, and by 71 per cent in towns under 2,500.

4. Widest discrepancy in the "ideal"—and potentially the most serious according to population men—occurs between younger people and older people.

Here is the way the choices fell at various age levels:

| | Those Aged 21-34 (Preferred by) | Those Aged 35-49 (Preferred by) | Those 50 and Over (Preferred by) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Child | 1% | 1% | *% |
| 2 Children | 40 | 31 | 23 |
| 3 Children | 32 | 27 | 23 |
| 4 Children | 21 | 29 | 33 |
| 5 Children | 3 | 6 | 9 |
| 6 or more | 3 | 6 | 12 |

Blow To Hitler

By Harold J. Laski

English Reaction To Yugoslavia

London.

IT IS NOT EASY to put into words the exhilarating effect on this country of the Yugoslav constitutional revolution. People spoke to one another in buses and cafes as though some great, happy incident had occurred in their own lives. When Mr. Churchill announced it at luncheon, one could see by his face how heavy a load had been lifted from his mind. A simple way of estimating the general feeling is to look at most of the current weeklies, written in the belief that Belgrade had been committed to the Axis. Their note is one of gloom and dismay. I gave my copy of the Spectator this morning to the bus conductor. He looked smilingly at its pessimistic headlines. "I bet Hitler is feeling like that this morning," he said.

LASKI

It is clear that the Yugoslav decision is vital for many reasons. It is the first instance of a small people directly under the threat of Nazi invasion compelling its government to resist that menace. From that angle, it is under any circumstances a blow to the prestige of Hitler. Thereby it is shown that a courageous nation can conquer fear and hate, and the mere power to overcome it bewilders a dictator who lives by his power to impose fear on those whom it seeks to destroy.

IT IS IMPORTANT, also, because it is a reverse, as sudden as unexpected, to the hopes Hitler had aroused among his own people. They have been shown that a nation which loves its freedom is prepared to fight for it. Secretely, no doubt, but none the less effectively, the lesson of this act will make itself felt among the thousands of Germans who hope one day for release from their present servitude.

The Yugoslavian decision is important, also, because it will have a stiffening effect everywhere. That is clear from its reception not only in Greece and Turkey; it is clear also from its impact on the Soviet government and even Vichy, France, where 10,000 Frenchmen demonstrated their enthusiasm for Yugoslavia in Marseille. A profound effect, too, followed the swift reaction by the United States. The sense of American power is widespread in the Balkans, where tens of thousands have relatives in that almost legendary land. The knowledge there that American aid will be forthcoming to a nation that has the courage to stand up for its independence will be discussed by millions and give hope where before there was little more than submission to an inexorable, relentless destiny.

Yugoslavia has lit the candle of hope in Eastern Europe; and its beams will be reflected widely before long.

We need not doubt that Hitler will take revenge for this act of insubordination; already the familiar accusations that Germans are being ill-treated are being blared out on the Goebbels radio. I think, myself, it is pretty certain that military intervention will be attempted by Berlin. Nazi power acts always on the assumption that it must bully the way to its end, and there is no quality for which it has more indignation than courage in an opponent from whom it expects submission.

ITS TASK will be less easy than it imagines. The Yugoslavs know how to fight; and at long last we are at least in a position to help them with munitions and in the air. And Hitler, seeking to punish the Yugoslavs for their failure to be devoured quickly, may easily overreach himself. Spreading the war in the Balkans may have consequences far beyond any he has imagined. Above all he has demonstrated to Matsuoka, in what was to be an hour of triumph, that his power to impose himself even on a weak opponent has important limits; I suspect that the telegraph wires between Berlin and Tokio have been hot ever since the coup. And I think that the very cautious observers in the Kremlin have noted with quiet satisfaction the appearance of a new and unexpected problem on Hitler's plate. Coinciding as it does with the ever-accelerating pace of Mussolini's African collapse and his inability to extricate himself from his Albanian difficulties, it may well lead to one of those reassessments of values in Moscow of which the ultimate significance could be profound indeed.

At this stage it is dangerous, I think, to expect too much. The full significance of the Yugoslav decision will hardly appear until the coming of autumn. But when the battle is won, as won it will be, the choice Yugoslavia made will seem in perspective as significant as the Spanish campaign in the Napoleonic wars. It means a revival of national feeling in an area where its strength and persistence are profound. That revival in a war of this character is a turning point. For nationalism is an infectious thing. It communicates its intensity in ways and degrees that the Nazis in power do not dare underestimate. It is the Achilles heel of every conqueror who does not know—as the Nazis do not know—how to replace the processes of coercion by the processes of consent. I miss my guess if it does not make their problems in France twice as hard as before. For a nation in chains becomes ever more irritated with their weight when it sees a neighbor nation challenge its enemy. Yugoslavia will make innumerable Frenchmen far less anxious for collaboration with Hitler's "new order" than they were a week ago. Yugoslavia has sown seeds of doubt from Norway to the Dardanelles. One thing Hitler cannot afford is doubt; skepticism is the pestilence of dictatorships. When it takes hold, it is the beginning of the end.

NAPOLEON thought at Tilsit that he stood at the apogee of his power; in fact, his decline had already begun. And that was true even though next year he swept over Spain as next week Hitler may sweep over Yugoslavia. The idea of resistance was planted in men's minds; not even the genius of Napoleon could break that idea. The courage of the Yugoslav people, like that of the Greeks six months ago, fosters the idea of resistance. Military victories on Hitler's part cannot overcome that idea until he has defeated the final enemy—Britain. And the Britain he faces is stronger than at any time during the war.

We learned from the Battle of France that time is a neutral that serves those prepared to profit by its opportunities. That preparation is evident now in every aspect of the British effort. The spirit of the people has never been so high; the sense of high enterprise upon which they are engaged has never been so profound. The people believe in themselves; they have the unshakeable conviction of triumph that is the inner secret of victory. American aid, the triumphs in Africa, the heroic resistance of Greece, the new determination of Yugoslavia—those have given them the inner knowledge that has no need to feel concern at the outcome. It may be long, and it will certainly be hard, before victory finally comes. But what Yugoslavia has done is to underline with emphasis that high courage which always gives Britain the sense that its cause is not merely its own. It now realizes that with victory its moral credit will stand higher than at any time in its history. I heard a Roumanian diplomat say today in London to a Czech statesman that it must be a proud thing to be a Yugoslav. I confess to some emotion when I heard the Czech reply: "Almost as proud as to be an Englishman." We will seek to justify that eulogy.

Jews by Thousands Flocking to Fight Under Union Jack, Zionist Says Here

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

In 1916 Dr. Chaim Weizmann, one of the world's great chemists, was summoned to the British admiralty to supervise a branch of munitions work based on one of his inventions. This was a process for obtaining certain material for high explosives from wood insects. He was asked what he wanted for his invention.

"Something for my people," he replied.

That "something" turned out to be the Balfour Declaration of November, 1917, which brought to fulfillment Dr. Weizmann's dream—a "Jewish national home" in Palestine.

Yesterday, over a luncheon table at the Mayflower Hotel, Dr. Weizmann told what was happening in Palestine now, with its colony of 500,000 Jews. He told how the fields were blooming, how the birds were coming back—and how the Jews were marching off to war.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 Palestinian Jews, Dr. Weizmann said, are now fighting under the Union Jack. Some, he said, had fought in Libya, others are chasing the Italians in East Africa, and still others are in Greece waiting for the expected Nazi onslaught in the Balkans.

Dr. Weizmann said that Palestine could have provided as many as 40,000 soldiers, and he said there still was hope in the colony that the British would ask for that many.

As president of the World Zionist Organization, Dr. Weizmann is looking ahead and dreaming great dreams for Palestine "after the war." That, in fact, is what brings him to Washington, for these dreams, he says, depend for fulfillment on American, as well as British statesmanship, in the postwar era.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization, was pictured yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel

The Jew and the Arab, he said yesterday, are now getting along well. They are, in the Rooseveltian phrase, "good neighbors," and have been ever since the war put a stop to Nazi and Fascist propaganda in Palestine.

He told how Jewish teachers go into the Arab quarter to teach children Hebrew, and how Arab teachers go among the Jewish children to teach them Arabic.

When the Jews first began to come in, Dr. Weizmann said, the Arabs were frightened. But they have discovered, he said, that their fears were groundless, that far from suffering, they actually have prospered as a result of the coming of the Jews.

Dr. Weizmann said that the Jews in Palestine now grow enough wheat to make the colony self-sustaining. They are having trouble exporting their oranges, he said, but he explained that this was more than compensated for by the establishment of a large number of industries. Unemployment, he said, has now been reduced to "manageable proportions."

In describing reforestation work in Palestine, the planting of thousands of trees in the last 15 years or so, Dr. Weizmann became enthusiastic.

"The birds are now returning to Palestine," he said. "Yes, and the fish, too. The sea had become a desert for them because there was no sewage."

The Zionist leader expressed the hope that a postwar settlement would be worked out whereby the Arabs would get a new deal and would in turn welcome more Jews.

"We can help them," he said, "and they can give us—to use that much-abused word—lebensraum, a place to live in."

He said that, after the war, there would be between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 Jews in need of a home. And Palestine, he said, would have a particular appeal for this "floating remnant."

"This is what we hope will be brought about by British and American statesmen," he said. "It is why I have come here looking for a solution of a very vexatious question."

The problem of what to do with a thousand dollars was bothering the family of Coburn S. Hamilton, of 101 Eighth Street Southeast, yesterday. Hamilton won that amount the night before in the weekly radio "Pot of Gold" program.

Mrs. Hamilton's excitement had permitted her to partake of only a cup of coffee in nearly 24 hours after her husband had scrambled from a bathtub to hear that his household had won.

And Hamilton, who works as a guard at the Government Printing Office, mixed consternation with his gladness when "as many as 50 people asked me the number of my house so they could play it in the numbers game."

The strange bother on the part of Hamilton, Mrs. Hamilton and their two married daughters, Mrs. Lalia Ayers and Mrs. Fleda Tripp, is a new angle on the $1,000 problem. To get $1,000 is the general bother. Now, having it, the Hamiltons can't decide what to do with it.

The first thought popping into Hamilton's mind after the notification of award was, "We'll apply it toward buying a house." The family came to the capital from Louisville, Ky., in July, 1934, and owns no property here. Now Hamilton works under civil service and has few bothers about his long-time future; that is, he doesn't necessarily need a nest egg against old age.

In fact, the whole family is comfortably employed, so Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton lean toward soaking the $1,000 down in a house. But Mrs. Ayers and Mrs. Tripp want their father and mother to take a vacation. However, the father sets the notion aside with an emphatic "there's plenty places to put it," while the mother, still inclining toward the house idea, does remind that she and her husband haven't had a vacation in three years.

Another element partly disturbs, partly mystifies Mrs. Hamilton. She had known that a pot of gold award would come sometime to her home. She had written of this premonition to a sister living out in Indiana and now, to save her, she can't explain just what that feeling was. It was one of those indescribable things dealing with Time, Space, and incredible journeyings of the mind.

Hamilton hadn't been especially lucky heretofore. About the only thing he ever won was a rug in a department store contest. He guessed the number of square feet it contained. That was an eye for mathematics; this thousand dollars was a plain piece of luck which, tentatively at least, both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton accept as a wedding anniversary present. They were married 28 years ago last Wednesday.

Meet Nevada's long-eared fox,
Slyest in the Zoo;
Being in a pen, which locks,
Makes him "cagey," too.

Fur is held in high respect,
Silver sighs, "Who cares?
Just so they keep off my neck
Rather, me off theirs."

Cage is strong and Silver's gay,
Carefree as the wind;
Better be a captive, eh?
Than a free 'un—skinned.

New Ensemble Trend in Wallpapers Makes Harmony in Color Throughout the House and Creates Vistas and Sense of Space

The pleasant living room shown above is papered with gold medallion stripe on cream background picked out with a small motif in deep red. The carpet is a dull old-green, while the other colors predominant in the room are deep red and gold. Both the picture window and French doors are draped with plain valance and draw curtains of patterned linen in greens and deep red on a deep cream background. The striped lounge chair carries out the color scheme with its plain deep cream background and soft dubonnet satin stripes.

Bright Trios Used Such as Lacquer Red Emerald Green, Fawn

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Household Editor

THE WOMAN who is interested in the interior decoration of her home has another blessing to count in matching and harmonizing wall papers that are now being shown in the shops.

Martha Ellyn.

Have you ever stopped to realize the important part that color plays in the home? Upon it depends harmony or discord. And one of the best ways to achieve the charm of a well balanced interior having harmony and color is the proper use of wall paper.

One of the newest trends in paper is the ensemble. This means a group of papers especially designed to go together, making possible a perfect harmony for adjoining rooms too. Wall paper manufacturers have carefully worked out the color, pattern and scale of papers so that each paper blends with the others, even when they are sharply contrasted in the patterns and in the background colors.

Plan for Vistas

Never should a wall paper be selected because it will look pretty in one particular room. Rooms are not separate entities, for doors open to create vistas. Then, too, walls that fail to present continuous harmony in color and pattern can chop up the looks of the house.

But all these nightmares and mistakes in wall paper can now be avoided because of the wall paper ensemble book. With this volume you can visualize not only one room, but three, in relation to each other. Each paper is shown with two others, all three coordinated in both pattern and color.

Go With Period Pieces

Of course, in choosing wall paper, the size, shape and importance of the room must be considered, and will determine the use of each of the three papers ensembled. But this ensemble book will aid greatly in making a selection, whether it be for a more formal interior, which might call for a design of pendant swags to establish the note of elegance, or for modern furnishings, when one of the new striped patterns that looks ever so much like a venetian blind, might be used. Many of the combinations were conceived and made up with period ieces in mind.

A wide assortment of patterns and colors may be seen in the wall paper shops. These new patterns are not only charming in color and design but are also washable.

Young Man, 24, Family Mainstay Studying at Night For College Degree, Is Disturbed by His Growing Interest in Married Business Woman, Who Is 35

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man 24 years old. From the time I was graduated from high school, seven years ago, I have been the main support of my mother and a younger brother and sister. Also, I am working toward a college degree, which I expect to obtain in about three more years. What with working all day, going to school at night, and spending the weekends preparing my written assignments, I have had little time for girls, although I have known a few, mostly on a "good friends" basis, —with whom I took in a movie or a dance; or sometimes we reviewed our lessons together. But there was never any thought of "romance."

Then, several months ago, a very charming woman, about 35, was appointed to an office not far from where I am working. We happened to talk to each other one day about an incident that occurred on the elevator, and thereafter we chatted whenever we met,—each time for a longer time, and about topics of a more personal nature. About a month ago she and I were waiting for a bus at the same corner. We remarked about the weather and then she suggested that she would be glad to give me a lift when she had her car in town. I agreed that it would be a splendid idea.

The following Saturday she brought her car and drove me home. On the way, we had many things to talk about. The next week, we arranged our lunch hour for the same time, and since then we have been very happy together. She is married, and while we have talked very little of her husband, I have learned that she isn't too happy. Her husband is a rather self-contained individual who goes very much his own way. We have never talked about love, but the attraction we have for each other is growing stronger day by day. I find great pleasure in her company, and she has often expressed the same sentiment regarding my society.

I am rather concerned lest we become involved in something more than friendship. I am extremely fond of her and I believe she is fond of me, too—and thus I would like to continue the friendship, but I know if I do it will develop into something stronger. Yet I cannot suggest anything definite, since I am not in a position to leave my family and therefore cannot ask her to leave her husband. If the association continues, I suppose it will mean heartbreak for both of us.

Would you suggest that I break away entirely, or try to go on being friends? And if you advise staying away from her, how can I do it without acting like a schoolboy? It's very hard to know what to do, and I fear that continued "drifting" may take the decision out of my hands. S. S.

The Lady Is Taking A Mean Advantage

DEAR S. S.: The lady is taking mean advantage of your naivete and natural need of soothing feminine companionship to indulge herself in a foolish flirtation. While knowing, far better than you, the serious implications of the situation that is developing, she isn't nearly so concerned as you are with keeping the record straight. It appears, indeed, that she is not at all averse to a clandestine "involvement"; since one gathers that she is deliberately fanning a chance encounter into an insidiously habit-forming, tantalizingly promising, irregular relationship.

But what can such a relationship lead to,—for one of your intense and ingenuous temperament, who must keep to paths of conventionality in emotional matters or be pitifully demoralized, and whose heavy responsibilities and (of necessity) carefully charted life plan, furthermore, allow no room for reckless pursuit of pointless adventure? The kind of relationship into which this woman is luring you, step by step, can only result in heavy losses for you, as time goes on,—lost sense of social direction, peace of mind, professional purpose, interest in work and study; even, I daresay, loss of appetite and sleep and fitness for the day's tasks.

It must result in such losses for you, because it is a relationship to which your reason and conscience are opposed; to which your emotions alone are committed. And in a conflict of that kind, the person of considerable force of character and emotional depth can never know peace again until he has succeeded in subjecting his emotions to the discipline of reason. The longer he defers the enthronement of reason and conscience, the more keenly he suffers, and the greater the penalty he pays (in loss of efficiency and impaired moral vigor) for his vacillating delay.

As one distinguished philosopher and psychologist has observed, "The most wholesome activities are those in which the whole self can engage without scruples or conflicts." And it has been folk knowledge since the beginning of time that there is nothing "wholesome" about a young bachelor's pursuit of or enslavement by a married woman, —or vice versa. Such "activity" runs contrary to social law, moral decree and the requirements of emotional health.

The crux of your problem is told in that sentence where you say, "I have had little time for girls." It is your need of amiable, interested feminine companionship that has made you such easy prey to this woman's calculated advances. Attracted by your appearance and intelligence, perhaps, and intrigued by your shy and serious manner, she probably realized that she—with an older, married woman's knowledge of masculine nature—could capture your interest and win your confidence by stratagems which the average girl either wouldn't think or wouldn't deign to employ. So she invented opportunities to talk to you; threw out the hint about her car; immediately followed up your sucker's rising to the bait, and before you realized what was going on, had maneuvered you into the luncheon series.

Since "friendship" obviously isn't possible (for you), with this woman who already has you palpitating with fascinated fear of the next move in the game that is being played; and since marriage isn't, either, inasmuch as (1) she has a husband, and (2) you couldn't afford to marry her even if she were free, why go on deluding yourself that there is any sane alternative to "breaking away entirely?" By all means "break away" from this pattern of unavowed "dates."

You can do it—"without acting like a schoolboy"—by telling her bluntly that both of you are heading for trouble in letting yourselves in for either the appearance or possibility of a "heavy flirtation." Tell her that for her sake as well as your own, you have decided to check out of the association before you become dependent on her companionship. Having made that statement, stick to it. This will not be hard to do, if you promptly fill in the breach by finding some unattached girl co-worker to share the lunch hour with you. M. H.

Each Extra Inch on the Waist Adds Two Years to Your Looks

By Ida Jean Kain

There's no getting around it, a thick waist is the measure of a matronly figure. Every inch by which your waist exceeds the bounds of symmetry adds a full two years to the age you look.

To have a neat, tidy and young waistline, this measurement must be at least 8 inches smaller than the bust. If you are willing to stretch, twist and bend, you can speedily whittle your waist down to specifications.

And, since it is generally conceded that a too generous waistline detracts from the lifeline, with a slimmer waist you will feel as much better as you look.

Here's an excellent slimming exercise:

POSITION: Stand erect feet slightly apart and parallel, hands clasped on top of head.

MOVEMENT: Slowly bend acutely to the side. Do not hunch the shoulders or move the hips. Center the pull through the midsection. Back to position and bend to the other side. Six times for a starter, later work up to 25 times.

To twist off the inches, concentrate the twist at the waist by holding the hips anchored.

POSITION: Stand with the back of the hips against a heavy table or desk, hands clasped on top of head.

MOVEMENT: First stretch tall, elongating the midriff, then twist the shoulders vigorously, first in one direction and then the other. Do this exercise slowly and really twist. Perform 6 counts, later 20.

In the next exercise you sit on the floor to anchor the hips as you bend.

POSITION: Knees bent, sit down on the floor with legs wide apart, arms clasped behind head.

MOVEMENT: Pull slim through the middle, then bend slowly sidewards, back to position and bend to opposite side. That's a real workout.

Here's a stretch, twist and bend:

POSITION: Sit on the floor, legs wide apart, knees straight, arms stretched overhead.

MOVEMENT: Pull slim through the middle, bend forward, circle to the side, back, other side and up. Then circle in the opposite direction. Perform 12 counts, later 25.

To slim the entire midriff, finish with this exercise:

POSITION: Lie back on floor feet elevated to chair seat, arms upstretched overhead.

MOVEMENT: Come up to sitting position, arms stretched high overhead. Three times is plenty for a starter, later 12 counts.

If you follow instructions you can trim your waistline down to what it was when you were 21 or thereabouts!

Produce for Priscilla

Hollywood, Calif. — Priscella Lane says that although the California sun does dry out the skin it compensates by helping leafy vegetables and citrus fruits to grow all the year 'round. She considers these a boon to the complexion and finds that when she includes plenty of them plus a daily pint of milk in her diet she has no difficulty with either dry skin or hair. Priscilla often goes on a two-day diet of fruit juices and raw vegetables. At the moment she's soaking up some desert sun after completing "Miss Wheelwright Discovers America."

Solve Knotty Etiquette Detail

ASK ANY girl—she'll tell you that the man she prefers to go out with is the well-bred man.

Dining at a restaurant, for instance, there are so many moments when a man's manners can make his companion feel proud or ashamed.

Perhaps a girl will speak to him from across the room. Will he partly rise and bow, as he should? Or will he just flap his hand in greeting? If the latter you may be sure his companion will wish she'd stayed home with a book!

She'll be embarrassed, too, if he's the sort who drinks soup from the tip instead of from the side of his spoon or if he takes rolls with a fork instead of his fingers.

Yet it's easy to learn the manners that make you a pleasing companion. Going to the movies? Gracious for the man to ask the girl "Where would you like to sit?" And she should remember it's the girl's place to suggest when to leave. A motoring date? He'll ring her doorbell when he calls for her, never signal with his horn, and she in turn won't fiddle with car window or radio without saying "May I?"

Would you like to have more friends, more fun? Our 40-page booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, gives the smooth, charming manners that will help you shine at parties, dinners, restaurants, the theater; when dating, traveling, visiting, motoring. Includes table manners.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY to THE NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Matching Collars, Coiffures

Hollywood, Calif.—While the rest of the feminine world is concerned about wearing the correct hat to flatter its hair-dos, Brenda Marshall believes a thought should be given to coiffures to harmonize with the latest necklines. She recommends an extremely high pompadour with Gibson girl collars and off-the-shoulder necklines, frizzed bangs and prim little back knots with mid-Victorian collars, and a long bob with Buster Brown bangs with wide neckwear in starched lace or stiff pique.

Milk Is Essential For Reducing Diets

Milk is probably the most satisfactory food there is for reducing diets, says the National Dairy Council, and, paradoxically, equally satisfactory for those who want to restore weight.

The secret of this all-purpose value of milk is its adaptability and efficiency in fitting into protective diets.

The United States Department of Agriculture asserts that "milk is such a rich source of calcium, for example, that it isn't easy to have a well-balanced diet without it, even if we disregard its other food values."

A pint of whole milk provides only a little over 300 calories, which is less than a single serving of most desserts.

Will-Lighted Mirror Is Greatest Aid To Good Grooming

Hollywood, Calif.—Perc Westmore, who directs the Warner Bros. makeup department, believes that badly lighted mirrors are responsible for the majority of ill-groomed women one sees on the streets.

Many dressing tables are tucked away in dark corners and equipped with only a shaded nightlight. Consequently, when women apply makeup they haven't the slightest idea of how their faces will look in broad daylight or under brilliant artificial lights.

For the studio makeup department, Mr. Westmore has designed a huge three-paneled mirror completely surrounded by indirect lighting. Every star who comes under his glamorizing tutelage eventually has a similar one in her dressing room at home.

"When lighting up a mirror for makeup purposes," says Westmore, "one should remember that the face is to be illumined as well as the reflection. One should also sit close enough to the mirror to examine the face without fear or prejudice, and the hand mirror should also be well lighted.

Greely Party Honors Mexico Embassy Staff

By Elizabeth Hennev

"DOWN MEXICO WAY" might well have been the theme of the Greely party yesterday afternoon, for the host and hostess, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John Nesmith Greely, will soon be on their way down to the border, where Gen. Greely will take command of the Second Division at San Antonio, Tex. And the honor guests at yesterday's fete were all members of the Mexican Embassy staff. They included Col. Cristobal Guzman Cardenas, Military Attache, and Senora de Guzman Cardenas; Commander Manuel Zermeno, Naval Attache, and Senora de Zermeno, and Lieut. Col. P. A. Jose Perez Allende, Assistant Military Attache for Air.

The event was given during the twilight hours in the conservatory of the Chevy Chase Country Club, where the guests could look out over the rolling green of the golf course and into the nearby garden where yellow jonquils nodded happily among the trees.

Receiving at the door of the conservatory with her husband and the honor guests, Mrs. Greely was gowned in black, street length, accented with necklace, bracelet and earrings fashioned of fascinating globes of varying size, in a shade of translucent mauve. With it she wore an orchid corsage. Senora de Guzman Cardenas was a symphony in turquoise, with both hat and gown of that shade, and accented her costume with a spray of gardenias.

Senora de Zermeno was chic in all black, with a large off-the-face picture hat to match. She also wore a gardenia corsage.

Running almost the length of one end of the glassed-in conservatory was a narrow table, centered by a large vase of blended snapdragons and forsythia, and flanked by a row of tall pink tapers in crystal holders. From it guests were plied with all manner of tempting viands from pretzels to canapes and from orange juice to scotch and ——.

Generally assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. Edward G. Sherburne, Mrs. Charles Lyman, Mrs. Horace Smith, Mrs. Everett Yon and Mrs. Charles Baird.

Cave-Dwellers And Officials Mix

Guests who dropped in included a cross-section of Washington's official, diplomatic and cave-dwelling circles. George Hewitt Myers was one of the early arrivals, as were Mr. and Mrs. Max Kauffmann. Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley D. Embick, the Inspector General, Maj. Gen. Virgil L. Peterson, and Mrs. Peterson, the latter wearing a floor-length black paillettted dinner gown; the Commandant of Fort Belvoir, Col. Roscoe C. Crawford, and Mrs. Crawford.

Later, the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera dropped in, the latter gowned in black with a matching hat. Col. Arthur R. Harris, who will soon be leaving here for another station, was telling friends that he would be replaced here by Col. Charles Beatty Moore, who has just been recalled to active duty.

Mrs. Wendelin Among Guests

Much the center of attention was Mrs. Eric Wendelin, who was looking exceptionally smart in a brown frock which was trimmed down the front with large buttons in the shape of brass-hooped barrels. She and her husband were the only members of the American Embassy in Madrid at the time of the Spanish revolution and her stories of the three months she spent in that city (before being evacuated to France) were definitely hair-raising—more so than ever because of the calm, matter-of-fact way in which she told them, as, for example, "you get used to the sound of guns all the time very quickly, but it was quite amazing to me how very safe I felt as long as there was a wall between me and the firing, when, as a matter of fact, later on the bullets came through the walls of our apartment with the greatest of ease."

Still others noted were the Commandant of Fort Myer, Col. William W. Gordon, and Mrs. Gordon; Col. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher, Col. and Mrs. Hugh Rowan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson, Brig. Gen. Wade Hampden Haislip, the Paymaster General of the Navy, Rear Admiral Ray Spear and Mrs. Spear, Mrs. William Bryden, wife of Gen. Bryden; Maj. and Mrs. Arthur C. McAuliffe; Mrs. Robert Ralston, Mrs. Henry Jewett, Mrs. Alice Goodwin and her sister, Miss Katherine Goodwin; Miss Rose Greely, sister of Gen. Greely, and the general's brother, Adolphus Greely, and Mrs. Greely, and scores more.

Many Luncheons On F Street Club Calendar

Several interesting luncheon parties went on the calendar at the 1925 F Street Club yesterday. Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie and her Washington hostess, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, were in a party for six, which also included Representative and Mrs. Richard B. Wigglesworth. Mrs. J. Butler Wright and her daughter, Miss Edith Wright, were at a nearby table, and across the room Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., was lunching with Miss Elaine Vicaji, well-known artist who formerly lived in London.

Largest luncheon of the day at the club was the one given in honor of Mrs. Theodore Allen Dees, of Lake Charles, La. The hostess was her sistetr-in-law, Mrs. J. Fred Essary. Mrs. Dees came to Washington to attend the annual stunt party of the Women's National Press Club on Tuesday night. Accompanying her was Miss Emma Michie, also of Lake Charles, who was among guests at the stunt dinner and also the luncheon yesterday.

Others at the luncheon included a third person from Lake Charles, Mrs. C. O. Noble, who arrived in Washington yesterday morning and will be here for a brief stay before going on to New York and then to the Virgin Islands for a week's visit. Still other guests of Mrs. Essary yesterday were Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Mrs. Joseph Casey, Mrs. George Rublee, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. George S. Holmes, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Albert Warner, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Mrs. John O. Herrick, Mrs. Harry Blair, Mrs. Samuel Tilden Ansell, jr., Miss Evelyn Gordon, Miss Betty Hynes, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, and Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, who returned to Washington early yesterday after having spent several weeks visiting friends in Florida.

Mrs. Essary and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., will entertain at a dinner tonight at the 1925 F Street Club, having as their guests several official hostesses and some ladies from out of town whose husbands will be attending the Gridiron Dinner. Later, several in the company will go on to the post-Gridiron party that Mrs. Eleanor Patterson will give at her home on Dupont Circle.

Miss Sherman Is Engaged

Classmates at the Cathedral School of Miss Martha Levering Sherman will be interested to learn of her engagement to the Rev. John Gilbert Hindley Baker, son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Ernest Baker, of Bromley, Kent, England.

Announcement was made by the prospective bride's father, the Rev. Arthur M. Sherman, of New York. After being graduated from the Cathedral School here, she attended Mount Holyoke College and Columbia University.

Mr. Baker attended the Westminister School in London and was graduated from Oxford University. Formerly a secretary of the British Student Christian movement he is now associated with student work in Kumming, Southwest China.

Mrs. J. B. Mann, Daughter, Give Tea For Miss Coleman

Pregridiron Whirl Begun By Pearsons

By Dudley Harmon

The pre-Gridiron whirl got thoroughly under way yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson gave a cocktail party for Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton. The former chairman of the Republican National Committee and Mrs. Hamilton are in town from Philadelphia for the Gridiron dinner tonight. Tomorrow will see them off again for Philadelphia.

The Pearsons have completely remodeled their home in the last month, which led to some confusion yesterday. Some guests insisted on entering by the tradesmen's entrance, and vice versa The front hall is where the kitchen used to be, etc., all very bewildering to some of the arrivals.

Mrs. Pearson, who insists she's one of the nervous, or "shifting-eyed" hostesses, didn't look it yesterday as she welcomed her guests in the drawing room. She wore a floor-length dress with yellow organdy blouse and a full brown skirt.

Elliott Roosevelt Among Guests

Seen here and there:

Capt. Elliott Roosevelt, in town for a few days, was one of those in the "back room" . . . this is an attractive bar with a huge fireplace and dark-paneled walls . . . The Brazilian Ambassador and Senora de Martins came by, the latter wearing a fur jacket with her dress.

Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., chatted with Capt. Roosevelt . . . she wore a tailored suit, as did Mrs. Horace Peters, a next-door neighbor of the Pearsons . . . Mrs. "Liz" Whitney, up from the "hunting" country (please don't call it the "hunt" country, urged an inhabitant, a stickler for the correct, though complicated lingo of that region) . . . Gen. Allen W. Gullion chatted with Mrs. Lionel Atwill, who was bound for a dinner party somewhere.

Mrs. James Forrestal, wife of the Undersecretary of the Navy, doffed the white uniform in which she has been presiding as flower-seller for the Piccadilly Arcade, in favor of a black dress with a white ruffled hem, and a hat with white veiling.

Many Linger At Party

The British Embassy was represented by Brig. C. L. Lindemann, William Elmslie, and one or two others . . . Mrs. Eleanor Patterson and Mrs. Thurman Arnold had their heads together . . . Thomas Burke, chief of communications for the State Department, was accompanied by Mrs. Burke, who wore a gray tailored suit . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Howe dropped in for a few minutes—they are nearby neighbors of the Pearsons.

Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, wore a tiny hat trimmed with pale pink roses with her black dress and fur jacket . . . Others there included Mrs. Sutherland Mayo, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Mrs. Waggaman Pulver, who is staying with the Smiths for a day or two before joining her mother in South Carolina; Robert Coe, Pendleton Hogan, Kemper Simpson, who has just bought a house in Georgetown; Mrs. Higginson Rogers, Miss Mary Wright, Denys Smith, Dr. Eugene de Savitsch, and several others.

Blooms Return To Capital After Vacation in South

Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom are again at their home on Columbia Road, after a vacation of several weeks in Florida and Charleston, S. C. Mr. Bloom went down to rest after the ardors of helping to get the lend-lease bill through Congress.

In Florida the Blooms visited friends in Sarasota. To their surprise, they found that the former Hungarian Minister and Mme. Pelenyi were a few miles away, at Treasure Island. The Pelenyis have taken a cottage there and several members of Mme. Pelenyi's family are visiting them.

In Charleston the Bloom family lunched and dined with friends there and visited the famous Magnolia Gardens.

Freers to Entertain At Dinner Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Freer, of Westmoreland Hills, will entertain tonight at a small dinner at the Army and Navy Country Club. The party is for Mrs. Freer's son, Barry Sullivan, and his house guest, Bradford Greason, of Wellesley Hills, Mass.

Others in the party will be Miss Mabel Walker Willebrandt, jr., Miss Precious Darr, Miss Nancy Stover, Miss Phyllis Gatling, Dmitri Leslie and Wirt Cabell.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

DINING WITH the former Prime Minister of France and Mme. Camille Chautemps the other evening one was reminded that, with the French, family always comes first. Presented to the guests along with the cocktails was the 10-months-old daughter of the house who entered in the arms of her English nurse and beamed politely at each of us in turn. She is a real refugee baby, having been born during her parents' exodus from their country, and has the poise of one who has seen the worst in life and can "take it."

M. and Mme. Chautemps seem to have taken America to their hearts. They are polishing up their English with lessons and Mme. Chautemps divides her spare time between a bridge club where she recently won a championship tournament, and her piano. Before her marriage she was known all over France as a concert pianist under the name of Mlle. Durand-Tex.

Among those gathered around the Chautemps' hospitable table that evening were Representative E. E. Cox, of Georgia, accompanied by Mrs. Cox and their pretty daughter who is a classmate of Madame Chautemps' elder daughter at the Maret School, former Ambassador William C. Bullitt, the Minister to Latvia and Estonia, John C. Wiley, and Mrs. Wiley, Robert Murphy, Counselor of the U. S. Embassy at Vichy, Joseph Alsop and several others.

A POPULAR weekend visitor to the Capital is Mrs. Granger Brown who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Alfred Granger, at her newly-acquired house in Georgetown. Mrs. Brown lived in Washington for several years and has many friends here. At present she makes her headquarters in New York where she is seriously pursuing a Red Cross nursing course. The night of her arrival here Mrs. Brown was started off in a whirl of gaiety by a dinner-party given in her honor by her sister, Mrs. Arthur Krock, and Mr. Krock. Also being welcomed back that evening were the U. S. Minister to Canada and Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat who are here on leave and are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thoron. Also present were the British Military Attache, Major General F. G. Beaumont-Nesbitt, Representative and Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth, Mr. and Mrs. Thoron, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Mrs. Arthur Cable, William Elmslie, and Ronald Tree who is staying at the British Embassy.

Among the informal parties being planned for Mrs. Brown are two cocktail parties with the Chauncey Parkers and the Jasper Du Bosts as respective hosts.

THE Financial Attache of the French Embassy, Herve Alphand, and Mme. Alphand gathered friends together for cocktails at the Shoreham the other afternoon. The Alphands live in New York where M. Alphand has his office but frequent trips to the Capital have made them very well known here. Mme. Alphand, a beautiful ash-blond, was chic in pale gray and a net of black chenille in place of a hat. She had arranged the hotel room to her own liking with small tables decorated with wax tapers and spring flowers.

Center of an interested group was the Counselor of the United States Embassy at Vichy, Robert Murphy, who had just arrived in Washington on leave. He brought news of M. Alphand's sister, charming Marie-Vic Charpentier, who was so popular in Washington when her husband was stationed here as aide to Ambassador Georges Bonnet. The Charpentiers are in Morocco and Mr. Murphy saw them on his recent visit there.

Dropping by for a drink and a chat with the Alphands that afternoon was almost the whole French Embassy staff beginning with the Ambassador. There was Claude de Boisanger being welcomed back to Washington after five years in Egypt and France, and the former French Naval Attache Capt. Pierre Benech, being told goodby again after a flying trip here from his present post in Martinique. Also glimpsed around the candle-lit tables were the State Department's adviser on economic affairs, Herbert Feis and Mrs. Feis; Robert Coe and Samuel Reber, also of the department; Baroness Baeyens looking very well after her recent stay in Hot Springs, and a number of others.

The Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor are spending the weekend at a nearby resort so that Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor can recuperate from the whirl of activities attendant on the recent marriage of their eldest daughter, Adelaide. With the marriage of their daughter, Rose, in the offing, a little rest would seem in order.

Halifaxes Give Dinner at Embassy

The British Ambassador and Viscountess Halifax were hosts at a dinner last night at the Embassy on Massachusettts Avenue.

Lady Halifax returned yesterday from New York, where she made an address at a gathering of 2,300 women at a luncheon on Wednesday at the Waldorf-Astoria. The function took place under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. world's emergency committee.

Have Luncheon at Historic Cosmos Club

Underwood & Underwood

Members of the Filing and Lending Committee of the District D. A. R. yesterday made a tour of the premises of the Cosmos Club, learned of the history of the buildings, and then had luncheon there. Left to right are Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent of the District D. A. R.; Mrs. W. J. Clearman, chairman of the committee, and Mrs. John Donaldson, who acted as hostess for the club

Woodridge Club To Hear Sen. Aiken

Senator George D. Aiken, of Vermont, will be the guest speaker at the April meeting of the Woodridge Garden Club to be held Monday evening in the McKendree Church, Twenty-fourth and Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, at 8 p. m.

This is the first Garden Club talk given by the Senator in Washington, but in New England his fame as lecturer on wildflowers is widespread. "Pioneering With Wildflowers," the subject of Senator Aiken's illustrated lecture, is also the title of one of his books.

His interest in flowers dates from a very early age, for at 18 Senator Aiken was already president of the Vermont Horticultural Society. Boosting wildflowers gave him a wide acquaintance. Soon he went to the State Legislature, became speaker of the House, lieutenant governor, Governor for two terms, and now is in Washington. But wildflowers are still one of his major interests.

Mrs. Moe Offenberg, president of the local chapter, and other Washington Hadassah leaders will receive with Dr. Weitzman.

C. A. R. to Dedicate At Moore House

Tomorrow, a room in the historic Moore House at Yorktown, Va., will be dedicated by the National Society, Children of the American Revolution.

The furniture of the room is a gift of the organization. The C. A. R. room joins the famous surrender room in which the Article of Capitulation for the surrender of Gen. Cornwallis' army was drafted after the victory of Gen. George Washington and America's allies. The house, which stands on the shore of the York River is an interestnig example of the architecture of colonial Tidewater Virginia.

The restoration of this room was undertaken by the Children of the American Revolution under the direction of its national historian, Mrs. John F. Weinmann, and will be accepted by Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, national president of the C. A. R., and Elbert Cox, United States Park Service.

Finland's Travail Told By Envoy

Huge Estates Split To Aid War Stricken, Procope Declares at Congressional Club

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor

Finland has gone into the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation with the same unanimity as when she fought for her existence and liberty, the Minister of Finland, Hjalmar Procope, told members of the Congressional Club yesterday.

Introduced by Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg, the Finnish Minister expressed the gratitude of his country for the help already extended by the United States and told of the great need still existing.

"For the refugees, new homes and new farms are created," he said. "We are taking the land from the state and from private landowners. A friend of mine who owns an estate comprising, except vast forest tracts, about 1,500 acres of tilled soil, cedes of this 1,100 acres to the new farmers.

"Furthermore, we are paying compensations to those who have suffered losses, and, in order to do this, we have introduced a progressive capital levy to be paid in a short space of time.

"This levy is rather heavy. A man who owns a net fortune of $20,000 has to pay about $2,000, and in the highest bracket a man whose net fortune is $1,000,000 has to cede of that $200,000. And please note that I am speaking about fortune, not about income."

"But in spite of all difficulties," said the Minister, "we feel confident that being left in peace, we will be able to fulfill the task of reconstruction before us. We have still plenty of arable land; we have the greatest forests in Europe, outside Russia; we have mineral resources and water power still unutilized. And the development during the 20 years of peace showed that our economic life is built on a sound basis.

"But all our efforts in order to reconstruct our country and heal the wounds of the war cannot save us from the difficulties of the present moment," he said. "We have not enough foodstuffs and other essential commodities, and therefore the Finnish nation faces starvation, exposure and epidemics, as far as help is not gotten from abroad. We do not export foodstuffs and other essential commodities and nothing of that kind has been brought out from our country.

"Imports to Finland are possible, but our funds are running low as our exports by which we used to pay for our imports are only a fraction of what they used to be," he said.

"I state it openly and frankly," declared the Minister, "Finland as a nation needs help both in kind and in the financial field and therefore we are so deeply grateful for the assistance we get from our friends in this country."

Miss Anne Hooley Named Community Service Assistant

Miss Anne Sarachon Hooley, of Kansas City, Mo., nationally known business executive and youth leader, has been named assistant executive director of the National Catholic Community Service, it was announced by the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit and chairman of the board of trustees of the National Catholic Community Service.

MISS ANNE HOOLEY

Miss Hooley will coordinate and direct the work of Catholic women in connection with the N. C. C. S., which has been designated as the official Catholic agency to care for the religious, recreational and welfare needs of communities adjacent to Army cantonments, naval and industrial centers. She will assume her new duties immediately.

Goodwill Plans 'Open House'

Plans for the annual spring "open house" at the Goodwill Industries were made today by the Goodwill Guild, of which Mrs. William O. Douglas is president.

The workrooms and stores at 1218 New Hampshire Avenue will be open daily, April 15, 16 and 17, for visitors to see how handicapped Goodwill employes transform discarded clothing, shoes, furniture and other household furnishings into serviceable articles once again.

Younger members of the guild will act as guides, under the direction of Mrs. I. B. Kirkland, jr. Tea will be served in the parlors of the administration building from 3 to 5 p. m. Hostesses announced by Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby, chairman of the hospitality committee are: Mrs. Joseph Paul, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Mrs. Garland Ferguson, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Charles M. Linebarger, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. J. M. Owens, Mrs. James C. Peacock, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Edward R. Stitt, Mrs. J. Brent Clark and Mrs. Chesly Manly.

D. A. R. Group Is Entertained At Cosmos Club

Tales of old Washington and of the gay social activity—balls, drawing rooms, dinners, levees—which once centered around the "Seven Houses" of Lafayette Square—provided the program for the District D. A. R. filing and lending bureau committee's meeting held Friday morning in the Cosmos Club.

The meeting opened with a short tour of the premises as this club, maintained exclusively for men distinguished in the field of science, literature, fine arts or a learned profession, is about to seek new quarters. The building, made up of two of the famous "Seven"—the Dolly Madison home, opening on H Street, and the Benjamin Ogle Tayloe mansion, on Madison Place—is about to be torn down in order to make room for new Government offices.

At 11, members and guests gathered in the auditorium, once the stable of the famous Tayloe horses. Here, as honor guest, the State regent, Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, spoke briefly, touching on the value to this country's national life of historic landmarks and expressing the hope that nearby Decatur House might be preserved, although these buildings were to go.

Mrs. John Donaldson, active in A. A. U. W. circles, as hostess to the committee, gave an interesting history of the Cosmos Club, together with that of each of the two century-old houses taken over by the club in 1886.

Mrs. Joseph C. Thoma, regent of Independence Bell Chapter, gave the story of the Dolly Madison portrait hanging in the lounge; Mrs. Henry O. Pattison, Mrs. Leo Kasehagen and Mrs. William H. Harper recalled personal observations and experiences of Lafayette Square and the Tayloe mansion. Mrs. Harper quoted from the scrapbook of her husband's grandfather, who built the Tayloe mansion.

Miss Alice Paul To Be Tea Guest Of Woman's Party

Miss Alice Paul, president of the World Woman's Party, who has just arrived from Geneva, after two years away from the United States, will be the guest of honor at tea tomorrow afternoon at the National Woman's Party, Alva Belmont House. Mrs. Harvey Wiley, president of the organization, and Mrs. George Mesta, Congressional committee chairman, will be hostesses to several hundred guests.

Sidney's Orchestra will play in the garden gallery during the reception and tea. If the weather is fair, the flagged garden terrace will be open to the guests.

73 Club To Honor Mrs. Roosevelt On Wednesday

The 73 Club will hold its annual luncheon in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt in the Chinese room at the Mayflower on Wednesday at 12:30.

The guest artist will be Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer, accompanied by Miss Elena Crivella. Mme. Dreszer is the widow of the former inspector general of the Polish army and first minister of the air of Poland.

Mrs. Paul Brown, president of the club, has appointed the following for the luncheon committees: Arrangements, Mrs. James P. Richards and Mrs. Prentis Brown; seating, Mrs. J. Hardin Peterson, Mrs. Mon Wallgren, Mrs. Walter Pierce, Mrs. John Lesinski, Mrs. Charles Faddis; decorations, Mrs. Martin F. Smith, Mrs. Anthony Diamond, Mrs. Edward Eicher and Mrs. Herman Kopplemann.

Bridges Called 'Comrade,' Court Hears

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, April 4.—A witness at Harry Bridges' deportation hearing said today the C. I. O. labor leader often was referred to as comrade by a Communist Party labor organizer.

Ezra Chase, termite exterminator and a former Communist, also testified that some Communists from the Douglas aircraft factory attended a meeting in Los Angeles at which Bridges "laid down the Communist Party line."

The witness described the line as being plans for bringing A. F. of L. unions bodily into the C. I. O., rather than in small groups.

Chase, frequently referred to by defense attorneys as a "labor spy," said he was ordered to attend the meeting in September, 1937, or face disciplinary action.

He said Lou Baron, who organized the trade union section of the party at Los Angeles, often referred to Bridges as comrade in conversations.

Referring to Chase as a labor spy led to bitter wrangling and caused Albert Del Guercio, of Government counsel, to call Defense Attorney Richard Gladstein a Communist.

Chase was the first witness to link Bridges with the Communist Party. The Government is seeking to deport Bridges to his native Australia on the ground he is or was a Communist and that the party advocates violence to overthrow the Government.

Peace Depends On U. S. Weapons, Patterson Says

How soon peace comes to a battered world "depends on how thoroughly America does her share in serving as the arsenal of beleaguered democracies," Undersecretary of War Patterson told 72 new graduates of the Army Industrial College here yesterday.

Patterson, speaking at graduation exercises in the Social Security Building, told the officers, "I know you will do your share."

Included in the graduating class, first in the college's 17 years to have only three months for its course, were 11 naval officers, 2 Marine Corps officers and 59 Army officers.

Maj. Trawick Dies After Accident

Police yesterday were notified of the death in Walter Reed Hospital Thursday of Maj. Dan G. Trawick, 42, U. S. Army, who was brought to the hospital from Anniston, Ala., January 4, suffering injuries received in an automobile accident.

Details of the accident were not available here although it was said the major's car was in collision with another on the Birmingham road, December 28.

Sale to Benefit R.A.F. Families Does $9,000 Business Here

The Piccadilly Arcade, operated for benefit of the Royal Air Force at 1423-25 F Street Northwest, did a $9,000 business Thursday, it was announced yesterday.

Every cent will go to the British air fighters' benevolent fund for the use of the aviators' widows and families. The Arcade's operation costs have been underwritten.

More than $1,000 was taken in by the book section. Yale University procured the manuscript of Archibald MacLeish's "American Cause," and four volumes of Chinese essays, donated by the Chinese Ambassador, were purchased by William Castle, former Undersecretary of State, and presented to Harvard University.

"We need more cake," said Mrs. Patrick Hill, vice chairman of the Arcade. Cookery was bought fast and persons with such to contribute were asked to bring it today.

Antiques and wax flowers have been heavy sellers, as have autographed pictures of Deanna Durbin, the Hollywood star. Several hundred Hollywood celebrities contributed signed pictures and Miss Durbin was out in front on the basis of sales.

Popular with patrons have been gilt boxes, containing inexpensive trinkets. Each sells for $1 and pays the way of a London child for a week in the country. The Arcade will continue through today.

42 Pay Income Tax On $1,000,000

Forty-two persons paid income taxes on individual incomes of $1,000,000 or more last year.

The number of million-dollar incomes was eight fewer than in the preceding year, but experts attributed the change to technical factors in connection with reporting of capital gains. Names were not disclosed.

The 42 paid $46,073,000 Federal income tax between them on their 1939 incomes, the Treasury reported.

The millionaire crop last year was far short of the record of 513 who between them paid $191,000,000 in taxes on 1929 incomes.

Admiral Hepburn Is Told to Report To Knox for Duty

Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, former commander in chief of the fleet and president of the board that selected the sites and drafted the program for the establishment of naval air and submarine bases on American possessions in the Pacific and Atlantic, was ordered yesterday to report to the Secretary of the Navy for duty.

Admiral Hepburn is commandant of the Twelfth Naval District and the operating base at San Francisco.

Rear Admiral John W. Greenslade, now a member of the general board, was ordered to San Francisco to succeed Admiral Hepburn. Admiral Greenslade was head of the board that selected the sites for American bases on British-owned islands in the Atlantic.

Capt. Jules James, now on duty in the office of naval operations, was ordered to Bermuda, where he will assume command of the naval operating base recently acquired from the British. The base will be established April 7.

Zacharia L. King Dies at 53; Heart-Attack Victim

Zacharia L. King, 53, instructor on furs for the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, died of a heart attack yesterday morning, shortly after coming to work at the plant's institute, 7901 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

MR. KING

Hearing Mr. King call for help, Richard Mayhue, a plant engineer, ran to Mr. King, who was in the furroom. The rescue squad of the Silver Spring, Md., Volunteer Fire Department and Dr. H. H. Howlett were summoned. Mr. King was pronounced dead by Dr. Howlett. Later Dr. C. E. Hawks, county medical examiner, issued a certificate of death caused by a heart condition.

One of the country's leading authorities in the care of furs, Mr. King came to Silver Spring three years ago from Houston, Tex. He made his home at 8221 Schrider Street. Born in Winiona, Miss., Mr. King had been in the fur business for 25 years, beginning as an apprentice.

Besides his wife, Annie Laura King, he leaves two sons, Paul King, of Washington, and J. E. King, of Houston, Tex. Funeral arrangements are not completed.

Minister Tells Of Canada's War Effort

To clear up what he called "a grave misconception" on the part of some Americans, Leighton G. McCarthy, the new Canadian Minister to the United States, yesterday told what Canada has done, is doing and will do to help defeat Nazi Germany.

In picturing Canada's war effort, Minister McCarthy reminded Americans of the sharp difference in the populations of the two countries.

He said that Canada had 250,000 men on active service—more than 65,000 of whom are in Britain or in outposts such as Gibraltar.

"Canada has a population of 11,500,000," Minister McCarthy said. "The population of the United States is 132,000,000. Thus Canada's quarter of a million men on active service is equivalent to an armed strength of over two and three-quarter million men from a country the size of the United States."

The Canadian envoy said that the quarter of a million men on active duty was made up of volunteers who have enlisted for service anywhere in the world. It did not include, he said, the 175,000 men in the reserve army, who are subject to call only for the defense of Canada.

He said there were now three squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force serving overseas. One of the fighter squadrons, he said, had brought down 70 Nazi planes over England last September. From the British commonwealth air training plan, which is being carried out in Canada, 25 Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons will be formed for service overseas.

Minister McCarthy said that the commonwealth training plan—which trains airmen and ground crews for the whole British Empire—will be turning out 25,000 to 30,000 air and ground men a year by the end of 1941. Already, he said, 2,000 airmen have been turned out for service overseas.

The minister said that Canada's navy, which once consisted of 15 ships, now has 181 ships and a personnel of 16,500. The ships include 7 destroyers which were among the 50 that the United States swapped for British island bases.

Canada, he said, also has been providing Britain with corvettes to fight submarines, with motor trucks and mechanized equipment. It was Canadian mechanized equipment, he recalled, that Gen. Wavell used in his drive across Libya. The Dominion, he said, also was producing tanks, Bren machine guns, 3-inch mortars, and a vast amount of munitions and raw materials, not to mention food supplies for Britain.

Canada, he said, would spend about 44 per cent of her national income on the war effort in the next fiscal year. A single man with an income of $2,750 a year, he said, was obliged to pay an income tax of $195 and a special national defense tax of $82.50.

How About a Glass Front?

Police officials yesterday asked the Commissioners for $1,100 to build a fence around the new Second Precinct Station, New York Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Streets Northwest.

Someone wanted to know why the police needed protection and indicated the request would be rejected.

Remodeled D. C. Jail Is Unused

Wings of Structure Designed to Care for 328 Are Crowded With 490 Prisoners

Although accepted as completed by the Commissioners last December the $500,000 remodeled District Jail is still uninhabited, it was learned last night.

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., said he would ask Supt. Ray L. Huff of the District Penal Institutions for a complete report.

In the meantime, 490 prisoners yesterday were crowded into the two new wings of the jail plant, which were designed to care for but 328 inmates.

For many years citizen groups agitated for a new District Jail. Finally, under the $18,150,000 PWA program, an allotment of $1,250,000 was set aside for two new wings for the jail and remodeling of the old building into a modren and well-equipped prison.

Wings Completed Last Year

The wings were completed on March 1, 1940, and the prisoners moved there from the old building, which then underwent extensive remodeling.

Supt. Huff yesterday denied there was any "sleeping on the floors" in the new detention wings, but said that the dormitories in the remodeled portion of the jail were being used to take care of the "overflow." The dormitories are over the new kitchen in the main building.

One official said the delay is caused by the lack of a telephonic system used by guards in the main building in communications with other guards in the detention wings. On the other hand Supt. Huff said this was not the case.

Denies Space Shortage

He said there is no housing problem at this time and there is no need for "moving into" the new jail. He said this could be done, however, if there is a sudden increase in the jail population.

The superintendent said that his staff is engaged in testing the lighting arrangement in the new cells of the unoccupied building; they were painting inside the cells for better reflections, adjusting the lighting effects throughout the jail, putting screens in certain windows not included in the contractor's work and installing toilets for the guards.

Col. McCoach pointed out that all the work contracted for was completed.

Auto Victim Dies; Two Inquests Set

D. C. traffic deaths this year.... 22
Deaths this date last year..... 16
District total last year..... 79

While District authorities completed plans to hold two traffic inquests today, Charles F. Lemmon, 69, of 103 Thornapple Street, Chevy Chase, Md., died at Georgetown Hospital yesterday, victim of an automobile accident near his home.

Assistant chief of the design division, United States Patent Office, Mr. Lemmon was knocked down by an automobile at Connecticut Avenue and Taylor Street, just north of Chevy Chase Circle, January 18. He suffered a fractured hip and compound fractured left leg.

Police said the automobile was operated by Robert S. Keller, 21, of 3621 Van Ness Street Northwest, who was charged with reckless driving.

Leaves Sister in Brazil

Mr. Lemmon roomed at the home of Edward W. Holmes, who said the man's only living relative was a sister, Mrs. Heloise de Silva, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Mr. Lemmon's body was resting at the Hines funeral home last night pending word from Mrs. de Silva regarding burial.

Records at the Patent Office showed that Mr. Lemmon went to work at the bureau in 1886 as a messenger and, except for a year between 1906 and 1907, remained in patent service.

A coroner's jury today will investigate the District traffic deaths of Frank V. Brogan, 45, of 4624 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, and John W. Curtis, colored, 18, of 1812 Gainesville Street Southeast.

Inquest Delayed

Mr. Brogan was killed January 11, when the automobile he was a passenger in crashed into another car at New Hampshire and Eastern Avenues Northeast. The inquest has been delayed pending the recovery of Harry E. Archer, 40, of 4624 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, driver of the machine, who was seriously injured in the accident.

Mr. Curtis died a short time after a truck he was riding in crashed into a telephone pole on Morris Road Southeast, near Hunter Place, Thursday night.

Benjamin F. McCallip, colored, 21, of 42 Myrtle Street Northeast, driver of the truck, will appear at the hearing.

10% of D. C. Registrants Rated 1-A

Washington Selective Service headquarters yesterday released statistics showing that out of 25,881 District registrants so far classified, 2,619, or slightly more than 10 per cent, were given Class 1-A ratings.

The report, covering selection activities up to March 15, indicates the Capital is following closely expectations of draft planners before the act went into effect last fall. On the basis of 1917 experiences it had been predicted 10 per cent of American youth, 21-35, inclusive, would be found available for immediate service.

The headquarters statement also reported that a total of 48,805 Washingtonians have been sent questionnaires. Hence, a reservoir of trainees nearly double the number so far inducted are in the process of being classified.

By far the largest number of deferments came in Class 3, those relieved at least temporarily from duty because of dependents. Candidates numbering 15,193 were excused from service for this reason.

Only 714 registrants were deferred because of occupations considered necessary for the national defense and placed in Class 2.

A total of 2,129 men were placed in Class 4-F, those physically, mentally, or morally unfit for induction while 1,055 were classified in Class 1-D, students subject to call after June 1.

Other deferments were broken down as follows: Class 1-B, available for limited military service only, 1,771; Class 1-C, registrants already in the armed forces, 1,537; Class 1-D and Class 1-E students fit only for limited military service even after June 1, 11; Class 4-A, men who already have completed military service equivalent to selective training, 284; Class 4-B, Government officials, 6; Class 4-C, non-declarant aliens, 152; Class 4-D, ministers and divinity students, 198.

Chillum Heights Citizens Meet

The Chillum Heights Citizens Association last night voted to approve the Board of Education's request for 14 more teachers for handicapped children in the District.

Members received reports of recent street improvements in the area, including installation of street lights, stop signs and the paving of Blair Road.

Miss Thelma Fryer, teacher at Keene School, presented an entertainment in which several pupils participated.

Board Favors 9-Man Unit On Recreation

The Board of Education at a special meeting yesterday approved creation of a single nine-member recreation board for the District.

After approving the step "in principle" at its Wednesday meeting, the board yesterday agreed on the set-up of the recreation agency. This would consist of a member of the Board of Commissioners, a representative of the Board of Education, a member selected by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the superintendent of National Capital Parks ex officio and five citizens to be appointed by the Commissioners.

The board's approval will be sent to the President's District of Columbia Recreation Committee at its meeting at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in the State Department Building. The version approved by the board is substantially the same as that already approved in principle by the Commissioners and by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The recreation committee is expected to speed the bill to Congress.

Board of Education members had discussed adding the superintendent of schools as an ex officio member of the recreation board and reducing citizen members from five to four. Yesterday that proposal was discarded, the board's sentiment being that there should be a ratio of five citizens to four officials. However, the wording, "a representative of the Board of Education," would permit the superintendent or a board member to be designated on the recreation board.

Senate Passes Bill to Govern Use of the Flag

The Senate passed a bill yesterday to protect the Flag from "desecration and mutilation."

If adopted by the House, the measure would constitute the only Federal law governing treatment of the Flag of the United States with the exception of a statute enacted for the District of Columbia. The bill was modeled after the District law.

Senator Charles O. Andrews (Democrat), of Florida, was the author of the bill. It provides a maximum fine of $100 and jail sentence of 30 days for persons who "shall publicly mutilate, deface, or defy, trample upon or cast contempt, either by word or act," upon the Flag.

The bill also would make it a misdemeanor to inscribe a design, picture or words upon the Flag or to use the colors in connection with merchandise wrappings.

Commerce Unit Faces Overhauling

Bureau on Foreign, Domestic Trade To Be Reorganized Into Five Divisions

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce will undergo a drastic overhauling Monday "for greater service to Government and business in the future," Carroll L. Wilson, its new director, announced yesterday to a mass meeting of several hundred of the bureau employes.

More than 30 divisions have been condensed in five major organizations to simplify executive direction and intensify "the Bureau's effort in gathering, analyzing, interpreting and disseminating facts about national economy."

No groups of employes will be eliminated because of the changes, Wilson said, but he admonished them all to leave "if you can't play the game. We will not stand for a sabotage of our efforts by a few," he said.

Reorganization was forecast by a previous announcement by Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones of the formation of five new major divisions in the bureau. There are the division of research and statistics, industrial economy, regional economy, international economy and commercial and economic information.

Become Consultants

In the process, eight division heads have been made industrial consultants under the division of industrial economy, headed by Robert F. Martin, to work closely with industries with which they are familiar. The work of this division falls under seven units, as follows:

Export-import market information, merchandise, consumption materials, construction (to be formed), finished durable goods, durable materials and public utilities.

The division of international economy, headed by James H. Edwards, will provide the Government, exporters and importers with directive information on foreign economic and commercial affairs and on foreign national policies affecting commerce, Wilson announced.

The research and statistics division, headed by Joseph Meehan, will study the economic life of the Nation as a basis for all objectives of the bureau.

Affects 200 Employes

The regional economy division, headed by C. C. Fichtner, will direct continuous contact with the Nation's principal economic areas through a field force operating from strategically located offices and through cooperative research stations.

The commercial and economic information division, headed by James H. Morse, will distribute to business and Government the information assembled by the bureau's other divisions.

The reshuffling program will affect approximately 200 employes, Wilson said.

Randle Highlands Seeks Additional Transit Facilities

More streetcars on the Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast line are an urgent need of the Randle Highlands area, the Citizens Association representing that community declared last night.

Members asked that the Capital Transit Co. divert some of its Navy Yard cars to the Pennsylvania Avenue run. At present, it was pointed out the ratio is about four-to-one in favor of the Navy Yard.

The association also resolved to renew its fight for improvement of Twining Square at Pennsylvania and Minnesota Avenues. It accused the National Capital Parks office of "failing to do anything at all" with the area now under parks jurisdiction.

'Know Your Neighbors' Series to Open Monday

A "Know Your Neighbors" series of five lectures on economic, cultural and educational problems of the Western Hemisphere will be started Monday night by the Americanization School Association. Dr. J. de S. Coutinho, of the Georgetown University faculty, will speak on "Some Aspects of Latin America" at 8 p. m. at the school library, Tenth and H Streets Northwest.

Holy Cross Academy Girl Wins D. C. Oratory Contest

Extemporaneous commendation of American first principles as expressed in the Constitution last night won a 16-year-old Holy Cross Academy student the right to represent Washington in a national oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion.

Miss Mary Hayden, of 112 East Bradley Lane, Chevy Chase, Md., bested three other students from Washington secondary schools with a talk on the topic, "The Constitution, a Guarantee of Human Rights."

Miss Hayden described events leading to the drawing up of the Bill of Rights and summed up her speech with the words:

"As long as we support the principles expressed in the Bill of Rights, American democracy will never be in danger."

Other contestants were Miss Kathleen Hutchings, of Jefferson Junior High School; Robert E. Willenborg, Eastern High School, and Archer Johnson, of Dunbar High School.

Before commencement of the contest in Hall of Natural History, Smithsonian Institute, Guy U. Cogswell, chairman of legion's oratorical contest committee, delivered an address of welcome and a guard of honor massed colors. The Right Rev. Msgr. Louis C. Vaeth, Washington department chaplain of the American Legion, pronounced the invocation.

Judges were Justice David A. Pine, of District Court; Winfield D. Bennett, associate professor of public speaking at George Washington University; Albert A. Austin, instructor of public speaking at Georgetown University; Mrs. Frank Hoadley, English department, American University; Mrs. Leonea B. Dudley, English department, Howard University.

Miss Hayden will represent Washington at Roanoke, Va., in an Eastern Seaboard sectional round of the contest April 15.

Tax-Dodging Curbs Asked By Moser

A bill to require Federal employes to pay District income taxes unless they can prove they are taxpayers in States in which they claim legal residence was before the House Civil Service Committee yesterday.

Representative Guy D. Moser (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, author of the measure, declared its adoption would provide at least partial solution to the problem of legislators and city officials of finding additional District revenues to cover expenditures made necessary by the defense emergency.

The bill would not only require Federal employes to prove they are registered voters in States where they claim legal residence, but would make them produce certificates of payment of State taxes. Inability to do either would make them subject to District income tax payment.

False statement of residence or State tax payment would make employes subject to dismissal from the Government service. Moser characterized as un-American the practice of tax dodging by making false statement of residence. Such persons, he said, should also be subject to penalties in States where claimed tax payment cannot be established.

The Pennsylvanian, who is a member of the Civil Service Committee with Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, declared the bill would apply to Congressional employes as well as to workers in Federal agencies.

"This bill," he declared, "should smoke out those people who may have escaped their responsibilities as American citizens by claims which they may not be able to prove."

He observed that in instances where the courts have ruled domicile outside the District to be basis for District tax exemption no mention was made of whether or not the person claiming exemption also was a taxpayer.

Wiley Urges Bomb-Proofed U. S. Buildings

Federal buildings equipped with bomb shelters and arsenals easily accessible in event of attack by Fifth Columnists are envisioned in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Alexander Wiley (Republican), of Wisconsin.

The measure would authorize the Secretary of War to "prescribe rules and regulations for the inclusion in Federal public buildings hereafter constructed such construction features and facilities as he may deem advisable in the interest of national defense."

Government agencies responsible for Federal building construction would be required to comply with the Secretary's regulations.

Stating that 100 airplanes could level every public building in the Capital, Wiley urged Government architects to keep in mind "that we are living in an age of bombs and gas."

The experience of London and other bombed British cities, he said, has demonstrated that buildings can be built on designs that will minimize bomb damage.

In addition to drawing on knowledge obtained in studies of results of European bombings, Wiley suggested that the Government might provide new buildings with large bomb-proof assembly rooms to shelter employes from older Federal offices.

Plans Reserve Firemen

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., yesterday said he would study plans for a reserve fire-fighting force for the District as recommended by the National Defense Commission.

A tentative plan to train some 2,000 volunteer firemen who would serve as defense reserves has been formulated by the committee on civil protection of the District Defense Council. This plan, however, has not been forwarded as yet to the District Commissioners, who head the local Defense Council.

As visualized by officials, the city's corps of reserve firemen would be taken from the ranks of retired firemen or civilians, who men. Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter would head the setup.

Part of the training course would include: Fire prevention, fire fighting, fire alarm operation, first aid and defenses against sabotage and arson.

Luncheon to Honor G. W. U. Professors

Nineteen George Washington University faculty members with 25 years or more service will be honored at a luncheon at 1:15 p. m. today in the National Press Club.

Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, professor of European history and dean of university students, will lead the tribute. Dean Henry Grattan Doyle and Mrs. Doyle will be guests of honor.

Dean Doyle, one of the 25-year faculty members, will speak on "Wholehearted Inter-Americanism."

Four Plead Not Guilty In Rifling of U. S. Files

Four men accused of stealing confidential files from the Civil Service Commission entered not guilty pleas in the District Court yesterday.

Those appearing yesterday were Harlan W. Crandall, 29, suspended commission clerk; Lawrence L. Haynes, 26, of Standard Business Service; Walter August Caesar Camp, 35, president, and Werner Julius Orbach, 32, vice president, both of Vita Health Food Co.

12 D. C. Sites Considered For Offices

Plans for Building Temporary Structures In Arlington Dropped, President Gives Ideas

Approximately a dozen District tracts are under consideration as sites for six temporary office buildings for expanding Government defense staffs, Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody said last night.

The two-story frame structures with an expected capacity of 1,000 each, must be built on Federally owned District land. A restriction written into the appropriation bill Thursday stipulated this, forcing cancellation of plans for use of land on the Department of Agriculture's Experimental Farm in Arlington County.

The FWA chief said he toured a number of prospective sites here yesterday after a conference with President Roosevelt. The Chief Executive took part in the emergency office planning to the extent of suggesting possible sites, Carmody said.

"A substantial portion" of the space in the temporary buildings, to be of the walk-up type and to be torn down as soon as practicable, will be used by War Department workers.

Members of the expanding Office of Production Management also will be given office space in the new buildings, as will employes of miscellaneous Government defense projects, Carmody said.

The Administrator said he would continue his tour of possible sites today until he had inspected a dozen. Accompanying Carmody on the tour yesterday were representatives of the War Department, the Budget Bureau, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as well as two other FWA officials.

Dr. J. R. Biggs Heads Medical Directors Club

Dr. J. Rozier Biggs, prominent Washington insurance medical director, was elected president of the Middle Atlantic Medical Directors Club last night.

His election was announced at a banquet in the Dodge Hotel last night when Brig. Gen. Frank Hines, administrator of Veterans Affairs, spoke, admonishing doctors not to be too lenient in conducting physical examinations for selectees. He stressed the importance of physical fitness in the military service.

He also told the doctors that hospital facilities for Army and Navy men in the current emergency are better than those afforded soldiers and sailors in the World War.

Dr. J. M. H. Rowland, dean emeritus of the University of Maryland, was elected vice president. Dr. M. T. Boss, Baltimore, was chosen secretary. Elected new members of the board of directors are Dr. D. S. Garner, Roanoke, Va., and Dr. W. A. Price, Washington. The banquet followed session of scientific discussion in the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Commissioners Name Two Weeks For D. C. Cleanup

The District Commissioners and the Washington Board of Trade yesterday got together to give Washingtonians two weeks to make the city the "cleanest in the world."

An official proclamation covers the period of April 14 through April 26. Present in the District Building when the proclamation was issued were James E. Colliflower, president of the trade body; Dumont Beerbower, chairman of the board's Cooperate-for-Clean-Streets Committee, and Commissioners David McCoach, jr., and John Russell Young.

ARP Saved London, Says Author Klemmer

London might have been destroyed by Nazi bombers last winter if it had not been for the quick, thorough and efficient work of air-raid protection forces, Harvey Klemmer, for three years an attache in the United States Embassy in the British capital, told members of the National Geographic Society last night at Constitution Hall.

Klemmer's address on conditions in wartime England was accompanied by motion pictures of 24-hour-a-day defense production, a battle between planes and warships, the convoy system and an actual air raid in London.

"As soon as the 'all clear' signal sounds after each raid," Klemmer said, "Londoners quickly go back to work. You can't win a war by staying in an air-raid shelter."

Praising the morale of the British people, Klemmer, author of a new book, "They'll Never Quit," told the audience: "The backbone of a country's war record is factory and food production."

Shipbuilding, Klemmer explained, has become a race "between those who build and those who destroy." On the outcome of shipconstruction, he said, may depend the outcome of the war.

The lecture was the final one of the National Geographic Society's 1940-41 winter series.

Eckington Church Endeavor Society Stages Dinner

The Eckington Presybterian Christian Endeavor Society, older than the congregation itself, celebrated its annual dinner last night in a "time marches on" atmosphere.

Old-timers and today's members heard Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, in bringing "Time for Thought," declare that "it is time for Christians to give the very finest expression of their faith." He is pastor of First Baptist Church and past president of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Henry B. Wooding, Eckington pastor, spoke on "Winding the Clock," and Howard Cole was toastmaster. Mrs. M. W. Kling and Mrs. G. Harris were presented with boxes of candy for supervising the preparation of the fried chicken dinner. Miss Pauline Shoemaker, president of the District of Columbia Endeavor Union, was among the guests.

Also introduced were Glenn Barron, Virginia Evans and Florence Hodges, presidents of the senior, intermediate and junior endeavor societies at Eckington.

National U. Bests Harvard Debaters

National University debaters, upholding the affirmative of the proposition, "Union Now With Great Britain?" last night bested a Harvard University speaking team in a contest broadcast over Station WINX.

Debating for National were Miss Anne Murphy and Harry Gaberman, while Alexander Baylin and Richard Haber spoke for Harvard.

U. S. Rounding Up Chemical Causing Hair-Wave Poisoning

Additional quantities of a deadly chemical used in "heatless hair waving" were seized in Washington yesterday by Federal authorities prepared to take legal action against a California manufacturer.

Approximately 2 dozen packages of the preparation were confiscated from a second beauty parlor in a fashionable residential section of the city, Commissioner W. G. Campbell, of the Food and Drug Administration, announced. Previously, 60 packages had been seized from another parlor.

No further action in the District is anticipated, Campbell said, explaining that all wholesale lots of the product have been removed from local shops. He added, however, that seizures will continue in other parts of the country until the "market is cleared."

The "cold-wave" solution, a compound of ammonium hydrogen sulphide mixed with water, was held responsible for the death of Mrs. Agnes Scott Searcy, Griffin, Ga., and Washington society matron, March 19. Mrs. Searcy died a few hours after leaving an Atlanta beauty shop where she received a "heatless" permanent wave.

Officials of the Washington Hairdressers Association yesterday pointed out that cold method of permanent waving has been in use the last year, and that in that period about 5,000 such waves have been given in Washington with no unsatisfactory results.

Fourteen beauty salons in Washington, in addition to two beauty salons in department stores, have been giving the cold wave, according to William Giglio, president of the association.

97,000 Treated

The special hair-wave solution, according to Campbell, was first introduced in the East in April, 1940. Local beauty shop operators, however, said it had been in use on the West Coast for more than two years.

The manufacturer estimated for Federal investigators that some 97,000 had received "heatless waves" since the product was first produced.

"I can't understand," said Campbell yesterday, "why this deadly solution has not caused trouble before. Our investigation since the death of Mrs. Searcy shows it to be a highly poisonous chemical."

Through application in the permanent waving process, Campbell said, the solution is converted into hydrogen sulphide, "a chemical with a rotten-egg odor used principally for fumigating."

Campbell said the new product is manufactured in San Francisco. The concern which distributes it, he reported, has been notified of the seizures, but legal efforts to stop production must wait until authorities are certain it has been taken from public circulation.

"I am primarily interested at the moment in getting the product off the market for the protection of the public," Campbell declared. "We will then do all within our power under the law to stop its manufacture."

The most probable action against the manufacturer, he said, will be a court injunction restraining his operations and giving him a chance to answer charges.

"We have no authority without a court order to force the company to cease shipments," Campbell explained. "However, the burden of responsibility to comply with pure food and drug laws rests with the producing concern."

Campbell said Federal, State and municipal authorities were conducting investigations throughout the country and legal steps would be taken "just as soon as we know there is no further danger of beauty shops continuing to use this compound."

Process Described

Campbell explained the "cold-wave" process as follows:

The hair, he said, is first shampooed and soaked in water. It is then wound in curls around metal tubes. A rubber cap is placed over the head and sealed across the forehead with wax. The metal tubes are connected to rubber tubes leading to a bottle of the ammonium hydrogen sulphide.

The beauty operator squeezes a bulb, forcing the preparation through the tubes to make contact with the hair and "freeze" the curls. The process of forcing the solution through the tubes, Campbell said, is repeated at intervals of from 4 to 15 minutes.

"I am convinced," said Campbell, "that it is necessary for the customer to have some type of scalp lesion before the solution can be fatal. Once in the blood stream it acts with rapidity."

He said no action is anticipated against individual beauty establishments which used the solution.

"They acted in perfectly good faith in purchasing the new-type wave setter," he said. "In fact, the process had become extremely popular with women everywhere."

Screen and Stage Compile Hilarious Bill at Earle

Martha Raye and 'Girl, Guy and Gob' Make For Fast, Frolicsome and Furious Fun; The Newsreel Is of Especial Importance

"A GIRL, A GUY AND A GOB." RKO-Radio's release of Harold Lloyd's picturization of a screen play by Grover Jones, costarring George Murphy and Lucille Ball, with Edmond O'Brien, Henry Travers, Franklin Pangborn, George Cleveland, Kathleen Howard, Marguerite Chapman, Lloyd Corrigan, Mady Correll, Frank McGlynn and "Doodles" Weaver. Directed by Richard Wallace. At the Earle Theater

THERE IS ALL THE EXHILARATION and excitment of what the horse tracks term a "dead heat" at the Earle Theater this week.

BELL

With the boisterous, dynamic and delirious Martha Raye—as triphammer and trig as you ever have seen her—heading the "Martha Raye Show," the stage portion of the new bill on Thirteenth Street presents half a dozen stellar specialty acts that abandon the revue form in favor of straight, old-time vaudeville and score the sort of hit usually denominated a "knockout." Every one, in its individual department—and great diversity marks the bill—is a show-stopper. For the screen Harold Lloyd has concocted one of those cockeyed comedies of his—in which he does not appear—that moves with the swiftness of the wind, makes old "gags" seem utterly new and proves that glittering marquee "names" in the cast are not essential to glowing and hilarious entertainment. The combination compiles a carnival of fun that is so fast, frivolous and furious as to approximate a shot in the arm to the most jaded of the habitual pewholders.

Better Than It Would Look on Paper

It would be just a shade ridiculous to attempt to put into print the qualities that make Mr. Lloyd's "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob" such sprightly diversion. They would sound exceedingly trite and like one more dose of "the same old thing," when, as a matter of fact, thanks to a genial script and the ebullience of a comparatively unimportant but extremely gifted cast, the thing has pace, punch and pungency. The young business tycoon, engaged to a society snob; the sailor, engaged to the stenographer and both the upper and lower social strata have been maneuvered into intimate relationships with such skill in this Grover Jones yarn that the old, familiar plot takes on new life and luster and the delightfully bizarre aspects of a particularly amiable insanity. The piece is peppered with such lunatic episodes as used to punctuate the comedies in which Producer Lloyd himself was accustomed to appear. They are so adroitly introduced, however, that the main flow of the narrative never is seriously interrupted. It is merely that its comic values are accentuated. There would be no apparent advantage in detailing the excellence of the work of all the expert farceurs who comprise the cast. The radiant Lucille Ball, Edmond O'Brien, remembered especially for his young poet in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and George Murphy are gaily proficient in the title roles. George Cleveland, Kathleen Howard and Lloyd Corrigan, are Miss Ball's unbelievable family. Henry Travers is the "Guy's" canny business partner, who knows love when he sees it—so always remained a bachelor—and Marguerite Chapman appears as the snooty debutante. Those in the minor roles contrive to make them something more than minor.

The Purest Raye Serene Will Slay You

Martha Raye, at yesterday's first performance, registered the sort of personal triumph that must be the dream of all singing comediennes. Her songs, with all of their grotesquery, managed to reveal Miss Raye's full relization that music is music and must not be entirely ignored for the sake of laughs. Her comic antics similarly betrayed a deft sense of balance between seriousness and absurdity. A little more blonde than I remembered her, nicely done up in blue and not totally oblivious to the gorgeous contours of one of the most fabulous figures on the stage, Miss Raye was a star-spangled wow.

With her on the stage bill are the Christianis—five men and a girl—in their amazing exhibition of gymnastic wizardry; Will and Gladys Ahearn, rope-spinning, dancing jesters, with a reminiscent touch of Will Rogers in their agreeable humor; Jim and Mildred Mulcay, artists both on the harmonica, and those prodigious masters of the Indian Clubs, the Three Swifts. The Three Swifts have been seen on local stages times without number, but this time have freshened and enlivened thir club-juggling act until it ranks indisputably as the best of its kind before the public.

The Newsreel Says Some Important Things

Jo Lombardi's orchestra occupies the stage this week and the Roxyettes do not appear and neither does Eileen Ritter present her "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike," but a vitally important and interesting newsreel, dealing extensively with the strike problem in this country leavens the program with some pointed and potent observations. If you were to reach the conclusion that this department deems the Earle's bill a very elegant frolic, you would not be far wrong. Indeed, you would not be wrong at all.

Most of Title Is Here, Anyhow

PRINCIPALS IN NEW LLOYD COMEDY

Lloyd Corrigan, Irving Bacon, Lucille Ball (center), Kathleen Howard and Edmond O'Brien seem to be enjoying the happy ending of a tangled romance in "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," the new Harold Lloyd production, now on the screen at the Earle Theater. George Murphy is the "Gob" in the case

'Convoy,' Metropolitan's Film, Pictures British Navy at Work

By Richard L. Coe

"CONVOY." Associated British Film Distributors picturization of a screen play by Patrick Kirwan and Pen Tennyson, with Clive Brook, John Clements, Edward Chapman, Judy Campbell, Penelope Dudley-Ward, Edward Rigby, Charles Williams, Alan Jeayes, Michael Wilding, Harold Warrender, David Hutcheson, George Carney, Al Millen, Charles Farrell and John Laurie. Directed by Pen Tennyson. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

Blessed with some corking action shots of North Sea battles, but cursed by a veddy, veddy annoying plot, th- Metropolitan's new feature, "Convoy," somehow falls short of the all-out excitement so timely a title promises.

"Convoy's" action scenes and detailed descriptions of just what a convoy does, the dangers it faces and its naval importance would be hard to beat. The British navy itself is both hero and reporter of these cracking sea episodes, camera shots of the North Sea patrol fleet having been incorporated in the footage. The complexity of the convoy problem, the exactitude demanded for success and the sense of reality rising from such authenticity are downright exciting.

But a triangular tale of British romance in the Orient in which the self-effacing husband has given up his younger wife to the supposed whim of a junior officer has been the studio's contribution as a frame for the royal navy's business. Just when the King's men are chasing the Hitler-Heilers, up rears the dull morality question: Should the hero try to save maiden fair at the risk of the entire convoy, or should he do his duty?

Of course such things happen, but when they do they are as trying to onlookers as the persons involved. Such is the way with "Convoy's" problem; besides being an unconvincing situation, the characters affected are little better than puppets in the script writers' typewriters. Their "carry-on" attitude becomes simply an annoying virtue of wooden figures.

Aside from the purely personal aspects of its story, "Convoy" depicts how merchant ships are escorted by the British navy through the mazes that surround the islands. Refugees from Poland (the film was made a year ago when the Poles were the latest victims of Herr Hitler's aggression) are passengers on the steamer in which our interest is centered. Its captain is a self-reliant chap with long experience at his dangerous calling. How the admiralty in London issues its orders and the North Sea fleet combines to carry this ship and its like through the danger zone is revealed in the action which brings almost all to safety.

As I've said, the sea fights are good. Sea fights usually are, but remember a part of this is the McCoy. It's too bad that some of the shots evidently were made in the studio tanks, but then one can't have everything even with a real war going on.

The cast isn't asked to do much more than stock situations and is equal to that. Clive Brook, having some sibilant stress, is the veddy British husband and John Clements, whom you may recall from "Four Feathers," the misunderstood hero. Charles Williams is appealing as the second-time-out junior officer and Judy Campbell is the girl.

Besides the evident empirical salutes in such a film, there are touches of humor, best of which is a British tar's retort to a heil-Hitlering prisoner of war. Says the tar: "Heil my fanny."

Shorts at the Met include an excellent "Hunting Wild Boar" reel starring archer Howard Hill, a crack shot with bamboo bow and trim arrow. It's a neat reel and well worth catching. There's also a two-reel comedy with Eddie Foy, jr., and William T. Orr mocking radio programs in a way that will cause laughter, even if it is too long. A "Porky the Pig" cartoon and a strike-conscious newsreel complete the new bill.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, April 4.

LAST WEEK "Thunder Rock" reopened in London. This is the play by Robert Ardrey, winner of the Sidney Howard Memorial Prize. The play flopped on Broadway, but it has had an amazing success in Britain, where it excited editorial comment and drew rave notices. It was such an important event in London—where theatergoers found in it the expression of their hope and courage—that Vincent Sheean cabled his drama review to the New York Times . . . In that play, one of the characters states: "The best remarks a man ever makes, he makes on his way home." The author admits that his best remarks come even later than that. In 1939, Thornton Wilder accused Ardrey of having a snobbish attitude toward comedy. Last week, in San Antonio, Ardrey thought of the reply, and sent it to Wilder. It read: "I can spend the rest of my life outwitting censors. I may have only a year or two of freedom to be serious—Bob."

LYONS

FOR MONTHS NOW, the N. Y. radio audience has been listening to the recorded song-announcement, whose tag-line is "I'm Nuts About the Good Ol' Ooo-Ess-Ayyy." The sponsors now will have a woman sing-song that phrase. The woman will be the Ranee of Sarawak—one of the world's wealthiest ladies, who is working in the Good Old U. S. A. because all her funds are in Britain . . . This column's newest outlet is the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times . . . When L. B. Mayer, head of Metro, and Hollywood's most influential figure, announced that he received permission to take a leave of absence, one of his writers said: "Who does he have to ask—God?" . . . Walter Duranty's publishers again are trying to locate him. The last report was that he had left Moscow for the Balkans.

AT A RECENT dinner party, Sam Goldwyn asked his wife what she'd like for their seventeenth wedding anniversary. "Just one thing," said Mrs. Goldwyn, who under California's laws, owns 50 per cent of his business interests, "just one thing—get 'The Little Foxes' in, under the budget" . . . Goldwyn, the host at that party, had invited a veteran Los Angeles movie critic—who was late in arriving. Mrs. Goldwyn suggested that they wait. "Oh, no; we'll eat now," Sam ruled. "In 20 years, he's never given any of my pictures a good notice, and our waiting wouldn't influence him one way or the other."

THE NEW MASSES has had difficulty finding the proper books to review, ever since the Nazi-Soviet pact was signed. The editors recently asked Doubleday, Doran for a review copy of Henry C. Wolfe's "The Imperial Soviets"—which is a vehement attack upon Russia . . . The publishers complied, sent the book—but are still waiting for the New Masses' review . . . For when they sent the copy of "The Imperial Soviets," they also had enclosed a clipping—of The New Masses' laudatory review of Mr. Wolfe's earlier book, "The German Octopus."

WHEN GEORGE JESSEL was invited to lecture about public speaking at Harvard University, he told the students some tricks of the business, and then, as an example, he invited: "Mention any subject—and I'll make a speech about it," Jessel paused, and then hastily added: "I only went to school until 6B, so don't ask me any questions about geometry—because I don't know . . . the same as you won't know, if I asked you questions about where's the best place to buy pastrami" . . . Mary Martin and Oscar Levant—both of whom appear in the forthcoming movie version of Clare Boothe's "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," met at Lindy's last night. Miss Martin had seen a preview of the picture, and told Levant: "You're in for a surprise, Oscar! You know what? In the picture, you emerge as a charming character." "Charming?" Levant gasped. "Then it means I'm through in Hollywood."

AT THE VERSAILLES last night, Lou Holtz saw one of his friends sitting with a beautiful but stupid girl. Her escort told Holtz: "I know she's beautiful, but I don't want to take her out anymore, because she's so dumb" . . . "Listen to this," said Holtz—and told him of the days when Lou and the late Arnold Daly trouped the circuits. Daly spent most of his time, for years, with a beautiful girl who had no intellect. "I owe it all to Shaw," Daly confessed to Lou . . . "Shaw?" asked Holtz. "You mean George Bernard Shaw? How does he figure in it?" . . . "In this way," Daly explained. "This is the most beautiful girl I know. I know also that she's not bright. So every year, I get on a boat, go to London, spend six weeks with my good friend George Bernard Shaw—and get enough brain stimulant to last me until the next year."

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 4 (INS).—The dynamic Sam Goldwyn isn't letting any grass grow under his feet now that he's returned to picture making, he's not only preparing for Bette Davis' "The Little Foxes," but he's getting a Gary Cooper movie all ready to shoot June 1. The Cooper story, by Charles Brackett and William Wyler, Sam describes as a story of a professor and a burlesque queen, so far, Sam has everything ready for the story but a title and if the fans like it he may use "The Professor and the Burlesque Queen," which I think is good.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Warners have been secretly preparing "The Iron Cavalry," a story of the mechanized cavalry of the United States Army. Hal Wallis is rushing to get it into production as early as possible and all of the available male actors will be rounded up, including James Cagney, George Brent and Ronald Reagan, to take part in this he-man drama.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: T. Netcher is headed back to Hollywood, but we understand for only a brief period. He returns to wed Bernice Parks; Nick Grinde and Marie Wilson looking at ranches. Wonder if they have finally made up their minds to take the matrimonial jump; the Jules Steins' cocktail party turned into a birthday celebration for Sylvia Fairbanks. The chef fixed up a cake in a hurry and everybody toasted Sylvia at the new Stein mansion. The playroom was opened for the first time.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In the National Capital

With Hedda Hopper

After spending 30 hours in Washington I'm just bursting to tell about it. Washington is the last frontier town, and there's a boom on like the old gold rush days. It's all one can do to find a place to lay the weary head. The highlight of anybody's trip to Washington is meeting the President, and at his press conference he gives himself a wonderful time—and reporters little information. But instead of coming out ranting, they rave about him. He parries and thrusts like an expert fencer, with a barbed bit of wit on the point of every dart. But to pin him down as to where that $1,-000,000,000 really went is like trying to get an eagle to tell you what happened to his tail feathers.

HOPPER

When they razzed him and Mrs. R. at the Women's National Press party, and had each objecting to the other's guests at a home dinner, you could understand what the gals were getting at. The girl who played Mrs. R. kept saying, "But I just want everybody to like everybody else." Apparently she does. She has that unutterable and effective calm which completely disarms you when you meet her, but she means it. She likes people, likes them to like her. Whereas, I think the President has as much respect for a brilliant enemy as for a friend.

In a skit, he wanted to borrow the Wall of China to put around Eleanor's friends. Her off-the-record speech revealed a sense of humor the depth of which I hadn't given her credit for. I watched Mrs. Willkie's reaction to it. She was the only woman in the room who didn't smile; others doubled up in belly laughs.

Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind," is not a shy, shrinking violet. She's gay as a cricket. Used to be a newspaper gal, and was still impressed because her former managing editor asked to call on HER! It knocked her for a loop.

In the old days, authoresses wouldn't sell their precious words to movies for fear they'd be emasculated. But Marjorie Rawlings, who wrote "The Yearling," went into a rave about the treatment Director Victor Fleming is giving her story. She lives near the location they built in Florida and is pleased as Punch about it.

Mrs. Frank Knox and Mrs. Stimson were the most beautiful Cabinet wives present. I watched Mrs. McNary, who was sitting in an obscure part of the room, when Mrs. Henry Wallace was introduced, and thought only the difference of a few votes would have reversed their positions.

Ilka Chase went old fashioned in white jersey with a draped, flat not stickin' out bustle, and carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink camellias. I asked Ilka, whom I've known for years, when she started going old fashioned, and she said, "Why, you know me, Fedda—I've always been!" That's the gal, mind you, who played the cat so superbly in "The Women."

Mary Martin's two red roses on top of her hair belonged to Mary, but she saved her heart for Daddy. He made her take the train home, instead of planing out with me . . . Mrs. Eugene Meyer was superb and completely feminine in gray chiffon at her party following the dinner. And what a crush—the place was crawling with celebrities.

I wonder if women realize how subtle gray chiffon is. I used it years ago for a psychological reaction on our producers. When I went after the most malicious, double-crossing slitch parts I invariably dressed in gray, and always got the part. They suspected a woman who dressed as a nun would have no malice in her. My malice was in landing the job—'cause I always had to have one.

Daisy Harriman tells me her daughter has sold a play to Gilbert Miller . . . Mrs. Ray Clapper, columnist's wife, told me her husband, getting ready for that good-will trek to Mexico City, has already been innoculated against smallpox and typhoid fever and is running a temperature of 102. Here I expect to go minus any serum. What's that about the female being deadlier than the male?

Washington correspondents were upset over Jimmy Roosevelt's coming marriage to Nurse Schneider. I missed Barney Baruch. He was conferring with the President, and my plane wouldn't wait. But over the telephone, he was in the pink and rearing for action.

I learned much from Helen Essary, president of the Press Club, and their Flatiron Party. The most creative women in our National Capital can and do ridicule each other publicly, all in a spirit of good clean fun, without any ill-feeling, so that all can see, hear and gasp. I'm going to speak to our Hollywood stars and see if just once in our lives we can't do likewise.

What a sight it would be watching Mae West take off Shirley Temple, or vice versa! Or Claudette Colbert getting tips from Baby Sandy, and Judy Garland doing one of those low-slung vamps written for Marlene Dietrich. We need more of this kind of thing in the world today, and Washington points the way.

And I want to thank everybody down there for being so wonderful to a hard-working girl from the West who's only been in this writing game for three years. But I'm sure trying to measure up to their high standards.

Colonials Hit Behind Good Pitching to Win Doubleheader

G. W. Beats Harvard, 1-0, V.M.I., 14-3

McGinnis Is Star Of Twin Victory; Amendola Allows 7 Hits; Mates Slug

By Jack Munhall

George Washington supported its first decent pitching of the season with brilliant fielding and timely hitting yesterday to score a double baseball victory on the East Ellipse. Frank McGinnis tossed a two-hitter and drove in the winning run to shut out Harvard, 1-0, in the opener, and Eddie Amendola limited V. M. I. to seven safeties to capture the nightcap, 14-3, behind a 12-hit barrage by his mates. It was Harvard's third loss in four starts and V. M. I.'s debut.

After successive routs by Ohio State (10-3) and Vermont (10-1), the Colonials looked great in breaking into the victory column. Though they could reach Harvard's Louis Clay and Burgie Ayres for only five hits in the first game, they compensated for their weakness at the plate with a fine brand of fielding. Especially conspicuous on defense in the opener was Third Baseman Jack Fitzgerald, who handled ten chances with only one error, and nipped the Crimson's most serious scoring threat by forcing a runner at the plate in the third.

McGinnis Big Star

But the big star of the doubleheader was the giant McGinnis, a 6-foot 4-inch, 200-pound product of Western High School. Mac held Harvard hitless for five innings, allowed a cheap single in the sixth and another one-bagger in the eighth.

Then, going into the home half of the eighth with the score still tied at 0-0, McGinnis won his own ball game with a towering double behind a single by Battery Mate Jimmy Dowd. The winning run and the loss was charged to Ayres, who replaced Clay in the sixth. Clay was shifted to leftfield without explanation after yielding only three hits in five innings.

The Colonials, as if they had used the opener for batting practice, teed off in the second game against James (Sonny) Shelby, the V. M. I. football star, and among their 12 blows was a home run by Bobby Gilham and a double by Pitcher Amendola.

Shelby Is Puzzling

Shelby went all the way, but he was a puzzle to the Colonials only between the fourth and ninth innings, when he held them hitless.

The Keydets were off to an impressive start when Dick Williams, second baseman and the No. 2 hitter, homered deep into left, and Nellie Catlett drove out the first of his two doubles behind a walk to Ralph Jones. But with V. M. I. runners on second and third Amendola escaped further trouble when Lee Lusby tossed out Clyde Elligotn; Lusby tossed out Clyde Ellington dola, who with Dowd made it a bespectacled battery for the Colonials, had trouble only in the fifth and ninth in which the visitors scored once.

George Washington nullified V. M. I.'s first-inning run with a counter of its own when leadoff man George Oertel crossed home plate on a double steal in which Roy McNeil collaborated. The Colonials then clinched the triumph with outbursts of four tallies in the third and six in the fourth.

Here's How It Happened

The Colonials' big third went like this:

Pitcher Amendola led off with a double. Oertel laid down a sacrifice bunt, but both runners were safe when Catcher Catlett's throw pulled Jones off first base. Gilham singled, scoring Amendola and sending Oertel to third. Len Sokol fanned. Roy McNeill hit to short and Frank Carney tossed a double error into the proceedings. He booted the roller and then overthrew third, Oertel and Gilham scoring and McNeil galloping all the way to third. Johnny Picco popped to John Wray at third. Fitzgerald doubled and McNeil went home. The uprising ended when Lee Lusby fouled out to the catcher.

In the fourth, the Colonials went on to another error-helped spree. Catcher Dowd started it with a single. Amendola laid down a sacrifice bunt which Pitcher Shelby messed up to put runners on first and second. Oertel beat out an infield hit. Bases loaded, Gilham's roller to short was fumbled by Carney for his third error, Dowd scoring and Amendola going to third. Sokol singled, scoring Amendola. McNeil singled, scoring Oertel and Gilham and took second on the throw home. Johnny Picco singled, scoring McNeil, but was out trying to stretch it. Centerfielder Ellington to D. Williams. Lusby hit into a double play.

Shelby quieted the Colonials without a hit then until the eighth when George Washington capped its onslaught. Amendola again began a rally by singling. Oertel singled to left and when John Taliaferro let the ball roll through his legs, Amendola scored and Oertel went to third. Gilham then stepped up to rap a homer to the far reaches of right-center to score Oertel and himself with the final two runs.

Colds, Sore Throats Hit N. Y. Giants

Anderson, S. C., April 4 (AP).—Colds and sore throats reached an epidemic stage among the New York Giants today as rain forced cancellation of their exhibition with the Cleveland Indians.

Manager Bill Terry did not even accompany the team here, remaining in Atlanta for treatment, along with Babe Young and Johnny Rucker.

Gabby Hartnett's throat was so sore he couldn't talk, and went to bed in the club's Pullman car as soon as the game was called off. Bump Hadley, Jim Lynn and Harry Gumbert also were affected today, bringing to 17 the Giants who have been attacked by the germ in the last few days.

Oak Tar Provides Healthy Sum in Double by Winning at Bowie

Oak Tar (No. 12) started to move up on the first turn at Bowie yesterday and went into the stretch leading by three lengths to win easily in the second race. He returned a $248.30 for $2 pay-off and completed a daily double which paid $502.40. Pacification captured the first race. Mardi Gras (No. 1) shown leading above, finished second. The Thane (No. 2, on rail) was out of the money. S. Young rode Oak Tar

Terps Launch Spring Sports Doubleheaders

University of Maryland today launches the first of its series of spring sports double-headers, with its baseball team risking a two-game winning streak against V. M. I. and its national championship lacrosse team bidding for its second victory in a match with Loyola, of Baltimore. Baseball is scheduled for 2 o'clock; lacrosse for 3:30.

The Old Liners will be favored in both events. The baseball team, its confidence buoyed by successive impressive victories over Vermont (11-0) and Connecticut (5-3), should not have much trouble with a V. M. I. nine that was routed, 14-3, yesterday by George Washington.

Likewise the stickmen, triumphant over Harvard, 14-2, in their opener, should prove several goals superior to Loyola, which it swamped, 17-1, last year.

The Baltimore ten, however, is reported to have a strong attack—perhaps its best in recent history—and it may be a high-scoring match. Dick Keller and Bob McElroy headline Loyola's offense.

Ray Grelecki, who contributed four goals to Maryland's rout of Harvard's ten, and Leo Sleisinger, who made three in that match, are expected to spark the Maryland attack.

In baseball, Maryland probably will continue to rely on the revamped line-up that broke a two-game losing streak, with Whipp Roscoe Whipp in left, Carroll Radebaugh at short and Kenny Bransdorf behind the plate.

The Maryland pitching probably will be divided among Max Hunt, Art Woodward and Bill Fulton, since none is fully rested.

'Y' Volley Ball Teams Clash Here

Seven teams from as many Y. M. C. A.'s in the East will take part in the tenth annual cherry blossom volley ball tournament at the local "Y" today.

Action will open this afternoon at 2:30 with meetings of the Baltimore and Greensboro, N. C., and Camden, N. J., and Washington clubs. At 3:30 Philadelphia's North Branch will take on the winners of the Baltimore-Camden match, and York, Pa., and Philadelphia's Central Branch will clash. Semifinals will be at 4:30 and 6:30, and finals at 9:30.

Walks Help Navy Beat Vermont Nine, 12-3

Ten Passes and Eight Hits Bring Victory; Big Rallies in 7th and 8th Produce Rout

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—Combining eight hits and ten bases on balls the Naval Academy baseball team today defeated the University of Vermont, 12 to 3.

The game was fairly close, 5 to 2, until the seventh and eighth frames when the Midshipmen drove in 7 runs, 6 in the eighth alone.

Al Shaw, Vermont's starting pitcher, was driven from the mound after he had issued six free passes and struck a batter. Bob Carlson, who took over, had good luck until the fatal eighth, when he passed three Middies in a row.

Navy went ahead two runs in the first inning after Jack Stowe and Jack Brennan walked. Al Lasater was safe on an error by the Vermont shortstop and Stowe tallied. Brennan came home when Hal Harwood drove a single into deep center.

Henry Beauchemin and Charlie Smith scored for Vermont in the second to knot the count. Beauchemin hit to center, went to second on Bob Doherty's sacrifice fly and scored on Smith's bingle to rightfield. Smith came in when Don Maley drove a high fly to rightfield.

Navy came back in the third to add three more runs. Don Blue singled and Brennan and "Butch" Werner walked. Al Lasater flied out, scoring Blue, and Hal Harwood walked. On the next play Smith let a pitched ball pass him and Brennan came in. Lefty Lavrakas scored Werner with a long fly to centerfield.

Carlson took over from Shaw after a third of the third inning had passed and pitched fairly good ball, holding the Navy scoreless until the seventh when Lasater doubled and tallied on Harwood's single. Lavrakas singled to start the eighth for Navy and Phil Hurtt was safe on a fielder's choice. Blue, Werner, Lasater walked. Harwood and Rupert drove out two-baggers. Before the frame ended Navy had sent six runs across.

Vermont scored once in the ninth when Smith got safe on a fielder's choice, went to second on an error by Blue and tallied on Conrad's double.

5 Teams Enter Recreation Court Play-Off

Five teams remained to start playoffs for the D. C. Recreation Basketball League title following three clashes last night on as many local floors.

At Roosevelt, Naiman Photos had little trouble with Bliss Electrical School, winning by 43-22, behind the steady scoring of Sam Di Blasi, James Quidley and Kemper.

O. A. S. U. had no more difficulty with Fort Hunt at Central gym, its margin of victory being 37-24. Reichmann and Garland, with 11 and 10 points, respectively, led the point-making. And at Eastern, Marion A. C. was hard-pressed for one-half, but came ahead strongly in the later stages to nose out National Baptist, 23-18.

Thus the five teams which will start battling for league honors Monday will be last night's three winners, and United Typewriters and Hot Shoppes.

Women's Rifle Leaders Are Tied

Climaxing an uphill fight in the D. C. Women's Rifle League, Hits 'n' Misses twice defeated Mrs. Lois McDonie and her National Capital Rifle Club teammates to tie them for first place. The Hits 'n' Misses have risen from third place to a tie for the lead in a short time.

Featuring the rise of the Hits 'n' Misses has been the individual shooting of Winnie Smith, who turned in a pair of perfect 100 scores to lead her team's double victory over the Capital Club women.

In other matches Whiz Bangs scored a double over G. P. O., despite Mary Richards' 197, and Long Shots administered a similar dose to Apache Rifle Club. Wanda Judson's 198 was wasted by the winners.

Perry Horses Win 2 Blues For Hunters

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., April 4.—Entries from the stables of Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry at Beau Val, near Cobham, carried off two blue ribbons at the annual hunter trials of the Farmington Hunt Club, held today at Windsor. First place in the green hunter class went to the bay gelding Ragnarock, by Transmute out of Julienne while Weather Permitting, son of the Clown, walked off with the first honors in the event for halfbred hunters.

The trophy offered by Dr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Watts in the class for registered thoroughbred hunters was won by Virginia Jennings' Beckford, a 5-year-old bay gelding by Gallant Fox, out of Ruby Stone.

W. Alonza Rinehart's brown mare Sunny Girl by Smoke Screen, out of Lady Bey, was victor in the class for ladies hunters, in which there were 13 entries.

Seven hunt teams competed for the trophy presented by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schlesinger, of Ingleridge, in the hunt team class, which was won by Grenadier Guard and Overcome, owned by Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Jones, and Short Hair, owned by Anne Phillips, of Covesville.

The summaries:

GREEN HUNTERS—First, Ragnarock, Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham; second, John B. White, Mrs. Cary Jackson, Keswick; third, White Oak, Grover Vandevender, Ivy; fourth, Count, Grover Vandevender.

LADIES' HUNTERS—First, Sunny Girl, W. Alonza Rinehart, Charlottesville; second, Grenadier Guard, Mrs. J. P. Jones, Inglecrest; third, Golden Slippers, Mrs. Robert H. Schlesinger, Charlottesville; fourth, Overcome, Dr. J. P. Jones.

HALF-BRED HUNTERS—First, Weather Permitting, Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham; second, Golden Slippers, Mrs. Robert Schlesinger; third, Miss Harvey, W. Alonza Rinehart; fourth, Spring Time Hope, John S. Wise, Charlottesville.

REGISTERED THOROUGHBRED HUNTERS—First, Beckford, Miss Virginia Jennings, New York; second, Grenadier Guard, Mrs. J. P. Jones; third, Overcome, Dr. J. P. Jones; fourth, Stidd, Mrs. Elisabeth Lloyd, Hartford, Conn.

HUNT TEAMS—First, Grenadier Guard and Overcome (Dr. and Mrs. Jones) and Short Hair (Miss Anne Phillips, Covesville); second, Casque (Mrs. Cary Jackson), Sunny Girl (W. Alonza Rinehart) and Springtime Hope (John S. Wise); third, Miss Harvey (W. Alonza Rinehart), Happy Crescent (Mrs. Thomas Renwick) and Mr. Haha (Roger Rinehart); fourth, Strong Fellow and Golden Slippers (Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schlesinger) and Stidd (Mrs. Elisabeth Lloyd).

Canadian in Difficulty Getting to Norfolk Club

Norfolk, Va., April 4 (AP).—The Norfolk Club, of the Piedmont Baseball League, can't get to first base, as the saying goes, in its effort to get one Ralph McCabe down from Canada for a pitching assignment, and the Tars are blaming the war.

McCabe, a 6-foot-6 prospect highly recommended to the Yankee system by Bob Sharkey, left his home in Belleville, Ontario, for Norfolk and managed to get as far as Toronto. There he has languished for several days with club officials attempting to get permission for his departure from Canada.

Postscripts . . .

Orlando, Fla., April 4.—Dutch Leonard is working himself up to the opening-game assignment against the Yankees on April 14. . . . Bucky Harris has not announced that Leonard will be his pitching choice for that ceremonial game, but it is taken for granted. . . . The effectiveness of Leonard's knuckle ball can always be judged by the number of passed balls charged against Catcher Rick Ferrell. . . . The more passed balls, the better the knuckler. . . . The Detroit players think their rookie outfielder, Pat Mullins, can outrun George Case on the baselines and the straight away, but they would be making a bad bet. . . . George Archie is working out at third base daily in fielding practice, against the day when the Army will call Buddy Lewis. . . . An official of the Detroit club, which owned Archie for three years, described him today as "the ideal lead-off hitter." . . . But Case has that job clinched with the Nats. . . . Washington might have scored more than six runs in the sixth inning today if Case had not tried to score from first base on a double by Roger Cramer. . . . Case has not yet succeeded in stealing a base or taking an extra base this spring. . . . But he will quit his foot chance-taking when the season starts. . . . Bucky Harris hopes. . . . Cramer was robbed of a hit today by a self-defense gesture of Rookie Pitcher Bob Uhle, of the Tigers, who threw up his glove in front of his face just in time to avoid being decapitated by Cramer's line drive. . . . Then Uhle picked up the ball and threw Cramer out at first. . . . Travis' sixth-inning homer today was notable not only in that it was one the longest ever hit at Tinker Field, but because it was made against left-handed pitching. . . . Uhle struck out three Nats in the second inning to hold them scoreless, but it was not an easy inning for him. . . . He walked one batter and gave up two hits before fanning Leonard with the bases full. . . . Mickey Vernon originally was scheduled to play first base today, but Harris switched to Archie when he saw a left-hander warming up for the Tigers. . . . Tomorrow the Nats play their last game of the season at Tinker Field . . . meeting the Phillies. . . . They break camp on Monday, following a game on Sunday with the Tigers at Lakeland.—POVICH.

Cornell Bats Checked As Hoyas Win, 2 to 0

Dick Diekelman Gives Up but Four Hits For Georgetown; MacFadden Star at Bat

Behind the four-hit hurling of chunky Dick Dieckelman, Georgetown University's potent diamond forces registered their second triumph in two days and kept their record for the abbreviated season clean yesterday when they downed Cornell, 2-0, at Medical Field.

Dieckelman gave up six bases on balls but nullified those with as many strikeouts at critical moments. His mound opponent, Jenkins, who also went the distance, contributed six safeties and three walks to the Hoyas' cause, managing to fan only three batsmen.

Both the Hoyas' runs came in a fourth-inning uprising, bringing George Pajak and Jules Koshlap across the plate. Batting star of the day, however, was husky Joe McFadden, who singled and doubled in three official times at bat.

Victors over Harvard Thursday, 7-4, the Hoyas twice found themselves in difficulties yesterday as Cornell packed the bases in the fourth and fifth innings. Each time, however, heady pitching by Dieckelman and excellent support from his mates stopped the threat.

Chevy Chase Horse Show Opens Today

Beginning at 10 o'clock this morning, the Chevy Chase Horse Show will swing into a two-day session with a full program of junior events going on until late this afternoon and senior classes rounding out the card at noon tomorrow.

The hunter and jumper classes will have such ring stars as Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Port o' War, full sister to their former hunting ace, Sallyport; Moorwick, a 4-year-olds colt; Surrealist, Abdication and Highland Ace.

Meeting the Greenhalgh mounts in competition for the first time this season will be Mrs. Altemus Whitney's string from Upperville, Va., probably including Bon Nuit, First Night, Cherry Bounce and Strong Tea. They will be ridden by Mrs. Whitney's trainer, Norman Haymaker, and Roland Ridgeway.

Today's events, limited to riders under 19, will be judged by Ellie Wood Keith and Eddie Talbert. Hunters will be marked by Raymond H. Norton and Mrs. James Guitar, and jumper scorers will be Hubbert Quinter and Guitar.

Classes will be for road hacks, green hunters, handicap jumpers, touch-and-out, open hunters under 16 hands, ladies' hunters, open hunters without a height limit, open jumpers, working hunters, knock-down-and-out, hunter hacks, and championships for hunters and jumpers

Lanham Hero As Herndon Beats Fairfax

Stuart Lanham, Herdon (Va.) High's ace moundsman, had matters all his own way yesterday as he led his club to a 19-6 triumph over Fairfax in the first Fairfax County League game of the year, played at Herndon.

Besides pitching three-hit ball and fanning 12 opposing batsmen, Lanham came to the plate in the clean-up position and pounded three hits, including a pair of doubles.

Fairfax, which sent five hurlers into the game to try and stem Herndon's 12-hit barrage, opened viciously with a single run in the first inning and four more in the second for a 5-1 lead. Gradually the hosts pulled back into contention, finally taking a 9-5 advantage with a five-run uprising in the fourth. The score remained practically the same until the seventh when Herndon put things on ice with nine more runs.

Solters Hits 3-Run Homer For Winners

Cubs Finally Whip A's, 11-7; Browns Rout Bees, 12-4; Other Baseball News

By the Associated Press

El Centro, Calif., April 4.—The veteran Ted Lyons and William Dietrich held the Pirates to two hits today as the Chicago White Sox turned tables and beat Pittsburgh, 6 to 0.

Julius Solters' sixth-inning homer, his second in two days, with two mates on base, turned the pitchers' battle into a rout. Johnny Lanning, who had relieved Ken Heintzelman in the sixth, was the victim of the three-run blow.

Cubs Whip A's 11-7

Tucson, Ariz., April 4 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs finally whipped the Philadelphia Athletics today, 11 to 7, their first victory over the American Leaguers in six exhibition games.

The Cubs donated the A's a neat first inning lead on four walks and a triple, but bounced back with a 15-hit attack to win in a breeze. Bill Nicholson and Bill Herman accounted for five runs in the sixth with two home runs.

Fort Smith, Ark., April 4 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns, paced by Rip Radcliff, belted five Boston Bee pitchers for 14 hits today while chalking up a 12-4 victory as the temperature flirted with the freezing mark. Radcliff contributed five hits to the slaughter.

Bears Beat Phils

Sebring, Fla., April 4 (AP).—Two runs by George Scharein, a former Phillies shortstop, gave the Newark Bears a 2-to-1 victory over the Philadelphia National League club in an exhibition game today.

Scharein's first score was a daring steal home after he had tripled in the fourth inning. In the sixth he doubled and scored on a single by Nino Bongiovanni, a pinchhitter for Pitcher Russ Christopher.

Yanks Down Little Rock

Little Rock, Ark., April 4 (AP).—The touring New York Yankees plowed into some unexpected opposition today, but put together three singles in the eleventh inning to edge out the Little Rock Travelers, 5 to 4.

Red Ruffing pitched the first seven innings for the Yanks and gave up six hits, but he himself hit a two-run homer and a single that led to another New York tally.

Lamonte Duncan, in right field for Little Rock, was tabbed the best-looking minor leaguer the Yanks have played against this spring. He kept the Travelers in the game with a triple, double and single.

Galveston, Tex., April 4 (AP).—Joe Medwick, who had hit in 18 consecutive games and poled five home runs in five days prior to today, split his favorite bat in practice before the Brooklyn Dodgers met the Houston Buffalos of the Texas League.

He repaired his war club with some adhesive tape, but was handicapped to such an extent that he got only one home run and two singles as the Dodgers exterminated the Buffs, 14 to 3.

Western High Wins Season's Opener, 16 to 0

Serving notice on all foes in the public school baseball series, Western High yesterday opened its 1941 baseball season with a smashing 16-0 shutout of National Training School in a 7-inning game on the Bladensburg Road diamond.

Three pitchers—Grey, Hines and Kuldell—went to the mound for the Red Raiders and each found little difficulty stopping every U. T. S. threat. Each allowed a single hit to bring the Trainers' total to three for the game. Meanwhile, Western sluggers amassed 14 safeties including doubles by Kuldell, Hines, and Cady, a triple by Cockrell and a rousing home run by Bob Leach, All-Metropolitan first baseman. The last two blows came in the seventh inning, neither with men on base.

Western's big inning was the third, in which it tallied 9 runs with the aid of only one extra-base hit, Cady's double. Singles, walks and Trainer errors accounted for the spree.

25-Game Card For W.-L. High

A fine record of 102 games won and only 36 lost in the last five years stands behind the Little Generals, and Coach Richardson confidently expects this year's club to be a great improvement over the 1940 nine, which had what was considered a poor season—13 won and 9 lost.

If veteran pitchers can make a team, W.-L. should be one of the best in this vicinity. Four of them—Rube McNab, Ed Johnson, Doswell Olsen and Andy Clements—are returning. With the exception of first base, the infield is also set with Paine at second, Tapp at short and McPherson at third. Courtney Owens and Mose Wilson are the only outfield veterans available, but numerous likely fill-ins have turned up during drills. Once more the Generals' backstop will be "Shanty" Shepherd, converted gridman.

3 Champions Crowned In Badminton Tourney

Three new champions were crowned in the second annual city-wide badminton tournament sponsored by the Community Center and Playgrounds Department. Howard University won the team title.

The individual winners were Ira Crawley in men's singles; Mildred Patterson in women's singles; Yvonne Walker and Charlotte Seawell in women's doubles; Bridges and Brown in men's doubles, and Crawley and Miss Walker in mixed doubles.

Colonials Make 2 Schedule Changes

Two changes were announced yesterday in the George Washington baseball schedule. The game scheduled with American University on April 16 was moved up to April 21, and a return game with the Eagles was carded for May 7 on the A. U. field.

Navy Won't Row In Poughkeepsie Regatta in June

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., April 4.—Because the curtailed academic program at the United States Academy requires that midshipmen spend all available time at sea during the summer months, Navy will not take part in the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., regatta in June, Capt. T. S. King, director of athletics, said today.

February graduation riddled Navy's crew, and prospects this spring are far from bright. A four-race schedule has been arranged.

U. of Virginia Nine Plays Pitt Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., April 4.—Five University of Virginia teams have engagements tomorrow, with the Cavalier baseball team playing the leading role here against Pittsburgh, starting at 3:30.

Coach Archie Hahn's varsity and freshman track squads move into action for the first time this season against V. M. I. at Lexington and the lacrosse team will be at Chapel Hill to meet North Carolina. Lafayette's tennis team visits here for an afternoon match.

Cave to Face Pitts

Alex Cave, who pitched a four-hitter in making his first varsity start Monday against Dartmouth, is Coach Gus Tebell's tentative choice to face Pitt's Panthers. Hard-hitting Bill Harman will take his usual turn as the man behind the mask.

Fitting into the line-up as polished infielders are Dick Wiltshire, first; Tabb Gillette, second, and Charles Kendall, third, all sophomores. Billy McCann, the third-year veteran, is a fixture at short.

Another well-poised sophomore is Norman Farquhar, who alternates in the outfield with Charles Walsh and Charles King, lettermen. Carrying on from last year as outfield regulars are Justin Burnes and Jimmy Dodson.

Todd Ineligible

Academic ineligibility removes Tom Todd, brilliant sophomore hurdler, from Virginia's meets this spring, but the Cavaliers have a group of accomplished sophomores to compete against the Cadets in Ned Campbell and Sonny Hall, sprinters; Edward Robeson, half-miler, and Billy Suhling, high jumper and pole vaulter.

Forming the list of lettermen are John Cronley and Jack Fritsche, quarter-milers; Beverley Tucker, miler; Larry Forsyth, two-miler; Lee McLaughlin and Kenneth and Norman Rathbun, field events.

Terp Frosh Bow In Lacrosse, 7-1

St. Paul School's lacrosse team defeated the Maryland Freshmen, 7 to 1, yesterday at College Park.

The Baltimore outfit displayed too much experience for the green Terp outfit and clearly outplayed the College Park team.

Colesville Practice

Colesville Cardinals of the Montgomery County League will practice Sunday at 2 p. m. on the Colesville field. All players are urged to request.

Terps Trip Connecticut Nine by 5-3

Maryland U. scored its second baseball victory in as many days yesterday as the Old Liners had a fine run rally in the seventh to top Connecticut University, 5-3, at College Park.

Connecticut outhit the Terrapins nine to seven but the Liners took advantage of four New England errors to win. Bob Fulton undertook the pitching duties for the Terrapins but gave way to Max Hunt in the seventh inning, after allowing only four hits. Hunt was tapped for five blows in his three-stanza stint.

Two well-timed singles by Harvath and Winzler, of Connecticut off Fulton mixed with two Terp miscues by Frank Dwyer and Pop Wharton gave the upstate nine its first two runs in the fourth inning.

Connecticut's final tally came in the eighth stanza when Bob Yurievicz, third baseman, slammed out a two-base hit into centerfield. Len Cuddy then dumped a single into short left to score the runner from second. This was the only tally off Hunt, who received credit for the win.

Maryland's five-run outburst came in the seventh inning when Dwyer, Duvall, Garrett and England singled to drive the starting Yankee pitcher, Kovacs, to the showers. Two errors by Shortstop Harvath helped the Old Liner cause no end. A clever piece of base running by Dwyer aided the Terrapins in their five run rally.

Terp Track Team Opens Up Today

University of Maryland's track team opens its outdoor season today in a dual match with North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C. Strongly fortified in the track events and more formidable in the field tests than in recent years, the Terps should offer the Tarheels stubborn opposition. North Carolina, 1940 Southern Conference indoor team champion and current outdoor titleholder, is reported to have its usually fine array of talent.

Accounted near-certain winners for Maryland are Joe Murphy in the sprints and Tommy Fields in the mile and 2 miles. Both are conference champions. Other expected point getters for the Terps are Gene Ochsenreiter, Randall Cronin, Bob Montgomery and Vernon Miller in the 220, 440 and 880; Roy Skipton in the 2 miles, Jack Gilmore in the high jump, Chester Ernst in the dashes and Dick Shaffer, Reginald Vincent and Luther Conrad in the weight-throwing contests.

Maryland is supposed to lose many points in the pole vault and hurdles, where it is the weakest. With Melvin Leohberger recovering from an illness, Willis Smith looms as the Old Liners' only reliable hurdler, while its three pole vaulters—Bill Holbrook, Fred Bach and Bill Merriken—all are inexperienced.

Mattos A. C. Booking

Mattos A. C. unlimited baseball team has six open dates on its schedule and would like to book games with out-of-town foes offering guarantees. Communicate with Henry Tass at 1112 Raum Street Northeast. Mattos A. C. opens its season with Cameo Furniture tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Ballston Stadium.

Priest Paces Duckpinners At Queen Pin

Father Musselman, one of the most popular members of the Section D Catholic League, showed the boys how it was done at Queen Pin last night with individual highs of 165 and 399, the game mark tying the season high effort. St. Francis Xavier and Sacred Heart divided quintet honors, the first with a 589 game and the latter with a 1,647 set. St. Peter's No. 1 leads with 47 and 30, with Our Lady of Victory next with 44 and 33.

BROOKLAND

Mary Moyer, Moore Hardware, and Hilda Justice, Willis Esso, topped the Brookland Ladies' League last night, each rolling high single games of 139, while Myrtle Alderton, Brookland Garage, took high set with her nice 334. Jo Varrella's near high of 333 aided an odd-game win by her Federal Lithos over Willis Esso to keep the former on top by pinfall over Gemeny's Flowers, each having won 49 and lost 38.

ARCADIA

Margaret May was the leading bowlerette in the Ladies' Independent loop at the Arcadia drives with her individual highs of 132, 366, which aided Charles Grill quintet to gain top totals of 550 and 1,565 and three straight from United Typewriters as well.

PENN RECREATION

Bill Clampitt's 147 and Don Hurd's 403 set sparked the Insurance League at Penn Recreation with the Great American boys taking team highs of 586 and 1,677 that helped in a three-time win over A. H. Baker. Standard, LeRoy Mark, Hooper-Holmes and Travelers scored sweeps over America Fore, Ellett & Short, Aetna and Home in the order named.

NEW RECREATION

Dulin, Kiwani sNo. 1, and Major Robb, Optimist, combined to win all the individual highs in the Civic League at New Recreation with the former having 150-398 to the latter's 152-375. The Kiwanis No. 2 quintet, however, won the team honors after knocking over 582 pins for game and 1,602 for the set. George Shaffer maintained his usual nice game with 138-342.

City's Leading Swimmers Vie At 'Y' Tonight

Almost 100 of the city's finest splashers will be in competition tonight when the Y. M. C. A.'s annual Cherry Blossom Swimming Meet starts at the Central "Y" at 8 p. m.

The host "Y" team, D. C. A. A. U. and Interstate titlist, will be favored for the men's team title. Patsy Palmer will be the one to stop in the women's division and in the boys' section the favorite will be the Southeast Boys Club.

Chicago Tankmen Shatter World's Record for Relay

By the Associated Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 4.—The Chicago Towers Club established a new world record tonight in the 400-yard free-style relay to forge ahead of the University of Michigan's defending champions in the quest for team honors in the National A. A. U. indoor swimming championships.

Pressed all the way by the Wolverines, who also bettered the old standard, the Chicago quartet of Henry Kozlowski, Harold Henning, Edward Kirar and Otto Jaretz was clocked in 3:29.6 to erase the former mark of 3:31.2 made in 1939 by the New York Athletic Club.

Michigan's foursome of James Welsh, Dobson Burton, Charles Barker and Constantine (Gus) Sharemet was timed in 3:29.8. Another Michigan team was third, while a second Towers Club outfit took fourth ahead of Purdue.

Anacostia Golf Team Defeats Central, 6-3

Adams (Central) defeated Robinson, 8 and 6; Stedman (Central) defeated Allman, 1-up. Best ball, Central, 8 and 6.

Martin (Anacostia) defeated Anderson, 1-up; Langley (Anacostia) defeated Magdeberger, 5 and 4. Best ball, Anacostia, 5 and 4.

Washington Lacrossemen Play Today

Washington A. A. Lacrossemen expect to chalk up their second victory of the season today when they cross sticks with Westchester Teachers at 3 o'clock on the Potomac Park polo field.

Westchester, managed and coached by George Wackenhut, who also holds down the regular center position, does not have an experienced team and is expected to give the District team a chance to try some new plays. It will be Coach Joe Deckman's last chance to experiment with his attack and line-up before going into the major part of the campaign.

Washington meets three tough opponents in a row beginning with Johns Hopkins next week. Mount Washington and Maryland follow the Blue Jays on the schedule and the club will have to be at its best for this trio. The Mounties are national club champions, Maryland is national collegiate champion and Hopkins usually is ranked in the first three college teams.

Bladensburg High Golfers Win, 8 to 1

Bladensburg High School golfers opened their season yesterday with a 8-1 victory over St. John's on the Beaver Dam course. Ponton was the only Johnnie to win a match against the suburban team.

Three Former Victors Run In Point Race

Three former winners of the Dunboyne Challenge Cup will be on hand at the Potomac Hunt's point-to-point races this afternoon at The Glen, Md., in competition for the big bowl and three other cross-country events.

The trio of previous winners are Dr. Fred Sanderson's Poussin, who retired one silver trophy last year; Mrs. Frank McSherry's The Fox, and Mrs. David Hunt's Cheyenna. Owners will ride except in the case of Poussin, who has hitherto been ridden by Dr. Sanderson's daughter, Margaret, now away at boarding school. In her absence the handsome gray mare will have Mrs. Joseph Horgan aboard.

Other Entrants

Other entrants are W. Laird Dunlap 3d, with his big chestnut Rambler; Bernard Brosius' newest acquisition, Turf Hunter; Col. H. H. Frost's widely known open jumper, Jeb Stuart; Marshall Exnicios' Shiftless; Mrs. Ernest L. Smith's rapid mare, Seagram; Nancy Hanna's Gone Away; Carroll and Marrian Curran with Fred and Landsman, respectively; John F. Hughes, of Upperville, Va., with Rosedale; Mrs. Hans Thompsen, wife of the German charge d'affaires, with Kiddy Car; Mrs. O'Neill Kane and her big-jumping Banshee; Dr. Horgan's Miss Catkin; Thomas T. Mott's Play Pal; and Edward Cashell's Cash Cargo.

Beginning at 2 p. m., events are for landowners, over a 5-mile course without jumps; the open, with a weight minimum of 180 pounds; a ladies' event at catch weights, and the featured Dunboyne, limited to Potomac members.

Fair Hero, Paying $11.50, Captures Feature Race at Bowie

25 Cash In On 'Double' Paying $502

Barrymore Second And Thrift Shop Is Third in Feature; 8,000 Attend Sport

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

Bowie, Md., April 4.—A little bit of everything that goes with a day at the races was shown Maj. Bowes, of radio fame, as he watched today's turf program. The popular major saw favorites, long shots, runaway horses and a feature race named for him. The outstanding test, a clash of 3-year-olds over the 5½-furlong sprint route, brought a front-running victory to Fair Hero. The son of War Hero and Lady Fair was purchased only this morning by George Perry, the Marlboro hotel man, from R. J. Waldron for an unannounced sum, won by a length and a half over J. H. Stotler's Barrymore, with J. H. Louchheim's Thrift Shop third and the favored Tamil fourth.

"Double" Pays $502.40

Fair Hero was handled by Jockey H. Lindberg and was clocked in 1:08 for the short sprint route. He was the magnet for scattered backing and brought a pay-off of $11.50. A crowd of 8,000 saw the program conducted over a fast track.

Twenty-five lucky customers cashed the largest daily double of the meeting on the first and second races. The combination of Pacification in the first race and Oak Tar in the second race paid $502.40. Pacification, making his second start, was an odds-on favorite at a $3.70 mutuel. Oak Tar put the big money into the double transaction at a $248.30 mutuel.

Getting back to the feature, there are those who believe Fair Hero's victory was a lucky one. Barrymore stumbled at the break and had much taken out of him getting to contention. However, Fair Hero showed plenty of lick. He bounded to the front as soon as the gates were open and Lindberg kept him moving throughout. Tamil was closest to the pace to the stretch and then faded, much to the disgust of the favorite players.

Decamillis Repeats

Jockey Eddie Decamillis, who rode Alpine Lad to victory yesterday, came back today to score a smashing victory with Alpine Boy. The 5-year-old owned by James Gross, bounced home two and a half lengths in advance of Giggle Lee, owned by G. G. Waugh, jr. Jeb Stuart was third in the limit field of 12. Alpine Boy was a $19.90 shot and Giggle Lee paid a $39.40 place mutuel.

C. Stern Poindexter shouldered 122 pounds and came from behind Hi-Light's place to win the fourth event. Jockey A. Schmidl did the booting and the gelding won by two and a half lengths over Hi-Light. Third money went to Gustave Ring's Ring Star. The winner paid a $7 mutuel.

Two of the country's largest stables battled it out in the fifth race, with Army Banners, representing Mrs. Emil Denemark, winning by a neck margin over Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Count Eleven. B. F. Christmas' Idle Night was third in the field of eight going a mile and a sixteenth. The winner paid $9.

†Mrs. W. Davis-W. F. Hitt entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PACIFICATION, $3.70, $2.50, $2.20; SIS BAKER, $4.30, $3.00; INTRUDING, $2.90.

PACIFICATION assumed command in the opening 25 yards, set a strong pace and held on nicely under a mild drive. SIS BAKER came willingly throughout to show a good effort. INTRUDING was shut off directly at the break, was rushed to contention and hung through the stretch. ASTROLOGIST had been early speed and then tired gradually.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds foaled in Maryland. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:32½. Winner, G. Thorn's b. g. (4), by Kanter—Five Oaks. Trained by D. Shea. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:06⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OAK TAR, $248.30, $106.00, $43.50; MARDI GRAS, $9.00, $7.40; PALIO, $5.90.

OAK TAR, first away, forced the pace of MARDI GRAS, responded when shaken up approaching the stretch, took command and drew out under a drive. MARDI GRAS saved ground while setting the pace, could not resist the winner, but closed gamely. PALIO was off in a tangle and gained steadily through the stretch run. UNA H. was off poorly, gained sharply after a furlong and weakened right at the close.

Daily Double—PACIFICATION and OAK TAR Paid $502.40.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:00½. Off at 3:01. Winner, J. Gross' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALPINE BOY, $19.90, $13.00, $11.20; GIGGLE LEE, $39.40, $20.20; JEB STUART, $10.00.

ALPINE BOY, hard ridden from the start, wore down SHOULDER ARMS to take command and drew out to win easily. GIGGLE LEE, off slowly, worked his way to contention between horses and closed with a bold rush. JEB STUART was off in a tangle, came to contention boldly and weakened in the closing 15 yards. OURAGAN outbroke the field, was taken under restraint and closed with a bold rush to be going fastest at the end.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:31. Winner, C. Stern's br. g. | TETRA ROCK | (Madden) | 114 | 6 | 1 | 7½ | 9¹½ | 10 | 10 | 10 | 4.55 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POINDEXTER, $7.00, $4.60, $3.10; HI-LIGHT, $11.30, $6.60; RING STAR, $4.40.

POINDEXTER, lightly urged while closest to the pace of HI-LIGHT, rallied gamely when shaken up and drew out in the closing stages. HI-LIGHT had keen speed while setting the pace, could not resist the winner, but held the others safe. RING STAR was hard ridden and had no excuses. PETE'S PRINCE closed resolutely.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:56½. Off at 3:57½. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's b. c. (7), by American Flag—Golden Masque. Trained by D. Womeldorff. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51⅘.

| ENGLE'S WONDER | (Palumbo) | 114 | 5 | 2 | 5½ | 6¹ | 6² | 7³ | 8 | 68.30 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARMY BANNERS, $9.00, $4.00, $2.90; COUNT ELEVEN, $3.00, $2.40; IDLE NIGHT, $2.70.

ARMY BANNERS, closest to the pace of COUNT ELEVEN from the start, responded gamely when shaken up in midstretch and was up in the concluding strides. COUNT ELEVEN was hustled into the lead at once, drew clear, but could not resist the winner while kept to pressure to the end. IDLE NIGHT was sluggish early and failed to rally, pulling up sore. PLAYMORE closed gamely.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:30½. Winner, G. Perry's b. c. (3), by War Hero—Lady Fair. Trained by R. Pending. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:08.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR HERO, $11.50, $6.90, $4.70; BARRYMORE, $4.40, $3.50; THRIFT SHOP, $6.00.

FAIR HERO, first away, set the pace, drew clear and was kept to a drive to the end to hold BARRYMORE safe. The latter stumbled leaving the gate, saved ground under strong handling and could not seriously menace the winner. THRIFT SHOP came with good courage in the closing stages. TAMIL was closest to the pace of FAIR HERO and had no excuses.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:55. Winner, S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—J. HAL, $4.90, $4.20, $3.30; RHINIZ, $15.60, $8.60; BLIND BROOK, $6.10.

J. HAL, first away, set a steady pace while clear and drew out without effort in the closing stages to win easily. RHINIZ, a distant trailer for the half, came with a bold rush between horses and was going fastest at the end. BLIND BROOK was rated while close up, but weakened under a drive in the closing stages. BREEZING ALONG tired after reaching serious contention.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:21½. Winner, J. †Lost rider.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHANSI, $4.20, $3.00, $2.50; DIZZY B., $5.30, $3.60; ACTRESS, $5.80.

SHANSI, steadied while in the first flight, responded when placed to a drive and drew out to win easily. DIZZY B. was lightly bothered early by loose horses, got clear and came with a bold rush in the closing stages. ACTRESS set a good pace to the stretch and then weakened after being displaced. EASTER HOLIDAY moved up menacingly on the outside and tired thereafter. FORTUNUS unseated his rider at the break.

Umpire Owens 'Holding His Own'

Chicago, April 4 (AP).—Clarence (Brick) Owens, 56-year-old former major league umpire, was reported as "holding his own" tonight at Grant Hospital, where he is critically ill with pneumonia.

Owens, who has been in an oxygen tent for three days, umpired in the American League for 22 years. A heart attack forced him to retire in 1937.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al:

The increased taxes imposed on the half-mile tracks by Maryland legislation will mean that planned improvements of several tracks will go by the boards. Timonium and Marlboro expected to change their plants but that is out now. It also means that the half milers will not increase purses. This is a blow to the horsemen who are finding it harder and harder to get along now that the price of straw, hay and oats is getting out of bounds. Joe Ray, winner here earlier in the week will go in the Bowie Kindergarten. Owner G. Raymond Bryson picked up this good colt at the Saratoga sales for $500 and the youngster got back more than his purchase price at the first asking. Johnny Gilbert will leave this track to ride in New York with the opening of Jamaica a week from today. Jockey Nick Wall flew up to the Baer-Nova fight. Apprentice Jockey C. Golggi accepted his first mount on any track yesterday, on Goal in the seventh race. Jockey Mannie Berg said the 2-year-old Gummed Up was bumped soon after the start in Thursday's first race and was slightly injured. Sammy Hicks claimed Air Spring and Blazing Heat for D. J. Sullivan. Jockey Hilton (Rabbit) Dabson, of Greensboro, Md., reports that the Florida courts have granted him a divorce. He has been awarded custody of his child. E. A. Christmas, of Upper Marlboro, has taken over the contract of Apprentice Bobby Erickson, son of Henry Erickson, track superintendent at Charles Town. The elder Erickson was a star rider for Commander J. K. L. Ross. Jockeys Al Shelhamer and Charlie Friedman reported sick yesterday and canceled their mounts. Agent Eddie Rice has gotten two good mounts for Jockey Willie Garner on the undefeated Treemontier in the Bowie Kindergarten and on Robert L. in the $5,000 Southern Maryland Handicap. Bowie offers a first-flight program for today, featured by the $5,000 Bowie Handicap. The track is making preparations to take care of a crowd of 18,000. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—ETHEL BLUME is well down the reserve list and is a doubtful starter. However, she turned in a smart winning effort earlier in the week and gets in with 113 pounds. ADOLF also was a winner here and must carry 120 pounds. RAZACLA totes only 103 pounds and that last effort was promising.

Second race—GINOBI appears to have found company that suits in this field. Likes the sprint route and is capable of handling the 118 pounds. IRISH MOON was messed about twice and should have won on both occasions. He is dangerous. SURPRISE BOX loves the track and that last was encouraging.

Third race—SUN GALOMAR may graduate from the maiden ranks in this company. Has worked well and this looks like the right day. HOME AGAIN is in good hands and will be in the thick of contention. KIMESHA gets off the rail for this and should show improvement.

Fourth race—CROISSANT is tossed in this with 107 pounds and is the speed of a cheap party. I see no reason for mistakes. STADIUM comes from a good barn and should go well in this company. HEAD SEA to take care of the show award.

Fifth race—TREEMONTIER starred in Florida racing and has worked well for this half-mile test. DOCTOR REDER was outstanding in California and will be in the thick of the battle. AIR SPRING made exceptional time on a dull track here the other day and will be there or thereabouts.

Sixth race—ROBERT L. retains that Florida form according to the work sheets and seems ready to carry top weight to victory in the day's feature event. CLYDE TOLSON takes off four pounds and goes a route that suits his purposes in this test. Boasts a good stablemate in Cavalier. HONEY CLOUD promises to better that dull last.

Seventh race—HAPPY LARK gets the call in this field. He gets an assignment of only 107 pounds and packs the right punch. SKIN DEEP is in clever hands. The Bedwell entry of RAWSON and FOGOSO should take a money position.

Eighth race—HILLBLOND was several lengths better than that outing here earlier in the week. There will be no mistakes today. The Gooch-Wormser entry of WHITE HOPE and SHORT DISTANCE belongs close up. STRIDENT for the minor money.

Best bet—ROBERT L.

CLOCKER MIKE'S BOWIE SELECTIONS

1—Happy Hostess, Scullery Maid, Adolph.
2—Irish Moon, Surprise Box, Dorothy Pomp.
3—Courlander, Ballotant, Westly.
4—Your Bid, Stadium, Dingmans.
5—Electric, Treementier, Doctor Reder.
6—Advocator, Clyde Tolson, Robert L.
7—Skin Deep, Pandonna, Jelwell.
8—Gooch entry, Hillblond, Strident.
Best bet—Irish Moon.

Major Staples Soar on U. S. Price-Fixing

By the Associated Press

News that Federal authorities had placed price floors under several important farm products led to a price advance yesterday that put the general average of major commodities at the highest levels in recent years.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale staples sold in spot cash markets advanced from 81.12 Thursday to 81.35 per cent of the 1936 average, highest since late 1937.

The Government announced its intention to support at specified minimum pork, dairy and poultry products to insure adequate supplies for domestic and foreign use.

In wholesale markets at Chicago hogs rose 15 to 35 cents a hundredweight and lard more than 20 cents a pound. Butter gained ¼ cent a pound and eggs ¼ cent a dozen in the best prices in three or four months.

Cotton at New York dropped 55 to 65 cents a bale, mirroring in part caution regarding current legislative efforts to formulate a farm program.

Rubber declined as much as 1-3 cent a pound, silk 5½ to 7 cents and hides .03 to .13 of a cent. Modestly down were Rio coffee, wool tops and sugar.

Cottonseed oil swung against the trend with gains of .14 to .18 of a cent a pound. Wheat at Chicago rose ¾ to ⅞ of a cent and corn ½ to ¾. Each of these was expected to benefit, at least indirectly, from the Federal plans for food products.

Hogs and Lard Soar

Chicago, April 4 (AP).—Hog prices advanced 15 to 35 cents per hundredweight and lard more than 20 cents here today as farm commodities markets reflected disclosure of the scope of the Government's program to stimulate production of livestock.

Since passage of the lend-lease bill, however, Government purchases of lard have increased and other pork products were understood to have been put on the Federal buying list. Possibility of some of these commodities moving abroad under terms of the new law attracted much attention.

The following table shows a comparison between approximate present Chicago market prices and minimum prices to be maintained under the Government program:

| | Present | Minimum | Yr. ago |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hogs, average | $8.10 | $9.00 | $4.85 |
| Butter, extras, lb. | .33¼ | .31 | .28 |
| Eggs, firsts, doz. | .22 | .22 | .16½ |
| Hens, lb. | .19½ | .15 | .13 |

Provisions traders estimated overnight Government purchases of lard amounted to 9,000,000 pounds while 6,900,000 pounds of pork cuts were taken. Instructions given packers indicated that some of the pork was intended for shipment to Britain with delivery of lard demanded by May 20 and pork cuts by May 10. The meat purchase included hams, shoulders and bellies.

Du Pont to Build Synthetic Rubber Plant

New York, April 4 (AP).—The Herald Tribune says E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. will build a new plant at Louisville, Ky., to enlarge the company's manufacture of neoprene synthetic rubber.

As a part of this expansion program, the Herald Tribune reported, it was understood the Air Reduction Co. would build an adjacent plant at Louisville from which acetylene, a primary raw material used in the manufacture of neoprene, would be piped to the new Du Pont factory.

Cotton Futures

New York, April 4 (AP).—Cotton futures dropped 11 to 13 points today in the face of apathetic demand and Bombay selling and hedging.

A statement by farm leaders in Washington that a compromise loan rate of 85 per cent of parity on basic commodities was likely gave a brief fillip to the price list but support failed to follow through.

Mills continued to buy spot cotton against huge backlogs of commercial and Government orders. Business was slowed, however, by the premiums of $7.50 to $10.00 a bale asked by holders of qualities in loan cotton.

Worth Street textile traders reported slim business at firm prices.

Exports Thursday 18,711 bales; season so far, 818,220. Port receipts, 29,577. Port stocks, 3,436,428.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, April 4 (AP).—Cottonseed oil futures scored the highest prices in 2½ years today with gains of 14 to 18 points, strength in lard, which stemmed from Federal purchases for Great Britain, influenced a large part of the buying. This factor was supplemented by sales of crude oil at new highs on the crop.

Sales totaled 364 contracts; May, 8.47; bid; July, 8.49; September, 8.38; October, 8.61.

Crude oil changed hands in the Southeast at 7½ cents a pound, up ⅛ cent. Valley crude was quoted nominally at 7¼ cents and Texas 7¼ bid.

Foreign Exchange

New York, April 4 (AP).—The Canadian dollar today inched up ⅛ of a cent and mild support developed for the Hongkong and Shanghai dollars.

Other major rates were unchanged in terms of the dollar in the free foreign exchange markets.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium, equivalent discounts on Canadian dollar in New York of buying, 9.91 per cent; selling, 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 1211 per cent discount or 87.06¼; U. S. cents.

W. M. MARTIN, JR., stock exchange president, gets earlier-than-expected order to report for military training

N. Y. Group Urges Advance to 6% On Income Tax

New York, April 4 (AP).—The New York Chamber of Commerce has proposed a boost in the normal Federal tax on individual incomes to 6 per cent from 4 per cent to increase revenues for payment of defense costs.

The chamber also proposed decrease in exemptions on individual incomes, abolition of the capital stock and excess profits taxes and an increase in the corporate tax rate to 30 per cent from 24 per cent.

In addition, it suggested a new source of revenue through a Federal levy on retail sales or a defense tax on all gross incomes paid to individuals.

Corporate Reports

Standard Oil of California

Standard Oil Co. of California reported it made $22,487,586 net profit in 1940. That was $1.73 a share on the 13,003,953 shares outstanding and compared with 1939 profit of $17,882,505 or $1.38 a share. Gross operating income receded to $176,144,614 from $177,650,184. Domestic sales backed down only slightly to $138,548,000 from $139,973,000. Foreign business, though considerably lower, fell less rapidly than during 1939.

Woodward Iron Co.

Woodward Iron Co., one of the Nation's largest independent merchant iron producers, reported net profits for the three months ending March 31 as $551,897, equivalent to $1.65 per share on 334,000 shares of common stock outstanding. The profit for the corresponding period of 1940 was $392,077, equivalent to $1.36 per share on 287,789 shares then outstanding.

Retailers Urge Delay In New Wool Labels

New York, April 4 (AP).—The board of directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association announced today it favored postponement of operation of the wool products labeling act until after the end of the war emergency.

The board said it found there would be "enormous" difficulties in the labeling of wool stocks on hand when the act becomes effective July 14.

Sugar Futures

New York, April 4 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures held their balance today while traders waited a cue for further action from the spot raw market. Final prices were unchanged to 1 point lower on sales of 13,050 tons.

The world list slipped near the close and finished 1½ to 3 points lower on turnover of 6,300 tons; May, .78½†; July, .83½†. Demand was stymied by indications that sale in the world market of some 200,000 tons of Cubas had been blocked by financing problems.

In the spot raw market Cuban and duty-frees in April and May positions were on offer at 3.48 cents a pound, but buying interest hovered around 3.40.

Refined locally stayed at 5.10 cents.

Martin Called For Induction On April 16

By the Associated Press

New York, April 4.—William McChesney Martin, jr., 34-year-old president of the New York Stock Exchange, was notified to report April 16 for military training.

The youthful exchange head got his induction notice in the mails from a mid-Manhattan draft board sooner than had been expected in Wall Street, which has been searching for an administrator to succeed him.

Martin, it was said in sources close to him, had asked for no preferential treatment and stood ready to accept whatever assignment the military authorities gave him.

Exchange officials had anticipated he would be called in May and recently appointed a committee to find a new president.

In expectation of a spring call from the Army, Martin recently visited relatives and friends in St. Louis. His father is former head of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Martin, one of the youngest men ever to occupy a top financial post, looks more like a student than a hard-boiled man of affairs. For years he observed the campus custom of going without a hat and lived at the Yale Club.

For all his studious appearance, however, he kept fit on the tennis courts and was known about Wall Street as a great baseball fan.

He became the first paid president of the exchange, at a salary of $48,000 a year, in 1938 in a sweeping reform of the administration which ousted the so-called "old guard."

Howland S. Davis, executive vice president, was expected to act as head of the exchange when Martin left unless the governing board appointed another president meanwhile.

Martin's friends in the exchange speculated on the possibility that as a $21-a-month buck private he might find himself taking orders by remote control from men he had bossed in the exchange.

At Fort McClellan, Ala., there are two lieutenant colonels who used to be stock exchange vice presidents under Martin—John Haskell and Charles E. Saltzman. Samuel S. Auchincloss, a former vice president of the New York Quotation Co., a stock exchange subsidiary, is a lieutenant colonel at Fort Dix.

Chicago Grain

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 4.—Wheat prices soared almost 2 cents in the first few minutes of trading today and then spent the remainder of the session swinging over a wide range, dipping at times as much as ½ cent below previous closing levels.

May wheat reached 90¾, highest in ten months, and new crop contracts came within fractions of the season's peaks. Buying was stimulated by various phases of the Government program, including stimulation of livestock production which would affect grains indirectly, and likelihood of adoption of marketing quotas along with higher loan rates for the new crop. Strength of securities and sharp gains in the bean and lard markets, with Government purchases of lard and pork products substantial, were additional bullish factors.

Profit taking and hedges against increased offerings of loan and free wheat and receipt of good moisture over much of the winter wheat belt accounted for the selling. Wheat closed only ⅝@⅞ higher than yesterday; May, 92¼@92⅝; July, 91@91¼. Corn, ½@¾ up; May, 67½; July, 67½@67⅝. Oats, ⅛@¼ higher. Soybeans, 2⅛@2⅝ higher. ## Stock Market Closes Irregularly Lower After Renewed Rally Fades; Steels Weak

New York, April 4.—The strong rallying trend of Thursday wilted in today's stock market, just as on similar occasions in the past several months. There was a short lived show of activity on the upside at the start. Early gains of fractions to a point or so for rails and steels were reduced or canceled at the close. In the forenoon a number of new 1941 highs were posted.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 42.3. It was a relatively broad market, 789 individual issues being traded. Of these 307 were up, 246 down and 236 unchanged.

Dwindling of volume on the stemming of the recovery tide provided a little encouragement for bullish forces. Transfers totaled 704,920 shares, against 940,560, the day before which was the largest turnover of the year to date.

Wall Street still was slightly "inflation-minded" and business news continued hopeful. Many customers, however, had the idea of cashing in for the approaching weekend. Persistent labor unrest and the British reversal at Bengasi were seen as handicaps for sentiment.

Stocks getting into new high ground for the year and retaining modest advances at the finish included United States Rubber, Consolidated Oil, Southern Pacific and the preferreds of Santa Fe and Pete Marquette.

Among others emerging with plus marks were Westinghouse, Texas Corporation, Borden, American Rolling Mill, Internationau Paper common and preferred, Dow Chemical, duPont, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide.

Motors never got out in front, as automotive production this week disclosed a substantial decline, due mainly to the Ford strike. General Motors was unchanged and Chrysler off a point.

On the losing end were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennicott, American Telephone, Western Union, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, General Electric, Eastman Kodak and International Harvester.

Recently strong commodities turned irregular and this may have had something to do with arresting the upswing in stocks. Cotton lost 55 to 65 cents a bale and futures of rubber, hides, sugar and silk were lower. Wheat at Chicago was up ⅜ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn ahead ½ to ¾.

Colts Patent Firearms and Cities Service preferred were up 2½ each in the Curb. Small gains were registered for Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, American Cyanamid "B," Aluminum of America and Bell Aircraft. Under water were N. J. Zinc, Aviation & Transportation, Lake Shore and Creole Petroleum. Volume here was around 110,000 shares compared with 111,000 yesterday.

In the face of active profit-taking inspired by their recent steep climb, rail bonds performed sturdily in the bond market again today and some reached new highs for a year or more.

Many gains in the rail and other divisions were skimmed off in a late selling movement after the stock market lost rallying power.

Despite a .3 of a point decline in the Associated Press carrier average, Nickel Plate 4½s, Great Northern 4s of '46, Illinois Central 4¾s, Chesapeake & Ohio 3½s and Union Pacific 3½s of '71 finished moderately ahead.

Trading volume contracted sharply from yesterday's $19,531,400, which was the best since early January, but at $12,525,800 remained well above the average of recent weeks.

The Federal issues were narrow both in the stock exchange and over-the-counter dealings. Dealers reported a continued good buying interest in the new Treasury taxable 2½s.

Defense Work May Shift U. S. Economic Map

By the Associated Press

New York, April 4.—The National Industrial Conference Board predicted today that the regional economic pattern of the Nation might be changed by present concentrations of defense contract awards.

The research organization reported:

The most pronounced prospective shift is a sharp increase in the Pacific Coast States. Within a period of nine months, California, Oregon and Washington have received almost one-sixth (about $2,000,000,000) of all national defense contracts awarded.

As in the last war, the South Atlantic area also appears to be entering a period of expansion which should continue to improve its position in the regional ranking of income received. This region has been awarded 13.

Father Walsh Urges End To Strikes

The American republics can guarantee their future security and national defense by "their courage and justice in healing the breach between capital and labor," the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, declared here last night.

Father Walsh, speaking in Memorial Continental Hall, said that whatever the specific merits of "the unfortunate strikes now marring our national unity . . . the present situation is exactly what Mr. Hitler desires."

"Consciously or unconsciously, both capital and labor are assisting their common enemy every time they permit production of defense material to be stopped," he said.

Would Confound Isms

Healing the breach between capital and labor, said Father Walsh, "will cut the very ground from beneath the feet of atheistic communism and the neo-paganism which are dividing Europe into armed camps."

Father Walsh recalled that those who opposed passage of the lend-lease bill had been stigmatized as appeasers by those who supported the measure, from the President down, and he added:

"The true friend of labor, if he is intellectually honest, must now speak to those who prevent workers from working in the same language as addressed to opponents of lend-lease.

"And the true friend of capital and management must warn them to go to the very limit of compromise in this fateful hour.

Must Not Be Impaired

The right to work, declared Father Walsh, must not be sacrificed or impaired, "particularly in a national emergency."

"Let us all remember that internal divisions, suspicion and paralysis of the will to unity led to the fall of France, which was not defeated from without but disintegrated from within."

The next lecture will be given Tuesday night instead of Friday, which is Good Friday.

Walling Is Elected Board President Of Civic Theater

L. Metcalfe Walling has been elected president of its board of governors, the Washington Civic Theater announced yesterday. He succeeds A. Z. Foster Wood, who leaves for Greensboro, N. C., next week to assume management of the tax department of a law firm there.

Walling, who is administrator of the Walsh-Healey Act for the Department of Labor, has been long associated with the nonprofessional theater. He did work in dramatics at Andover and with Brown University's "Sock and Buskin." Later he acted with the Players Club of Providence and directed plays at a Boston settlement house. He has been a member of the Civic Theater board of governors since last December.

Also elected to the board of governors are Paul Bradbury Walter and Miss Bernice Kraus, both active members of the theater for several years.

SUPERMAN — Tragedy Strikes! — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

TELL ME, SERGEANT CASEY—WHAT'S ALL THIS ABOUT SUPERMAN MURDERING SOMEONE NAMED DANVERS?
WHILE SUPERMAN WAS SETTLING A DISPUTE WITH THE HEAD OF THE ROLAND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY, HE SHOVED SOME HIRED GUARDS INTO A CLOSET. DANVERS, AMONG THEM, WAS FATALLY INJURED. —THIS IS ONE TIME SUPERMAN HAS STEPPED BEYOND THE BOUNDS OF THE LAW....AND WE'RE DETERMINED TO GET HIM!
("—I ALWAYS FEARED MY SUPER-STRENGTH MIGHT SOMEDAY ACCIDENTALLY INJURE SOMEONE. BUT THIS DEVELOPMENT! I—I STILL CAN'T BELIEVE IT...—")
IN THE OFFICE OF THE ROLAND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY....
DON'T TAKE IT SO HARD, ROLAND!
AND WHY SHOULDN'T I? SUPERMAN RUINED MY BUSINESS, KILLED MY ASSOCIATE! I WON'T REST, I TELL YOU! NOT UNTIL SUPERMAN IS DEAD!

JOE PALOOKA — There She Was — BY HAM FISHER

RIGHT.
BOY! SHE'S SURE A BEAUTY. WHEW!
WELL HERE WE GO, PLEASANT TRIP.
THAN K' YOU SIR. SAME TO YOU.
THERE'S NEW YORK---I MEAN THERE IT WAS.
HA! HA! WE'RE NOT GOING FAST. I HAVEN'T EVEN OPENED HER UP.
SHE'LL DO FOUR HUNDRED. I JUST WANTED TO LET YOU HAVE A VIEW.
TCH TCH I MEAN WHEW!

WINNIE WINKLE — She Borrows Trouble, Too — BY BRANNER

WHO WAS THAT WOMAN YOU JUST NODDED TO, AS YOU CAME IN THE GATE, MOTHER?
THAT'S MRS. UPPITY, OUR NEW NEIGHBOR! SHE MOVED IN NEXT DOOR SEVERAL MONTHS AGO!
I NOTICED SHE DIDN'T RETURN YOUR BOW!
OH, THAT'S NOTHING NEW—
ZZZZZZZ
SHE NEVER RETURNS ANYTHING!

MR. AND MRS. — It's Good Exercise, Joe — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

JOE, DID THE POSTMAN LEAVE ANYTHING FOR ME?
YEAH—COUPLE OF LETTERS I'LL BRING 'EM UP
DON'T COME UP. I'LL COME PART THE WAY DOWN HERE THEY ARE
OH, YOU'RE COMING ALL THE WAY UP. ISN'T THAT A SHAME!
THOUGHT YOU WERE COMING PART THE WAY DOWN
THIS WHAT YOU CALL COMING HALF WAY DOWN?
I MEANT TO. BUT YOU DIDN'T GIVE ME A CHANCE

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

NOW THAT THE RAINS HAVE SUBSIDED, I'M GOING TO PATCH UP THESE LEAKS RIGHT. THE WAY TO DO A GOOD JOB IS TO TEAR OUT THE OLD SHINGLES AND START FROM SCRATCH
Reg. U. S. Pat. Office
Dist. by Arthur J. Lafave

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Gathering of the Clan — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

WHAT'S WRONG HERE, JUDGE LINGLE? WHO WOULD WANT TO MURDER CAROL?
THIS IS JUDGE LINGLE—MY UNCLE'S LIFE-LONG FRIEND AND ADVISER!
AND YOURS TOO, I HOPE MY DEAR!
MURDER? CAROL? WHY THAT'S PREPOSTEROUS!
SOMEONE TRIED IT—SOMEONE WHO HASN'T SEEN HER FOR A LONG TIME, BECAUSE HE MISTOOK ME FOR HER!
WELL, WELL—WELCOME HOME, CAROL!
THIS IS YOUR COUSIN, RIGGS CHASE, CAROL—I GUESS YOU HAVEN'T SEEN HIM IN YEARS!
THOUGHT I'D BE ON HAND TO GREET YOU!
THAT'S CAROL, OVER THERE!
NOT SINCE WE WERE CHILDREN!

Dorothy Kilgallen, the girl reporter and Broadway columnist, is to present a new program of exclusive news and feature stories over WJSV and the Columbia network starting today. It's to be heard every Saturday at 11:45 a. m.

Miss Kilgallen, who will broadcast under the title, "The Voice of Broadway," is the girl journalist, you remember, who did the modern Nellie Bly in 1936, racing around the world in only a couple of weeks and considerably cutting down the time of her predecessor who in her turn beat the record of Jules Verne's fabulous character of "80 Days Around the World."

Another new program, called "Gold is Where You Find It," is to make its debut over WJSV and the network at 10:30 a. m. It's to be nation-wide treasure hunt. Listeners send in requests for strange or unusual objects. Other listeners who can supply the article or articles write in to the program director who determines the value of the object and who sees that it goes to the listener who requested it. The greater the novelty of the request, the greater the reward for the listener who produces it. Anyhow, that should give you a general idea.

John Charles Daly, CBS's daredevil reporter, is going to broadcast from an Army tank in full operation at Fort Knox, Kentucky, on the "Report to the Nation" show at 6 p. m. The description is a feature of the complete story on how our Army is being mechanized.

MICKEY FINN — BY LANK LEONARD

HART TELLS ME HE'S GOT YOU SIGNED TO A CONTRACT, TOMMY! IS THAT RIGHT?
YESSIR!
BUT WHY DID YOU SIGN UP FOR FIVE YEARS?
MY MOTHER HAS TO HAVE AN OPERATION, MR. TENNY, AND IT'LL COST A $1000. HART SAID HE'D ADVANCE IT TO ME IF I SIGNED UP FOR THAT LONG—SO I DID!
I KNOW HOW HE FEELS ABOUT HIS MOTHER, DICK—I'VE GOT ONE TOO, YOU KNOW!
I COULD'VE GOT HIM THE MONEY, MICKEY—AND THERE WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN ANY STRINGS ON IT!
THEN YOU THINK HE'S MADE A MISTAKE, DICK?
I'M AFRAID SO! —AND A BAD ONE!

DIXIE DUGAN — Such Popularity! — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

HOLD IT DUGAN—HEY!
SUFFERIN' JELLYFISH! THAT MONEY HASN'T GONE TO YOUR HEAD ALREADY HAS IT?
GOSH, I'M SORRY, FELLA! I THOUGHT YOU WERE ANOTHER SOLICITOR
GOLLY—LOOK AT THE LETTERS!
ALL PROPOSALS OF MARRIAGE!
THEY ALL SENT PICTURES!
LOOKIT THIS FUNNY-LOOKIN' MONKEY!
'DEAR MISS DUGAN—I AM A COLLEGE GRADUATE, HAVE A B.A. AND M.A. AND SEVERAL HONORARY DEGREES—BUT I HAVEN'T ANY MONEY
OH, SAY—THIS LETTER GIVES ME AN IDEA ON WHAT I CAN DO WITH $5,000!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Satan's Souvenir — BY FRANK MARTINEK

OW!
DARN IT! DROPPED MY FLASHLIGHT, TOO!
RED—QUICK—THE LIGHTS! WHERE'S THE MAIN SWITCH?
BANG!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

YOU SEE, CHIEF—MY DAD HAS A CABIN UP HERE TO RELAX IN—BUT THE DRIVE TO IT NEVER DID ANYBODY'S NERVOUS SYSTEM MUCH GOOD!
YEP! DRIVER NEVER MAKE BUT ONE MISTAKE ON THIS ROAD!
OF COURSE, I'VE DRIVEN IT SO OFTEN IT NEVER BOTHERS ME, BUT—HEY!
WAHOO! LET GO OF THAT WHEEL! WHAT'S THE IDEA?

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — See "King of the Royal Mounted" as a movie serial, Fridays, at Ashton Theater, Clarendon, Va.

HEH, HEH! DIDN'T EXPECT ME, DID YOU? THOUGHT YOUR MOUNTIE FRIEND CAUGHT ME!
OH!
INSTEAD, I'VE CAUGHT YOU! GET IN THAT BOAT, AND IF YOU YELL, I'LL KILL YOU!
THE FIREBUG!
KING! HELP!
COME ON, DANIELS, LEND A HAND—WE'VE GOT TO GET OUT OF HERE!
KING! THAT SOUND! IT'S BETTY!
